Battle Moves Into Pakistan

Times News Services

NEW DELHI — Indian Defence Minister Jagjivan Ram said Sunday Indian troops have been ordered to move into East Pakistan as far as necessary to stop Pakistani artillery attacks, according to new reports today.

Ram said the order was issued after Pakistan increased its shelling of border areas.

Indian and Pakistani troops, backed by tanks and artillery, have been locked in battle for the last 48 hours inside East Pakistan.

An Indian government spokesman said fighting was still in progress near the town of Hilli, two or three miles inside the northwest part of East Pakistan.

Pakistan had lost 80 men dead or wounded while Indian casualties were put at 15, the spokesman said four Pakistani tanks were destroyed and one Indian tank damaged by an anti-tank mine, he said.

The action began Saturday when Indian troops acted after continuous shelling of the West Bengal town of Balurghat, which juts into East Pakistan, and menacing moves by a squadron of Pakistani tanks on Indian positions, he said.

Pakistani troops Sunday launched a counter-attack on Indian troops, the spokesman added.

Although the spokesman described the fighting, which he said was confined to a small area, as a local action, it is clearly the most serious engagement since fighting flared up inside East Pakistan more than a week ago.

An army spokesman in Rawalpindi said casualties at Jibannager were substantial.

Province To Change Tax Rate

Premier Bennett said today retroactive legislation will be introduced in the legislature in February to change the provincial income tax system to blend with federal tax changes.

Under the new system B.C. will have to increase its rate of personal income tax to 30.5 per cent of the federal tax compared with the current 28 per cent of the "basic tax."

Bennett said this doesn't amount to an increase because the higher rate is necessary for the province to get the equivalent revenue as computed on a smaller federal tax base.

B.C. income taxes will continue to be the lowest in Canada, along with Nova Scotia and Ontario if they go to the 30.5 per cent rate from their current 28, Bennett said.

"There will be no double taxation in British Columbia," Bennett said.

Residents of seven of the 10 provinces pay what amounts to a double tax on a portion of income tax.

A table released by Bennett shows Manitoba shifting to provincial rate of 42.5 per cent of federal tax compared with the current 39 per cent of basic tax.

CDC Centre To Locate In Vancouver

OTTAWA (CP) — The head office of the Canada Development Corporation will be established in Vancouver within two years.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today that while the initial head office will be in Ottawa "the government has made known to the board of directors its wish to see the location of the head office moved to Vancouver within two years."

The corporation's first chairman is H. Anthony Hampson, president and chairman of the board of Capital Dynamics Management Ltd., of Montreal. The president is Marhsall A. Crowe, deputy secretary of the cabinet since 1967.

Leaders to Meet

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon will meet to discuss "bilateral and multilateral matters" some time in December. No details of the meeting's agenda or exact date have yet been released.

TOP ATHLETE RHODES WINNER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wilf Wedman, 23, has been named British Columbia's Rhodes Scholar for 1972.

Wedman, the first student in Simon Fraser University's six-year history to win the $5,000 scholarship, said he entered university primarily to pursue his interest in athletics.

He said his participation in the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico ended his indifference to the academic side of university.

"I saw the incongruities in Mexico — the magnificence of Olympic village within walking distance of unimaginable slums. It makes you look at things. I started to see a new relevance in history, trying to figure out why things happen the way they do."

Wedman is Canada's high jump champion and won a silver medal at the Pan-American Games in Colombia this year. He is also editor of Simon Fraser's student newspaper, The Peak, and a member of the student society council.

The Rhodes scholarship will allow him to study two years at Oxford, after which he says he plans ultimately to teach history at the university level.

Calgary Goes Wild After Grey Cup Win

Times News Services

The drunks ignored the police; the police ignored the drunks; thousands ignored the chilly 15-degree weather in Calgary Sunday night; and a Winnipeg woman and her retired husband are $100,000 richer as a result of Calgary's 14-11 win over Toronto in the Grey Cup.

It was that kind of day Sunday in three western centres —Winnipeg, Calgary and the site of the game, Vancouver.

In Winnipeg, Pearl Smith, 72, was ill at home along with her husband, 79 and because both suffer heart trouble had to turn down a free trip to Vancouver to see the game. They only turned on the radio in the last few minutes of play.

"We've had heart attacks and we were afraid the excitment would be too much for us."

Another Manitoba resident, Larry Maybee, 25, of Selkirk drew Toronto in the Manitoba Sweepstakes. Before the game he tried to talk Mrs. Smith into splitting the prize money. She refused and wound up $37,500 richer.

HOLIDAY

In the downtown area Sunday night car horns blared, people shouted, waved arms and hoisted bottles, danced and created traffic jams.

The festivities went on throughout the night.

Many teenagers danced in the street and chanted "we're No. 1." They were ushered away by police, but reappeared a few moments later on another street yelling the same tune.

A celebrant got out of his car in stalled traffic and poured the last drops from a whisky bottle into his mouth. He walked to another car two lanes over and shook hands with the driver who appeared to be a stranger. He kissed one of the girls in the car, another stranger, and went back to his car.

No one raised an eyebrow.

BOTH IGNORED

One drunk was directing traffic at 5th St. and 7th Ave. S.W. A policeman was also directing traffic. They ignored each other and the traffic ignored both of them.

Cars covered with people charged up and down the main thoroughfares, often ignoring signal lights. Celebrants leaned out windows.

Despite the 15-degree weather, convertibles were suitably decorated with girls sitting on the folded tops. They were quickly joined by members of the opposite sex, jumping on the front and rear decks.

A few fell off, but even fewer were feeling any pain — beer was being consumed faster than gasoline in most cars.

Few injuries were reported to police.

And in Vancouver, Georgia Hotel manager Bob McCauley accused police of turning a blind official eye to hooligans who besieged his hotel during Saturday night's cup celebrations.

"I begged the police to rescue us from a vicious drunken mob on Saturday night, but they ignored me," McCauley said Sunday.

"The people out there went haywire. I phoned police headquarters six times asking for help. The last time they hung up on me."

Deputy chief constable Tom Stokes told of McCauley's complaint, said: "I don't know what he's talking about. I'm going to look into this whole affair."

McCauley said he had closed the doors of the hotel at about 9 p.m. Saturday because the place was packed. He said he opened them against at 12:30 a.m. to protect his security men.

"I decided they were more important than the damage those wild men could do. They had taken enough abuse. The police wouldn't come, so I decided to let the mob run riot through the hotel."

In all, about a score of people were injured and half a dozen arrested. Almost 700 arrests were made in the 1966 Grey Cup riot.

CIVIC CANDIDATES LISTED ON PAGE 21

In the Victoria area contests loom for mayoralty in Victoria and Saanich. However, Frances Elford in Oak Bay and Art Young in Esquimalt were declared elected by acclamation.

Gloom Ahead For Economy Says Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Serious economic and social strains threaten unless the economy expands rapidly to create more jobs for young people, the Economic Council of Canada said today.

The 28-member council, in a review of the last 18 months and prospects for the first half of the 1970s, says that Canada can count on little help from foreign sales in pushing demands for goods and services.

"The job of getting the economy moving decisively back up towards its potential level of output must now rest entirely on domestic demand expansion," the council says.

It is one of the council's most chilling analysis of the country's performance and prospects since it was formed in 1963 to advise governments and the general public on how to achieve relatively full employment, price stability and an equitable distribution of rising incomes.

Between 1970 and 1975, the report says, Canada needs 1.4 million new jobs to provide work for the rapidly growing labor force and bring unemployment down to tolerable levels.

CUT UNEMPLOYMENT

In the first 18 months of this five-year period, civilian employment rose to about 8.1 million from 7.8 million. But unemployment has been running more than six per cent of the labor force, and the council said it should be cut to 3.8 per cent as an immediate goal and to three per cent for the long-range future.

The council said men in the 25-34 age group need the largest employment increase. Jobs would have to be found at twice the rate of growth for that group than occurred in the last half of the 1960s.

These are today's young, born in the years immediately after the Second World War and now graduating, or dropping out, from the school system. They will be demanding more housing, furnishings and other durable goods, and urban services as they settle into family life — and they will need jobs.

"Any signficant shortfall in meeting the employment needs of this group will produce serious economic and social strains in the 1970s," the report said.

The council is composed of three full-time members and 25 part-time councillors drawn from business, labor, agriculture, academic and consumer groups.

GOVERNMENT RAPPED

They were highly critical of the government.

Most of their report was prepared before Finance Minister E. J. Benson's tax-cutting and job-promoting budget Oct. 14. But they said these measures didn't do enough to necessitate changing the report.

Internationally, Canada was becoming isolated as a small trade-dependent country in a world where large economic groupings are becoming important. One example is the European Common Market which Britain is preparing to join.

Domestically, Canada will have to expand output of goods and services at the rate of six per cent a year for the next three years, it said. Real output — that is, discounting inflationary prices — rose only 3.2 per cent last year and only a little faster in the first half of this year.

After last year's slowing down, prices have begun to increase more rapidly again, the council noted. It expressed fears for further inflation in the future, saying business cannot continue with severely squeezed profits.

"It seems likely that attempts will be made to restore profit margins to more normal levels as soon as market demand permits."

From the point of view of maintaining price stability in the future, the position "appears to be less favorable now than at any time in the post-war period."

FERRY MISHAP AN 'ACCIDENT'

An incident Oct. 20 in which an elderly Alberta couple's car plunged into the ocean while coming off a B.C. Ferry cannot be attributed to mechanical failure or to an error by the crew, an investigation report says.

The incident took place while the Queen of New Westminster was unloading at Departure Bay near Nanaimo, hospitalizing Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of Fort Macleod.

In a letter to Highways Minister Wesley Black, B.C. Ferries' general manager, Monty Aldous said, in spite of intensive studies, no mechanical failure of the ferry's hydraulic system has been found. It has also been impossible to attribute the accident to human error on the part of any of the crew.

In his letter, Aldous makes three recommendations, the first of which will go into effect immediately.

From now on the master of the ferry will remain on the bridge during tie-up periods, instead of handing over to the quartermaster.

During the investigation a check was made with Washington State Ferries. They said they had some minor incidents, but used much the same system of operation as B.C. Ferries, except that the master remained on the bridge.

Aldous' report also recommends that "slightly more positive propeller action" be used while the ferries are loading and unloading.

In addition, the manufacturers of the ferries' hydraulic systems will be asked to consider a possible modification to the variable-pitch propeller, that will neutralize it in the case of a hydraulic failure, rather than have it run the risk of flipping over to the opposite position.

Guerrillas Slay Jordan's Premier

WORKER for Indians throughout his life, honorary chief Edwin Underwood of the East Saanich Indian Reserve died in hospital Sunday aged 71. See story on page 2.

Tell, slain in Cairo Sunday after a little more than a year as premier, was an unrelenting foe of the Palestinian Arab guerrillas who opposed Jordan's monarchy.

Tell, 51, hated by the guerrillas for ordering the Jordanian army to crush their revolt last summer, was killed by four bullets as he stepped from his car at a Cairo hotel. A member of the four-man death squad said Tell's death was only the first of a series of murders intended to eliminate everyone who has opposed the cause of the Palestine guerrillas in the Arab world.

Hussein's announcement of the appointment of Lozi came after the 51-year-old Tell was buried in the royal cemetery in Amman. About 3,000 persons, many of them weeping, attended the state funeral.

A 21-gun tribute was fired as Tell's coffin was lowered into a grave next to King Abdullah, Hussein's grandfather, who was assassinated 20 years ago. Tell is the first commoner to be buried in the cemetery.

Tears streamed down Hussein's face as he offered condolences to Tell's widow.

Joey Goes to Court To Stay in Power

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Liberals will petition the Supreme Court of Newfoundland to declare St. Barbe South vacant and will not resign the government unless the seat is lost to the Progressive Conservatives in a byelection, John Mahoney, Liberal association president, said today.

Mr. Mahoney said the seat, one of 21 taken in the election Oct. 28 by the Conservatives under Frank Moores, is vacant because the 105 ballots which were burned made it impossible for the Supreme Court to complete a recount.

Mr. Mahoney said in an interview this left the Liberals and Conservatives on an equal footing with 20 seats each and Premier Joseph Smallwood's government was legally entitled to remain in power until a byelection was held, unless the court ruled it had been won by the PCs.

Other Liberal spokesmen said recounts in progress this week in two other districts were unlikely to add to Liberal strength because of wide vote margins.

Under the new system B.C. will have to increase its rate of personal income tax to 30.5 per cent of the federal tax compared with the current 28 per cent of the "basic tax."

Bennett said this doesn't amount to an increase because the higher rate is necessary for the province to get the equivalent revenue as computed on a smaller federal tax base.

B.C. income taxes will continue to be the lowest in Canada, along with Nova Scotia and Ontario if they go to the 30.5 per cent rate from their current 28, Bennett said.

"There will be no double taxation in British Columbia," Bennett said.

Residents of seven of the 10 provinces pay what amounts to a double tax on a portion of income tax.

A table released by Bennett shows Manitoba shifting to provincial rate of 42.5 per cent of federal tax compared with the current 39 per cent of basic tax.

CDC Centre To Locate In Vancouver

OTTAWA (CP) — The head office of the Canada Development Corporation will be established in Vancouver within two years.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today that while the initial head office will be in Ottawa "the government has made known to the board of directors its wish to see the location of the head office moved to Vancouver within two years."

The corporation's first chairman is H. Anthony Hampson, president and chairman of the board of Capital Dynamics Management Ltd., of Montreal. The president is Marshall A. Crowe, deputy secretary of the cabinet since 1967.

Leaders to Meet

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon will meet to discuss "bilateral and multilateral matters" some time in December. No details of the meeting's agenda or exact date have yet been released.

TOP ATHLETE RHODES WINNER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wilf Wedman, 23, has been named British Columbia's Rhodes Scholar for 1972.

Wedman, the first student in Simon Fraser University's six-year history to win the $5,000 scholarship, said he entered university primarily to pursue his interest in athletics.

He said his participation in the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico ended his indifference to the academic side of university.

"I saw the incongruities in Mexico — the magnificence of Olympic village within walking distance of unimaginable slums. It makes you look at things. I started to see a new relevance in history, trying to figure out why things happen the way they do."

Wedman is Canada's high jump champion and won a silver medal at the Pan-American Games in Colombia this year. He is also editor of Simon Fraser's student newspaper, The Peak, and a member of the student society council.

The Rhodes scholarship will allow him to study two years at Oxford, after which he says he plans ultimately to teach history at the university level.

Calgary Goes Wild After Grey Cup Win

Times News Services

The drunks ignored the police; the police ignored the drunks; thousands ignored the chilly 15-degree weather in Calgary Sunday night; and a Winnipeg woman and her retired husband are $100,000 richer as a result of Calgary's 14-11 win over Toronto in the Grey Cup.

It was that kind of day Sunday in three western centres — Winnipeg, Calgary and the site of the game, Vancouver.

In Winnipeg, Pearl Smith, 72, was ill at home along with her husband, 79 and because both suffer heart trouble had to turn down a free trip to Vancouver to see the game. They only turned on the radio in the last few minutes of play.

"We've had heart attacks and we were afraid the excitment would be too much for us."

Another Manitoba resident, Larry Maybee, 25, of Selkirk drew Toronto in the Manitoba Sweepstakes. Before the game he tried to talk Mrs. Smith into splitting the prize money. She refused and wound up $37,500 richer.

HOLIDAY

In the downtown area Sunday night car horns blared, people shouted, waved arms and hoisted bottles, danced and created traffic jams.

The festivities went on throughout the night.

Many teenagers danced in the street and chanted "we're No. 1." They were ushered away by police, but reappeared a few moments later on another street yelling the same tune.

A celebrant got out of his car in stalled traffic and poured the last drops from a whisky bottle into his mouth. He walked to another car two lanes over and shook hands with the driver who appeared to be a stranger. He kissed one of the girls in the car, another stranger, and went back to his car.

No one raised an eyebrow.

BOTH IGNORED

One drunk was directing traffic at 5th St. and 7th Ave. S.W. A policeman was also directing traffic. They ignored each other and the traffic ignored both of them.

Cars covered with people charged up and down the main thoroughfares, often ignoring signal lights. Celebrants leaned out windows.

Despite the 15-degree weather, convertibles were suitably decorated with girls sitting on the folded tops. They were quickly joined by members of the opposite sex, jumping on the front and rear decks.

A few fell off, but even fewer were feeling any pain — beer was being consumed faster than gasoline in most cars.

Few injuries were reported to police.

And in Vancouver, Georgia Hotel manager Bob McCauley accused police of turning a blind official eye to hooligans who besieged his hotel during Saturday night's cup celebrations.

"I begged the police to rescue us from a vicious drunken mob on Saturday night, but they ignored me," McCauley said Sunday.

"The people out there went haywire. I phoned police headquarters six times asking for help. The last time they hung up on me."

Deputy chief constable Tom Stokes told of McCauley's complaint, said: "I don't know what he's talking about. I'm going to look into this whole affair."

McCauley said he had closed the doors of the hotel at about 9 p.m. Saturday because the place was packed. He said he opened them against at 12:30 a.m. to protect his security men.

"I decided they were more important than the damage those wild men could do. They had taken enough abuse. The police wouldn't come, so I decided to let the mob run riot through the hotel."

In all, about a score of people were injured and half a dozen arrested. Almost 700 arrests were made in the 1966 Grey Cup riot.

Gloom Ahead For Economy Says Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Serious economic and social strains threaten unless the economy expands rapidly to create more jobs for young people, the Economic Council of Canada said today.

The 28-member council, in a review of the last 18 months and prospects for the first half of the 1970s, says that Canada can count on little help from foreign sales in pushing demands for goods and services.

"The job of getting the economy moving decisively back up towards its potential level of output must now rest entirely on domestic demand expansion," the council says.

It is one of the council's most chilling analysis of the country's performance and prospects since it was formed in 1963 to advise governments and the general public on how to achieve relatively full employment, price stability and an equitable distribution of rising incomes.

Between 1970 and 1975, the report says, Canada needs 1.4 million new jobs to provide work for the rapidly growing labor force and bring unemployment down to tolerable levels.

CUT UNEMPLOYMENT

In the first 18 months of this five-year period, civilian employment rose to about 8.1 million from 7.8 million. But unemployment has been running more than six per cent of the labor force, and the council said it should be cut to 3.8 per cent as an immediate goal and to three per cent for the long-range future.

The council said men in the 25-34 age group need the largest employment increase. Jobs would have to be found at twice the rate of growth for that group than occurred in the last half of the 1960s.

These are today's young, born in the years immediately after the Second World War and now graduating, or dropping out, from the school system. They will be demanding more housing, furnishings and other durable goods, and urban services as they settle into family life— and they will need jobs.

"Any significant shortfall in meeting the employment needs of this group will produce serious economic and social strains in the 1970s," the report said.

The council is composed of three full-time members and 25 part-time councillors drawn from business, labor, agriculture, academic and consumer groups.

GOVERNMENT RAPPED

They were highly critical of the government.

Most of their report was prepared before Finance Minister E. J. Benson's tax-cutting and job-promoting budget Oct. 14. But they said these measures didn't do enough to necessitate changing the report.

Internationally, Canada was becoming isolated as a small trade-dependent country in a world where large economic groupings are becoming important. One example is the European Common Market which Britain is preparing to join.

Domestically, Canada will have to expand output of goods and services at the rate of six per cent a year for the next three years, it said. Real output — that is, discounting inflationary prices — rose only 5.2 per cent last year and only a little faster in the first half of this year.

After last year's slowing down, prices have begun to increase more rapidly again, the council noted. It expressed fears for further inflation in the future, saying business cannot continue with severely squeezed profits.

"It seems likely that attempts will be made to restore profit margins to more normal levels as soon as market demand permits."

From the point of view of maintaining price stability in the future, the position "appears to be less favorable now than at any time in the post-war period."

FERRY MISHAP AN 'ACCIDENT'

An incident Oct. 20 in which an elderly Alberta couple's car plunged into the ocean while coming off a B.C. Ferry cannot be attributed to mechanical failure or to an error by the crew, an investigation report says.

The incident took place while the Queen of New Westminster was unloading at Departure Bay near Nanaimo, hospitalizing Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of Fort Macleod.

In a letter to Highways Minister Wesley Black, B.C. Ferries' general manager, Monty Aldous said, in spite of intensive studies, no mechanical failure of the ferry's hydraulic system has been found. It has also been impossible to attribute the accident to human error on the part of any of the crew.

In his letter, Aldous makes three recommendations, the first of which will go into effect immediately.

From now on the master of the ferry will remain on the bridge during tie-up periods, instead of handing over to the quartermaster.

During the investigation a check was made with Washington State Ferries. They said they had some minor incidents, but used much the same system of operation as B.C. Ferries, except that the master remained on the bridge.

Aldous' report also recommends that "slightly more positive propeller action" be used while the ferries are loading and unloading.

In addition, the manufacturers of the ferries' hydraulic systems will be asked to consider a possible modification to the variable-pitch propeller, that will neutralize it in the case of a hydraulic failure, rather than have it run the risk of flipping over to the opposite position.

Guerrillas Slay Jordan's Premier

WORKER for Indians throughout his life, honorary chief Edwin Underwood of the East Saanich Indian Reserve died in hospital Sunday aged 71. See story on page 2.

Tell, slain in Cairo Sunday after a little more than a year as premier, was an unrelenting foe of the Palestinian Arab guerrillas who opposed Jordan's monarchy.

Tell, 51, hated by the guerrillas for ordering the Jordanian army to crush their revolt last summer, was killed by four bullets as he stepped from his car at a Cairo hotel. A member of the four-man death squad said Tell's death was only the first of a series of murders intended to eliminate everyone who has opposed the cause of the Palestine guerrillas in the Arab world.

Hussein's announcement of the appointment of Lozi came after the 51-year-old Tell was buried in the royal cemetery in Amman. About 3,000 persons, many of them weeping, attended the state funeral.

A 21-gun tribute was fired as Tell's coffin was lowered into a grave next to King Abdullah, Hussein's grandfather, who was assassinated 20 years ago. Tell is the first commoner to be buried in the cemetery.

Tears streamed down Hussein's face as he offered condolences to Tell's widow.

Joey Goes to Court To Stay in Power

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Liberals will petition the Supreme Court of Newfoundland to declare St. Barbe South vacant and will not resign the government unless the seat is lost to the Progressive Conservatives in a byelection, John Mahoney, Liberal association president, said today.

Mr. Mahoney said the seat, one of 21 taken in the election Oct. 28 by the Conservatives under Frank Moores, is vacant because the 105 ballots which were burned made it impossible for the Supreme Court to complete a recount.

Mr. Mahoney said in an interview this left the Liberals and Conservatives on an equal footing with 20 seats each and Premier Joseph Smallwood's government was legally entitled to remain in power until a byelection was held, unless the court ruled it had been won by the PCs.

Other Liberal spokesmen said recounts in progress this week in two other districts were unlikely to add to Liberal strength because of wide vote margins.

Noted Indian Leader Dies

Edwin Underwood of the East Saanich Indian Reserve and one of the foremost Indian leaders on Vancouver Island died in St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday following a lengthy illness. He was 72.

Throughout his life Underwood had worked for the welfare of his people and the improvement of relations between Indian and non-Indian.

The honorary chief operated a sweater shop and camping ground named "Ta-Ta-Yet" on the Patricia Bay Highway.

He also served as an advisor to the B.C. Indian Advisory Committee and was a member of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society.

FIRST INDIAN

He was the first Indian to serve as a director on the board of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society — the oldest agricultural society west of the Great Lakes.

He was a founder member of the Southern Vancouver Island Indian Federation, and for many years was chief of the Tsawout band.

In 1968 he was awarded the Canada Centennial Medal, and an award for good citizenship.

As a young man, Underwood, who was chief from 1947 to 1964, was a master boat builder and fisherman. In later years, he encouraged Indians to enter retail businesses, as he had done.

He is survived by his widow, Bernardette; one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Dulay of Bainbridge Island, Wash.; three grandchildren, Sotero Dulay, Lorena Riley and Bernadette Short, as well as two great-grandchildren.

Prayers will be offered in St. Andrew's Cathedral at 8 p.m. Tuesday, and Mass celebrated there at 10 a.m. Wednesday with Rev. Father William Mudge as celebrant.

Interment will be in the East Saanich cemetery.

'Nothing Suggested Panic'

There was no mention of an emergency in radio conversation between Canadian Forces Base Comox and the pilot of a plane which crashed at Courtenay Friday, killing one policeman and injuring three others.

A federal department of transport probe of the crash was launched after the plane was refused permission to land at the military airstrip. The plane flew on to the smaller civilian field at Courtenay, clipped a tree and landed upside down in the Courtenay River.

DOT investigator John A. T. Love of Vancouver travelled to Comox Saturday to hear tape recordings of the radio contact between the plane and the base.

A department spokesman today confirmed that the plane had been diverted but that there was "nothing at all on the tape to suggest that an emergency existed."

FAIRLY GOOD

Pilot James Macdonald, 27, of 10221 Almond, Sidney, a Victoria city police detective constable, is in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken shoulder and arm, and face cuts.

In satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's Hospital, Comox, is Victoria Sgt. Edward Hardy, 41, of 1155 Palmer. RCMP Sgt. Lew Dempsey, 43, of 999 Wordsley, Esquimalt, was treated for minor injuries and released from the Comox hospital Saturday.

Mason had been trapped in the rear of the cockpit when it came to rest upside down in the river.

The police officers were on special assignment, headed for Campbell River, when their Cessna 172 chartered from Victoria Flying Services turned back to Comox after running into turbulent weather.

Transport department regulations forbid use of military air facilities by itinerant non-service aircraft unless permission to land has been obtained from the base commander—or unless there is an emergency.

FORWARDED

Love said today his findings would be forwarded to Ottawa. It could be months before a report is issued, "depending on the department's work load," he said.

Mason's funeral, with full police honors, will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at McCall's funeral chapel, 1400 Vancouver St.

Roy Parrett, B.C. representative of the Canadian Owners and Pilots Association, said COPA is satisfied that Macdonald "was in fact refused to land at Comox in bad weather."

Told that transport department regulations stipulate that transient aircraft may not be allowed to land except in an emergency, Parrett said "that's something we're going to take issue with."

COPA's Ottawa headquarters has asked for a transcript of the landing conversation tape.

Parrett said Macdonald was unfamiliar with the hazards of the unlicensed Courtenay landing strip.

"If I had been flying, there would have been no way they (CFB Comox) would have sent me away to land there. I've landed many times at Courtenay, and I know the dangers."

Abdullah Salah, was grazed in the leg, and an Egyptian security officer and one of the gunmen also were wounded.

THREE ADMITTED

Egyptian authorities arrested four Palestinians with Syrian passports and said three of them admitted shooting Tell.

Egypt's Middle East news agency said one of the three, Monzie Khalifa, told interrogators the assassination plan was formulated in Beirut by the Black September organization, a movement formed to avenge the guerrillas killed in the Jordanian army's crackdown in September, 1970.

King Hussein broadcast an appeal for unity among Jordan's 2.2 million population, two-thirds of it Palestinian. He called Tell a "true soldier who fought to the last breath of his life for Jordan's dignity, peace, security and progress." But there was widespread jubilation among the Palestinians at the murder of a man they considered one of their chief enemies.

SAY IT'S WARNING

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, whose hijacking of three airliners to Jordan led to the 1970 civil war, said Tell's death was "a warning to everyone who is an enemy of our nation."

Palestinian students, women and workers' groups said they sent a cable to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat appealing for the release of the three assassins "who performed a national duty by killing one of the traitors who plotted against our people."

Shots were fired in the air in celebration in refugee camps in Lebanon.

Man-Made Lakes Key to Elk Plan

A plan which would provide a lake-oriented greenbelt from Elk and Beaver Lakes to Thetis Park has been developed by Frank Neate, Saanich senior design engineer.

The plan, under wraps for more than a year pending studies by planners, will be submitted to the Capital Region District Board for consideration. Ald. Edith Gunning, a staunch supporter of the scheme, said today.

"It's a fantastic plan", she said. "The greenbelt would tie in with all our park system."

The proposal basically calls for the creation of four lakes along a three-mile greenbelt which could be used for canoeing, walking, cycling, picknicking and relaxation.

REMOVE DYKE

The project would be achieved by extending Beaver Lake on its west side by the removal of a dyke and flooding a marsh area. From there a new outlet and stream bed would be constructed southerly to the bottom land of Quick's farm on West Saanich Road, near Wilkinson.

Saanich bought the bottom land from the Quick family in 1968. It would be turned into a 40-acre lake.

The man-made lake, would in turn be connected by a stream to the bottom land of a farm immediately east of Interurban and Viaduct Road. Most of the farm is owned by the provincial government.

It too would be made into a 40-acre lake.

GREENBELT

The greenbelt would run westerly towards the south end of Prospect Lake and near the Gregarah golf course, turning south towards Francis Park and Thetis Lake Park.

Enroute to Francis Park two other small lakes would be created.

Neate says the two lakes at Quick's farm and Interurban and Viaduct would not only provide recreation but additional water for Colquitz River during the summer months. They are both situated at higher level and the water would run down to the waterway.

The lakes would also be useful for flood control of the Colquitz. The bottom land of both farms are flooded during the winter.

COSTS MINIMAL

Costs for developing and connecting these two lakes would be minimal, he said.

Mrs. Gunning points out the scheme would create a circular type of green belt starting from Thetis Lake Park and running down Colquitz River to Portage Inlet.

"It's no use looking back at the good old days when we had plenty of open spaces, forests and streams," she said. "We have to look ahead. Saanich peninsula is steadily being subdivided and if we are to preserve green belts for the present and future generations we have to do it now."

She said one of the main advantages of the proposed greenbelt is that it is situated near urban centres and within easy reach of cyclists and walkers.

UVic Concert Enjoyable

By LANI SELICK
Times Staff

There were inconsistent levels of performance, but the concert at the University of Victoria Sunday was interesting and enjoyable.

One of a five-part series of concerts paying tribute to Igor Stravinsky, the varied program included works by Bach, Mozart, Cardew and Stravinsky.

Catherine Young performed three arias from one of Bach's secular cantatas, the Wedding Cantata. In these contrapuntal arias, the accompaniment is not background. Flute, oboe, harpsichord, and cello interplay with each other and the soprano voice.

Miss Young's voice was sometimes lost in the lower notes, she didn't reach her highest notes, and her intonation was faulty. Because of this, emotional range within the arias was limited, and there was little sense of integral relationship between voice and orchestra.

Miss Young has a powerful, rich voice but has not yet acquired complete control of it.

OWN PARTS

Autumn 60 by Cornelius Cardew is a modern, semi-structured composition for any number or kind of instruments. George Corwin, conductor at Sunday's performance, explained that within the limits of the score's guidelines about what players can, must, and don't have to do, they are free to "realize" their own parts. Corwin designed Sunday's performance in "concerto grosso" style.

Whether or not one accepts the validity of this kind of music, the performance was not too successful.

Corwin used a slow-moving tempo, running into the difficulty of sustaining a mood or theme. The extensive silences in the music were not used effectively, so that "Autumn" seemed stilted and draggy, the mood being lost in between the silences and the slowness. No overall sense of continuity emerged.

INHERENT DRAMA

These pieces are atonal, with strange rhythmic patterns. They demand skillful playing and interpreting so as not to obscure their inherent drama.

Using very subtle tonal modulation, DeRoche allowed the qualities of the compositions to emerge without over-emotionalizing. Only infrequently was his restraint unsuitable — in the first piece, a temperament change in the music could have used a more violent conclusion.

On the whole his tones were rich and he gave a technically competent, sensitive performance.

The performance of Mozart's Serenade No. 12 in C Minor was also successful. This serenade features a prominent oboe and an interplay of solo "voices".

Under Corwin's direction, the orchestra blended well, although at times it could have been heater, and the spirit seemed forced in the brighter passages.

More tonal-emotional depth was required of the andante movement; it wasn't as smooth and melodious as Mozart intended.

Children's Fund Asks Donations

The Save the Children Fund is continuing its campaign this year to get people to donate to needy children the money they would normally spend on a Christmas gift.

The campaign has been carried on for the past few years.

Persons are asked to send the amount of money they would normally spend on a Christmas gift to the Save the Children Fund, Suite 113, 119 West Pender St., Vancouver, 3.

Names and addresses of the person to receive the gift are included and a personalized card is sent to the person by the Save the Children Fund.

Robbery Count For Fugitive

A 46-year-old escapee from William Head minimum security prison was arrested in Vancouver Friday and charged with robbery, Colwood RCMP said today.

RCMP said Norman Angus MacLeod escaped from the prison Sept. 17 where he was serving a term for robbery and possession of an offensive weapon. He was to be released in December 1977.

An officer said charges of escaping and being unlawfully at large against MacLeod would be waived to Vancouver.

Prospects Bleak

Prospects for Greater Victoria's United Appeal reaching its 1971 goal of $758,723 are growing bleaker every day, campaign chairman Eric Charman said Saturday.

With only $585,000 collected to date, organizers are now aiming to equal the $651,000 actually raised last year, Charman said.

"As far as we can tell from other United Appeal results that's what is happening in many cities," he said.

Charman said B.C. government employees in Victoria have donated $23,000 to the fund so far — a significant increase on their contributions last year — and there is more to come from this source.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A letter with a note signed by "D. B. Cooper" — The name reportedly used by the hijacker who got $200,000 and then parachuted from a jet airliner between Seattle and Reno last week — was received by the Evening Gazette today.

The note, with printed words pasted to paper, was turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The envelope was postmarked at Oakdale, a small town southeast of Stockton in central California.

The note, in various kinds of type, apparently from a newspaper, said: "Attention, thanks for hospitality was in a rut D. B. Cooper." It was addressed in faintly hand-printed pencil to "Reno newspaper, Reno, Nev."

Russian N-Test

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States recorded today seismic signals presumably from a Soviet nuclear test, the Atomic Energy Commission announced.

Finance Summit ...Round Three

ROME (CP) — Finance Ministers from 10 leading non-Communist countries, meeting amid dire threats of a possible trade war, appear determined this week to hammer out new supports for an unsteady international monetary and trade system.

The ministers, including Canada's Edgar Benson, open a two-day conference Tuesday in their third attempt to settle problems raised by Washington's Aug. 15 decision imposing a 10-per-cent surcharge on dutiable imports and suspending the dollar's gold convertibility.

Although their first formal session comes Tuesday afternoon, the individual finance ministers were busy today having talks with their opposite numbers.

Meanwhile, their deputies and other technical experts were working out a meeting agenda. The first decision was reported to be that there would be no statement on progress after Tuesday's opening session.

Few officials or observers expect any final solutions to emerge from the discussions but there appears to be some optimism that progress here may lead to an agreement over the next few months, a goal that eluded the ministers at earlier meetings in London and Washington.

Many believe no full settlement will be reached until sometime after a series of bilateral meetings set for next month between President Nixon and Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau, West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, French President Pompidou and British Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Meanwhile, a number of countries, including Canada, continue pressure on the U.S. to lift the surcharge as quickly as possible.

READY TO BE TOUGH

The six countries in the European Common Market are prepared to take a tough line in bargaining, insisting that the surcharge be removed at the same time that currency values are firmly realigned, sources say.

The U.S., represented here by Treasury Secretary John Connally who chairs the meeting, is demanding an upward revaluation of most major currencies to bring them in line with the obviously overvalued dollar, making it easier to sell U.S. goods abroad.

The U.S. is prepared to press its case even more strongly now after figures released last week showed the country's balance of trade with foreign states plunged into a deficit of $821,400,000 in October—the largest deficit since the 1930s.

The large imbalance may be partially caused by dock strikes in the U.S. but the size of the deficit is clearly worrying officials.

Some sources say the U.S. is asking for about a 10-per-cent revaluation of most currencies and a 20-per-cent revaluation of the Japanese yen.

Canadians argued that their currency has been floating freely in terms of the U.S. dollar for more than a year and the current rate of near-parity reflects its true value.

FLOAT UNDER CONTROL

The yen and most other major European currencies also are floating but under strong central bank controls influencing day-to-day fluctuations.

Benson has argued consistently that Canada has been unfairly discriminated against by the U.S. because its currency is not undervalued and because, he contends, there has been no Canadian effort to create unnecessary obstacles to American imports.

Sources indicate there is some possibility that this week's meeting will endorse proposals to widen the margin within which currencies may float freely in relation to each other to about three per cent from the current "band" of between one and two per cent.

Washington already has turned down a Canadian attempt to win an exemption from the surcharge. Afterwards, Benson said solutions must be found soon or the West will face a "devastating trade war."

Spock Picked to Run For U.S. President

DALLAS, Tex. — The newly created People's party has picked Dr. Benjamin Spock as a stand-in presidential candidate with the understanding that he will step aside if a "bigger national figure" can be persuaded to take the party's reins.

Spock and novelist Gore Vidal, co-chairman of the new party, have said they would like to see consumer advocate Ralph Nader take the job. Nader already has said he will not.

Other names mentioned include Eugene McCarthy, former Democratic senator from Minnesota and a 1968 candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

HONG KONG — Two women were ordained by the Anglican Church in Hong Kong Sunday night, the first to enter the church's priesthood with its full recognition.

The women, one Chinese and one English, were ordained as priests by the bishop of Hong Kong, Rt. Rev. Gilbert Baker, in St. John's Cathedral. They had been deaconesses.

They are Jane Hwang Hsienyuen, 54, and Joyce Bennett, about 50, both school principals in Hong Kong.

BOSTON — Katharine Hepburn has been admitted to Massachusetts General Hospital for treatment of an undisclosed illness, a spokesman says.

There was no indication Sunday when the film and stage star would be released.

HASSOCKS, England — Christopher Elliott may be Britain's youngest writer of thrillers. He is only six years old. But a story about a spy duo called Rabbit and the Egg which he dictated to his mother was chosen along with yarns by seven other youngsters for a new book.

NEW YORK — Lady Amalia Fleming, expelled two weeks ago from her native Greece, flew here from London Saturday to plead for an end of U.S. aid to the Greek government.

"If foreign aid were refused, then the junta would fold," the 62-year-old widow of Sir Alexander Fleming, the Scottish discoverer of penicillin, told a news conference.

BIRMINGHAM, England — British surgeons have transplanted the kidneys of a baby who lived only two weeks into a 10-year-old girl dying of a kidney defect. Alison Roberts, the recipient, was reported in "satisfactory condition" Saturday night in hospital here.

Dr. Anthony Barnes, leader of the transplant team, said the operation was complicated by the fact that the kidneys of the infant donor were tiny.

"They can be expected to grow to their correct size in less than a year," he told reporters.

PARIS — Prostitution is a stagnant industry and its clients are aging rapidly, a Paris psychiatrist told a meeting here Sunday. Prof. Marcel Sacotte, official adviser to the Paris Appeal Court, attributed the relative decline of prostitution to the "moral freedom" of the 1970s, which confronts professional prostitutes with unpaid competition.

SOUTHAMPTON, England — It took a long time but bus driver John Barker's sandwiches finally caught up with him. The package of sandwiches Barker took along with him on a shuttle ride to this Hampshire port from the east coast harbor of Harwich was accidentally loaded on the ship which later carried his passengers to South Africa. Weeks later, Barker received his sandwich package, returned to him from the ship's South African destination point.

BENNETT'S WAY is the sarcastic name attached to Island Highway by members of SMASH (Society for Making A Safer Highway). Group protested on stretch of highway near Fanny Bay Saturday, urging government to provide an alternative route from Courtenay up-Island instead of the present two-lane road.

Bottle Deposit Planned

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government will make liquor and wine bottles subject to compulsory return deposits, Environment Minister Bill Yurko announced Sunday.

The government has decided that provisions of the Beverage Containers Act, which require return deposits on all soft drink bottles and cans, should be extended to cover liquor and wine bottles as well, Yurko said in an interview.

The deposit requirements for soft drink containers come into effect Jan. 1 but amendments will be required at the next session of the legislature before liquor and wine bottles can be made subject to the same provisions.

Yurko said no decision has been made yet on what the deposit will be on liquor and wine bottles, although collection may be made through the Alberta Liquor Control Board.

He said the move is part of a package of anti-litter legislation planned by the Progressive Conservative government, including a general litter act.

Soprano, Pianist Duo In 'Connoisseur' Recital

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

In the intimate surroundings of Victoria Art Gallery's old wing, two of this city's resident artists presented a fine if brief recital Sunday afternoon.

The duo, Lorraine Gorrell, soprano, and Mary Ducker, pianist, performed French and American art songs, Schumann and Schoenberg lieder and an aria from Johann Sebastian Bach's Christmas Oratorio.

It was a connoisseur program and the presentation was worthy of the material.

Miss Gorrell has an exceptionally well placed voice of a quality that reminds one of a cool, clear mountain stream flowing smoothly through an alpine meadow.

There are no uneven passages in this stream. The tone is silky and full throughout the singer's range, always well under control and admirably breath supported.

IDEAL SOPRANO

These were aspects stated definitively in the Bach aria, Prepare thyself, Zion. Miss Gorrell is indeed the ideal oratorio soprano.

The partnership between herself and Miss Ducker is superb — a complete match in which there is poise, authority and a mutually intuitive feeling for poetry, character and style.

Miss Ducker's keyboard fluency of execution supports a sensitive, keenly sympathetic musicality. Clearly it would be impossible for her to perform an inartistic phrase.

Moods alternated from the tragic drama of Schumann's Der arme Peter to the tenderness of Schoenberg's Jesus bettelt, the poignancy of Samuel Barber's Sure on this shining night and the lightheartedness of Ernest Chausson's Les Papillons.

All were evoked with many subtle shadings and with an imaginative approach that marks these artists as among the rarer assets of our professional musical circle in this city.

100 Cars Crash

LUTON, England (UPI) — More than 100 speeding cars and trucks piled into each other on a fog-blurred freeway north of London today trapping dead and injured motorists in the wreckage.

Police said at least seven persons were killed and "dozens" injured in the mass collision near here, 32 miles north of the capital.

Some of the injured remained trapped in the wreckage and received pain-killing drugs while rescuers attempted to cut them free, police said.

"Hundreds of vehicles are involved," one witness said. "Lorries and cars have gone crashing down a bank."

The mass collision, the second major pile-up on British highways in recent months, came as ice and fog increased traffic hazards in many sections of the country.

U.S. LONGSHOREMEN RETURN TO JOB

NEW YORK (UPI) — Longshoremen, complying with U.S. federal court orders, returned to work in force today at major U.S. Atlantic and Gulf coast ports except New York where the dockworkers strike began 59 days ago.

Most of the 45,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Association responded to restraining orders issued Friday and Saturday after President Nixon moved to invoke the provision for an 80-day cooling off period in the Taft-Hartley Act. Negotiation would continue during the period.

But the waterfront commission in New York, the largest U.S. port, reported that employers requested only 39 work gangs today, compared to a normal 250, and only 29 gangs agreed to work. Each gang usually has 18 members.

Ottawa Names CDC Directors

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty-one directors were named by the government today for the Canadian Development Corp. They are drawn mainly from the executive offices of growing medium-sized corporations in Canada.

Included on the board are a union leader and a woman—vice-rector of a university.

From the Amur to East River

Two facts have become clear in the short time that China has been a member of the United Nations. First, there will be no holds barred in exchanges between China and the Soviet Union, and secondly, China is determined to emerge as the leader and spokesman of the small nations. Chiao Kuan-Hua, China's vice foreign minister and leading representative at the U.N., has used every occasion to champion the cause of "the medium and small countries" and emphasize China's concern for them. It began the first day, with his opening speech, and has been repeated twice in major statements since.

Observers who predicted an initial period of quiet observation by the Peking delegates were little prepared for their sharp attacks on Russia, with the United States also coming in for its quota of criticism. The question of nuclear armaments has been the main avenue for Chinese attacks on the other great powers, and the danger is that the angry action in the Assembly will build an atmosphere of resentment that will deter any effective disarmament discussions elsewhere.

Russia charged last Wednesday, for example, that there is a "Sino-American duet of negativism" against a Soviet proposal for a world disarmament conference. Two days later Chiao accused Russia of practising "Socialism in words, imperialism in deeds", and dared Soviet Ambassador Malik to be "man enough" to come to the rostrum and declare that his country would never be the first to use nuclear weapons and that it would dismantle all nuclear bases and withdraw all nuclear weapons from abroad.

Chiao also used the occasion to charge that Russia and the United States were encircling his country. Russia countered that China was trying to organize the "third world" in order to become a superpower. Chiao said Russia and the United States were joining up to negate his call for a world disarmament conference. Mr. Malik had said earlier that Chiao was acting like U.S. State Secretary Rogers.

If this sort of verbal Donnybrook continues many members will wish that the two Communist antagonists would take their quarrel back to the Amur River border where their main animosity has been concentrated in the last few years. Certainly, at a time when the United Nations' best efforts are urgently needed to resolve such serious problems as the Arab-Israeli confrontation and the surging Indo-Pakistani conflict, the Assembly can ill afford to become a sparring ring for the two leftist behemoths.

It is not difficult to interpret their angry declarations on any topic as being in reality sharp thrusts in the long war they have waged for leadership of the world's Communism. Now that they have an attentive audience of African, South-American and Asian nations sitting in the Assembly, there will be no quarter given in their between-the-lines battling.

But what happens to the United Nations and its pressing problems while this goes on? Does the world peace delegation from Peking contain nothing but ideological warriors?

"... and how come you were laid off last year ...?"

Clearing Skies for Scheduled Lines

Reports from Honolulu indicate that chief executives of 24 trans-Atlantic airlines have reached a compromise on lower rates. If the agreement stands up, and wins the support of the respective governments involved, this could forestall the threatened fare war for companies flying the Atlantic, and provide a round-trip between New York and London for as little as $200.

That minimum, an off-season winter rate for travellers staying from 22 to 45 days at either end, would be increased for Victorians flying over the Atlantic by an estimated $150, making the total cost at least $350.

Experience will reveal if the compromise figures — they range in a package proposal that rises by season and by class — will make the scheduled lines competitive with charter flights. Charters, believed to be cutting into the traffic that would otherwise be handled by scheduled lines, were considered a major factor in the loss records of North American lines last year. But this year the trunk lines in the United States at least expect to operate at an over-all profit, according to the forecast of the chairman of the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board. As a consequence, the pressure that could have exploded into a rate war may be reduced.

But with or without a rate war, air fares cannot hold indefinitely the levels fixed at any given time. Circumstances change. This year a number of major American airlines are using less red ink in their books. The inaccuracies of past projections both of costs and traffic make doubtful any estimates of what may happen next year. The travelling public will expect the element of competition to determine the amount it pays, within the limits of orderly and safe operation.

For that reason the charter flight will probably preserve its present position as an alternative to scheduled runs.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Hence Our Psychic Hangover

At a certain level of politics Premier W. A. C. Bennett is Canada's oldest and most successful practitioner, the last of a vanishing generation. When he predicts the Trudeau government's defeat next year and — in front of the news cameras, naturally — bets $100 of his own money on the prediction, it should not be taken lightly or ill-advisedly in Ottawa.

Besides, there are other portents of the same sort of various local elections, public opinion polls and, more significantly, the obscure but obviously troubled mind of the man on the street. But if the government is nearing the end of a short, interesting life, as it may be, that fact alone tells us nothing, I mean, about the nation's future.

To answer the truly important question we must look far beyond party politics in their visible, conscious manifestations, their electoral apparatus and their temporary agents like Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Bennett. We must try to understand what is happening in the collective Canadian subconscious, the subliminal region and common denominator which finally decides everything.

Difficult Quest

This, of course, is always a difficult and usually an impossible quest, even for the most skilled psychiatrist, except in hindsight. No generation ever knows what is happening to its inner spirit until after the event. Yet we can begin, perhaps, to see, rather vaguely, what is happening to the nation's merely political process, just below the chaotic surface.

As it seems to this non-expert observer, the basic problem of the government, and the opposition also, is a problem of timing, a judgment of speed, an estimate of the people's will to change their society. And there, through his own misjudgments or misfortunes, the misjudgments of others and the eternal perversity of human nature, the prime minister and his plans have gone sadly wrong. So have most of us, especially journalists.

When Mr. Trudeau won the election in 1968, single-handed, by a feat of histrionics that no dramatist would dare to put on the stage, he made no specific promises whatever. His Just Society was not a promise, only a phrase dropped into a speech here and there, a fragment of rhetoric, a distant goal and handy slogan for Liberal propaganda.

Or so he thought, but it turned out otherwise. In politics the man, not the policy — for there was no policy — represented the largest promise on record, the highest faith, the wildest surmise. Mr. Trudeau can say, quite accurately, that he did not give a single pledge, that he warned the people against false hopes and was horrified by their excessive expectations. No doubt

he was, and is. Nevertheless, the unspoken covenant between man and nation, the public's implicit trust in miracles, the glamor of his personality have caught up with him. He cannot escape his image, persona and myth. The Just Society, that fatal catchword, rides him — like a Frankenstein's monster.

Why have these misfortunes overtaken fortune's beamish boy? Because the nation, and the world, are not what they appeared to be at that magic moment three years ago.

Canada was then ready for a change, at least a change in politics, but as we surely see now, not for the social transfiguration and organic rebirth implied, though never specified, in a transient mood called Trudeaumania. The public wanted a better society, even a just one, if such a thing can be imagined, but wanted to buy it on the cheap. When the first bills arrive, with more to come, few men are eager to pay them, and still fewer realize that the latest promises of the opposition carry a higher price tag.

Now, I am not saying, and have no means of knowing, that the government will lose its second election, since Mr. Trudeau has hardly begun to fight yet. I am saying only that he cannot win again on personality, glamor or slogan, that he will have to clarify, or invent, a specific, popular issue which, one supposes, he is already pondering in a leaky cabinet chamber.

Certainly I am not suggesting that society will stand still or retreat. No one except a fool in the most advanced stage of folly can doubt that society, here and throughout the world, is moving, somewhere, at breakneck speed and will never return to normal, there being no norm to return to.

All I am saying is that the government may have been right in judging the speed of a worldwide movement hard to exaggerate but was wrong in judging Canada's willingness to accept it, pay for it in money, in change of daily habits, in future shock and in votes.

Worse Strategy

The Conservative party's judgment probably was no better, its strategy worse and that of the New Democrats astronomically wrong. In the unjust commerce of politics, however, an opposition can reverse course overnight, as Mr. Stanfield is doing with unsuspected agility, and still seem to be consistent because it does not have the responsibility of governing, tax collecting and answering for its sins.

Anyhow, as he re-judges his achievements, mistakes and prospects, Mr. Trudeau will doubtless see that the practical question before him simply comes down to this: How radical, progressive, leftist, egalitarian, noble and Christian are the Canadian people in fact, not in rhetoric and brief self-hypnosis? How fast are they prepared to go, how much inconvenience, change and future shock are they prepared to endure and how much are they prepared to pay for social justice, real or imaginary? Not so much, I venture to suspect, as they and Mr. Trudeau imagined when he refused to make any promise and the voters refused to accept his denial. Hence our psychic hangover.

Politics, despite their present confusion and sham battle of party slogans, will turn on that question of timing and speed. But it will not be answered for a long time yet and then in erratic jerks and twitches, three steps forward and two back. Assuredly the next election will not answer it, no matter who wins, if any party does.

JAMES RESTON

A War the UN Can Stop

WASHINGTON — The world is now on the verge of another pointless human tragedy. India and Pakistan are slowly but surely sliding into a war that can only result in unutterable misery, and in this situation it will be interesting to watch the so-called great powers at the newly reorganized United Nations.

Here is one case where the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council — the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France — have a clear duty under the charter to work together against this madness, and an opportunity to do so without damage to their own national interests.

The U.S. government is working hard through diplomatic channels to keep the present border clashes from flaring up into a major war, but its influence in both New Delhi and Karachi is weaker now than at any time in the last decade.

Moscow and Peking have also issued statements against settling the dispute by force of arms, without any visible effect, but a joint appeal by the big five in the Security Council is something else again. Singly, the big powers may not be able to halt this reckless nonsense, but together they could compel India and Pakistan to debate the question and maybe even to declare a cease-fire in the meantime.

One Argument

One argument for bringing Peking into the United Nations was that this would finally bring all the major nations into the Security Council, and give the world peace organization another opportunity to fulfill its original promise.

The Indian-Pakistani dispute is a clear case for urgent action under the Charter. Article One states that the purposes of the United Nations are "to maintain international peace and security, and to that end, to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace ..."

The five permanent members of the Security Council were given this special status precisely because it was assumed that they had special responsibilities and the necessary authority to carry out this principle. Accordingly, if the UN is to make the "new beginning" everybody has been talking about, here is a good place to begin.

Aside from the U.S. treaty obligations, Moscow and Peking have sound national reasons for avoiding a war on the Indian sub-continent. Peking is backing Pakistan, though not to the extent that Moscow is arming India, but they have enough trouble with one another on the Sino-Soviet border without running the risk of getting more deeply involved on opposite sides of an Indian-Pakistani conflict.

The United States, Britain, and France obviously have nothing to gain in such a war, but in the last quarter of a century all the great powers have drifted into the habit of ignoring the Charter and failing to co-operate for peace, even when it was in their common interests to do so.

Fortunately, with mainland China now represented at the UN there is a quick and private channel of communication among the major nations. Also, President Nixon has established the means of direct communication with Premier Chou En-lai in Peking, and the political advantages of stopping this war are obvious.

In fact, Nixon, thanks to his initiative in sending Henry Kissinger to Peking, is now in a better position to explore the possibilities of a big five appeal to the Security Council than any of the world leaders. It is easier for him to address both Moscow and Peking on this emergency than for Moscow to approach Peking or vice-versa.

When the Pakistani Ambassador in Washington, Gen. Mohammad Raza, was asked by reporters how imminent war was with India, he replied: "The war is on, it is not imminent." And since New Delhi was at the same time claiming that the Indian air force had shot down three Pakistani planes near Calcutta, time is now the urgent question.

Other questions of who forced the refugees out of Pakistan into India, and how much military support is being given to the anti-Pakistani government forces in East Bengal can be debated later. The need now is for a combined effort to stop the fighting and bring both India and Pakistan before the Security Council to show cause why they are once more threatening the peace of the area.

This is not the sort of appeal the Indian and Pakistani governments can ignore, no matter how much their peoples are crying for blood. Prime Minister Gandhi is repeating the old discredited excuse that she does not know how much longer she can hold back her people, but she is not in a position to brush aside an appeal from the Big Five.

Superior Forces

India has an arsenal of her own, and her organized military forces are undoubtedly superior for the time being, but she relies on the Soviet Union for many military supplies, and on other countries for economic aid, both of which can be cut off.

Here again, the forgotten principles of the United Nations are relevant, for Article Two of the Charter states specifically that "all members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means ... shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state ... (and) shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action."

There is nothing out of date about these treaty obligations. They are binding on India and Pakistan as well as on the Big Five. They have simply been forgotten, and the time for the Big Five to revive them, with a good chance of success, is obviously now.

Better to Bury Than Burn

I have lived in Victoria for three years now and every year at this time I am dismayed at the sight of Victorians burning their leaves. The air pollution this produces is nauseating. For a populace which screams loudly at some of the major polluters of this city it is hypocritical.

May I suggest that instead of the leaves being burned that they be plowed into the garden because they make excellent fertilizer and could save the gardener substantial amounts. This is "nature's way" and a chance for an ecologically minded citizen to do his part! — John E. Price, 537 E. Burnside Rd.

Poppy Day

On behalf of the Poppy Day Campaign Committee, may I express our thanks to you, and through your paper to the many volunteer workers and particularly the citizens of Greater Victoria, who assisted in making our 1971 campaign 100 per cent successful in achieving our goal of $16,000.

Our objective could not have been reached without the publicity given by your paper, the radio and television stations. — W. C. Wilson, manager, Poppy Day Campaign 1971.

Swimmers Threatened

All your readers must now be fully aware of the pollution threat to Thetis Lake.

What will this pollution mean to the people of Greater Victoria? For example, to the swimmers?

During the past season, on many occasions, the parking space at Thetis Park was filled to overflowing; cars lined the road leading in from the highway and, along the highway itself, cars were parked for over a quarter of a mile.

If the health authorities have to declare Thetis unfit for bathing, along with so many of the local beaches, what will that do to Elk-Beaver? — M. C. Melburn, 2397 Heron.

Unions Take the Lead In Quebec Confrontation

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL — Labor unions have taken centre stage for the present at least in the long struggle over the shape of Quebec's future.

The impact and implications of extremist political trends and radical attitudes within unions are stressed by some veteran observers of the labor scene.

They say an "intelligentsia" of the union movement, having despaired of finding a rightful place within the present system, is trying to overthrow the system and to sell the idea of socialist state structures to the workers.

Authorities had long braced themselves for trouble from the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec in October — marking the first anniversary of the Quebec kidnap-murder crisis—but the most spectacular events occurred instead in the union sphere.

Authorities also knew long in advance that various elements would join together in a "common front" demonstration Oct. 16, anniversary of the invocation of the War Measures Act, which was also protested last year.

Head-bashing

But that demonstration was generally regarded as a flop, even though it was coupled with protest over proposed provincial school legislation involving the explosive question of language.

It was a violently different matter on the night of Oct. 29 when many thousands joined in a union "solidarity" protest march arising from a lockout and strike at La Presse, North America's biggest French-language daily newspaper.

This turned into a head-bashing collision between police and marchers only a few blocks from the separate St. Denis Street headquarters of the Confederation of National Trade Unions and the Quebec Federation of Labor, whose affiliate unions have a membership of roughly 500,000.

Louis Laberge, the 48-year-old one-time machinist who heads the QFL and has usually been tagged a moderate, condemned authorities and police and declared that unions were being forced into law-breaking actions.

After a subsequent Montreal Forum rally, called by Michel Chartrand, CNTU officer and social activist, Mr. Laberge attacked Prime Minister Trudeau, Premier Robert Bourassa and Mayor Jean Drapeau as "senseless" in an interview following a fire-and-brimstone speech.

"Why are they forcing us to get a bit desperate?" demanded Mr. Laberge, whose QFL begins its annual convention Tuesday. "Why are they forcing us to align ourselves with anybody that will support our cause?

". . . At the moment there does not seem to be any other avenue but to co-operate with those who believe in separatism. Because they are the only people who believe in social justice as much as we do."

The union discontent, plus several minor FLQ bombings, created a somewhat bleak atmosphere at the beginning of a winter which is expected to bring further economic hardship to a Quebec already tried by unemployment and a low level of investment.

As a measure of the complicated nature of Quebec affairs, however, Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois which wants a sovereign Quebec within a Canadian common market, refused to join the solidarity march, though some of his followers took part.

'Ranting'

Mr. Levesque, indeed, said he knew the demonstration would turn violent and he condemned the "rantings" of union leaders who were "alienating workers politically." He referred specifically to young people:

"They are wasting their time and ruining their future by their lack of faith in democratic institutions to achieve political ends. Those who are inciting youngsters to behave violently have a great load on their conscience."

The Laberge-Levesque statements, taken together, illuminate somewhat a chaotic picture in which no one can say with certainty how many in the broad union membership are in step with their leaders. One source stressed that a turnout of 12,000 persons is not great in a city of 2.8 million.

Abbe Gerard Dion, 58-year-old social reformer and labor professor at Laval University, listed in an interview four "existing and increasing" trends in the union movement:

1. Politicization; 2. radicalization; 3. contempt for all rules, including labor legislation; 4. use of violence.

Unions can, do and should take part in political activity within the system, said Father Dion, but the sort of action proposed by the "intelligentsia" would wreck present union concepts.

Another veteran authority said some officials of the "common front" including the CNTU, the QFL and the 70,000-member Quebec Teachers Corporation think of themselves as a sort of "parallel government."

They take the attitude that government whether federal, provincial or municipal—is in collusion with capitalists, so they write it off, said this source. They feel they are the ones who reflect the will of ordinary people, the workers.

Why did La Presse's lieup bring out far bigger crowds than those attracted by demonstrations against the War Measures Act and highly controversial school legislation?

"La Presse was used by the union leaders as a symbol of oppression," said the authority.

"There was La Presse locking out French-Canadian workers. The union leaders grasped the issue because the owner of the newspaper, Paul Desmarais, who also owns Power Corporation, represents big business in the biggest sense of the term. This line of thinking holds it is not a matter of anglophone or francophone, whoever is the owner, oppression exists. Besides, I think Desmarais decided to do certain things whether or not he got agreement with the unions."

Union leaders Marcel Pepin and Michel Chartrand confer at recent rally

It is common talk in union circles, too, that CNTU President Marcel Pepin, 45, and Mr. Laberge have been pushed to ever-more radical positions by ambitious activists behind them. Both their headquarters were occupied on separate occasions this year when clamoring union adherents staged sit-ins.

Membership drop

Also Quebec union membership dropped 30,000 to 587,000 last year. Prince Edward Island was the only other province that did not show an increase.

The CNTU and the QFL have often fought jurisdictional battles.

In one view, union leaders are trying to heap all the blame on government and industrial management for the all-round failure to find innovations capable of coping with the magnitude of change.

It appears that small, determined and well-coached groups have been able at times to impose their will on such huge federations as the CNTU and the QFL, or at least their leaders.

Father Dion, author and long-time editor of two labor-oriented periodicals, said union trends can be explained by the political and economic context in which unions operate.

Repressed during the authoritarian regime of the late premier Maurice Duplessis, unions came into their own in the Quiet Revolution beginning in 1960 "we saw the unionization of public servants, Quebec Hydro, engineers and many other groups."

"It was a time of great expectations. Everybody expected the union movement would do everything. Naturally when you expect too much from somebody or some institution, things they cannot deliver, then you create a kind of disillusion. Being sensitive to this, leaders of the union movement decided to try to answer all needs."

Unions gradually moved outside the strict field of labor relations into politics and "when you are in politics, you use labor relations for political purposes," said Father Dion.

"For example, given the objectives of the union leaders, a simple case like that of La Presse, which is a case of technological change—something which happened at The Globe and Mail in Toronto seven years ago is politicized."

The union movement, striving to be effective, has accepted the help of certain elements who joined not for the sake of the workers but to promote their own revolutionary ideology and radicalization, Father Dion added.

He stressed, however, that CNTU and Quebec Teachers Corporation policy documents envisaging socialist structures in Quebec have yet to be approved by any convention vote of the broad membership.

The CNTU document, with the blessing of a five-man executive committee and a 200-member council, will come before the 225,000-member organization's convention next June.

'Kind of Socialism'

Father Dion said the QTC document was placed five times before teacher-delegates at a convention, being accepted the fifth time round only as a working paper for distribution and study.

The document advocates a kind of socialism "which was proposed, let's say, before the First World War by European anarchistic syndicalists," said Father Dion.

"That kind of proposal is no longer supported by real socialists. . . ."

Father Dion said it is highly important for the union members and the public to remember that "our industrial relations system as well as our juridical union system lie upon a concept of unionism here in Canada and in North America."

"If labor unions change their nature, you also have to change the juridical system, the legal union system. You cannot play in two dramas at the same time. . . .

"If the unions accept the proposals of the intelligentsia, it means they become anarchist, outside society, proposing radical changes in the system.

"I am not against unions taking political action. I feel they have to. But there are many kinds of political action and some kinds, such as anarchistic syndicalism, are absolutely incompatible with our system."

One CNTU insider told a reporter separatism is not mentioned in his federation's document and he himself does not believe Quebec will break away from Canada. But Father Dion contended separatism is implied.

"You see there a strategy of the intelligentsia," he added. "You do not present it as separatism, because you know it would be rejected immediately. But it is implied you cannot realize anything in those documents if you are not a separate state."

Father Dion said he felt confident the proposal would be defeated by the CNTU membership and he estimated that 90 per cent of teachers would reject their executive's paper if consulted.

The Blinkered Rhodesian View

By ANTHONY LEWIS

INYANGA, Rhodesia — It is early summer in Rhodesia; the rains have started. There are wildflowers in the long grass, and in the eastern highlands the woods are yellow with the flowers of acacia mimosa. Down in the valleys, in the orchards, the peaches are ripening.

At a roadside fruit stand a sign says there are peaches for sale in the packing shed. It is a long building, with a dozen Africans nestling the peaches into special boxes for export. An elderly white man, evidently the owner of the farm, is in charge.

* * *

A color picture of Queen Elizabeth II is tacked up at one end of the shed, one of Prince Philip at the other. The farmer must feel the ties to England still. Is he hoping that a permanent settlement with Britain will soon emerge?

"Yes," the farmer says — but he sounds doubtful.

"It would make all the difference to us if sanctions ended. We could sell our fruit at a price.

"But we do not want majority rule, we won't have it. One or two of them may be all right, but most of them" — he waved his arm disdainfully at the packers — "these fellows are terrible."

Afterward, a woman who knows this country well explains that the emotion in the farmer's voice was not the hatred it seemed, but more likely frustration.

The Africans he had working for him were from the country, uneducated, unreliable. He taught them how to handle the peaches, but probably they mixed up the sizes or bruised the fruit or didn't show up for work.

White Rhodesians of all kinds make the argument of African incompetence when they explain why they are so totally opposed to majority rule in the foreseeable future. Even those who say that Africans should have better education and job opportunities tend to be skeptical about their ability to keep up, to run a business or a country.

Of course, the economic motive should not be overlooked. A Scottish carpenter who came to Rhodesia after the war and can afford servants and a house in the country is not an unbiased witness on the question of maintaining the Rhodesian way of life.

But white Rhodesians are not consciously evil any more than most people. They are desperately sincere when they say that the country would be ruined if turned over now to untrained Africans.

There is real passion when they talk about their fathers and themselves having created Rhodesia's real wealth — the farms and the mines. And there was courage in standing up to world economic pressure when men as supposedly shrewd as Harold Wilson gave them weeks, not months, to survive.

The trouble is that the white Rhodesian belief, however sincere, is so imperfect, so blinkered a view. To start with, it ignores the fact of massive discrimination that faces any African of ability. In a country that spends about as much every year for education in the white 5 per cent of the population as in the black 95 per cent, who can say what the Africans would do if given equal opportunity?

* * *

Or consider what happens to those who do get higher education. A lecturer at the university, white, told of a young African who never had a chance at secondary school but managed to teach himself enough to pass the examinations for university admission. He was slow at first, then detectably better every month. Now he is a self-made triumph — but there is little chance of using that ability in the kind of work open to Africans.

It is true that Rhodesia now is a remarkably efficient country, well-run in terms of services. The telephones work, the streets are wide and clean, the roads are among the best in Africa.

But suppose the whites are right, and African rule would mean less efficiency, more confusion and corruption. Does it follow that five million Africans should continue to be ruled by 250,000 whites forever? No. There are things in life, in moral life, more important than having the trains run on time.

It may well be that German businessmen and trade unionists are more efficient than their British equivalents. But no one would think that such a comparison could justify putting selected Germans in charge of British industry. The British are entitled to make Britain the kind of country they want, even though some outsider may be able to show that they would really be more comfortable if it were run another way.

That is the canker in white dominance of an overwhelmingly black country. Even if one assumes that the white Rhodesians can make the country more productive for all, and agrees that it is their country as well as the blacks, they can impose their rule not by any moral superiority but only by naked force.

The French Connection

By RUSSELL BAKER

Many persons have been surprised recently by news stories indicating that the French are deeply involved in the international heroin traffic. Those who keep an eye on criminal circles, however, have been aware for some time that the dreaded French underworld organization known as the "Ma Fia" has been tightening its dirty grasp on the vice of five continents.

Little is known about the Ma Fia, because of the code of silence ("Ze Code de la Taciturnite"), which all new members are required to sign in menu ink on the day they are initiated. Punishment for violating the code is swift and harsh. When, for example, Armand ("Greasy Jake") Vieux-Hochfort told Toulon police where they could recover a hijacked shipment of Dijon mustard, Ma Fia hoodlums poured all his mineral water into the Seine and secretly refilled the bottles with tap water.

In the United States the Ma Fia is organized in 12 tightly knit groups in which personal relationships are remarkably like those in a big, highly disciplined family. These groups are called "plumes."

The biggest and richest, covering Brooklyn and New Jersey, is the infamous Plume de Ma Tante, headed by Pierre Bouboulet. It has been warring recently with the Plume de Mon Oncle, which governs the Hoboken and Manhattan territories.

Just two weeks ago, three members of Bouboulet's plume were trapped in an east side restaurant and served garlic sauce on their mousses. New York police say the job bore all the earmarks of a Jean-Pierre ("The Chef") Flaubert operation.

"The Chef," who earned his nickname years ago by inviting 17 members of the Chicago plume to dinner in a garage and serving them poisoned mushrooms, has been arrested many times but never convicted.

Life in the Ma Fia can be extremely dangerous, since there are 17 specific offences for which plume captains may order executions.

When a member commits one of the capital offences the plume captain goes to the cash register and asks his wife for fifty cents in dimes. She says, "I just gave you fifty cents last week. How do you expect me to make ends meet in this business if all you do while I sit up here keeping the help from robbing us blind is loaf around at the bar drinking up the best wine and taking fifty cents to call up those bums you run around with?"

He explains that he has got to telephone the top five lieutenants of the plume and tell them to come to a judgment. His wife tells him to get his hand out of the cash register or she will give him a judgment on the back of his head.

If the plume captain can get to the cash register when his wife is reprimanding the bartender, the judgment is made and the violator is invited to dinner. After a magnificent hot hors d'oeuvre and a soup that is superb beyond description, the entree is brought in. It is a plate of hot dogs and beans. The judged man customarily blanches and mumbles "sacre bleu!" because he knows that when the plume captain serves hot dogs and beans it means that the guest has been doomed.

Most members of the Ma Fia, of course, dream of the day when they can give up crime and go legitimate. Much of their ill-gotten gain goes to send their children to the best Ivy League schools where, the parents hope, they will meet and marry children of the American aristocracy able to help them get high-paying jobs in war contracts, the manufacture of defective consumer goods or the exploitation of paupers.

As Michel St. Boeuf le Grand, captain of the California plume, said in a recent appearance with David Frost, "the rewards of crime today are so slight, when we compare them to the income that may be compiled from merely idling with a telephone in an office building, that it has become an absurd career. Even the young man with the true criminal temperament may easily satisfy it in some other endeavor with the cover of legitimacy. That explains, of course, why there is no Ma Fia. It is nothing but a ridiculous invention of the sensationalist media to belittle and besmirch Frenchmen."

This is the same St. Boeuf le Grand whose father was convicted for putting saccharine tablets into the 1934 Bordeaux wine crop. Times do change.

Op-Rec Forces Halt on Pool Plans

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

DUNCAN — City council's plan to build a swimming pool has been abandoned for the immediate future.

The proposal was shot down by Operation Recreation Saturday when the group, which was formed to raise funds for a pool, advised council that they will not release the $85,000 raised until the pool is covered.

Council said they cannot go ahead with the pool now because they were counting on Op-Rec's trust fund for construction of the first phase.

FIRST PHASE

To build the first phase (cost estimated at $175,000) council planned to borrow $90,000 through the federal-provincial employment loans program and utilize Op-Rec's funds.

With these monies along with a rabate of $60,000 for 75 per cent of the labor costs, council estimated that $30,000 would have been left to be paid for by the taxpayers.

Mayor Jim Quaife said this would not have involved a tax increase because the funds would have come out of the city's capital recreation fund.

Council planned to build the 25-metre, six-lane recreational pool complete with a small children's training pool by the end of May and cover it later.

Op-Rec chairman Pat Moore said today that his group would not be prepared to release the funds before financing for the second phase is secured.

NO ALTERNATIVE

"We don't feel the money was given to Op-Rec for anything other than a proper indoor pool," he emphasized. "When it is covered or to be covered we will be prepared to contribute."

Quaife said council has had no alternative but to cancel any further plans regarding the pool because of Op-Rec's decision not to release the funds.

"I am not prepared to say if Op-Rec is right or wrong in their action," he added. "I think that will be up to public opinion."

Quaife feels that council has done its best in trying to promote the suggestion by a group of ratepayers that the pool be constructed in Duncan rotary park "as strongly as we know how. There is no way we can proceed any further without Op-Rec and Op-Rec has said no."

Quaife said he had been assured by the provincial government that council's letter of mid-November had been accepted as a fornial application for funds through the loans program.

The mayor hasn't given up on the idea of a pool in the area though. He said if he is re-elected to council in the Dec. 11 elections he is going to insist that a joint meeting between Duncan and North Cowichan councils, their recreation commissions and possibly the pool study committee be called in January "so that a definite plan for a pool can be arrived at."

The pool study committee, which was formed under the suggestion of Op-Rec, is comprised of three representatives from Duncan, three from North Cowichan and two from Op-Rec. Their responsibility is to act as an advisory committee to the joint recreation commission.

MORE PEOPLE

Chairman Charles Rowley said he is "relieved" that Op-Rec made their stand and council is not able to continue with the pool project.

Rowley feels the pool should be constructed and financed by more people than just the Duncan residents because "They would have been biting off an awful large financial burden. It won't be a burden if shared by a larger area."

Rowley said Duncan was working at recreation in "quite the opposite way that it should be done. Recreation should be shared on a broader base."

Rowley said that his committee, which is newly appointed and has never really had a chance to function yet, plans to call a public meeting in the new year to call for briefs from groups, organizations and individuals regarding the requirements for a pool in this area. From these briefs the location and type of pool will be determined and then recommended to the joint recreation committee.

"I hope council's pool plan isn't going to become an election issue," Rowley said. "People tried to take advantage of the federal-provincial loan. Let's forget it now and start off after the elections in a reasonable manner."

Ald. Martin Lukaitis, who headed the group of ratepayers that suggested Duncan built the pool on its own, is irate over Op-Rec's decision.

OPPOSED PROJECT

He feels that the pool would have been a successful project if "people had devoted as much time to furthering the cause instead of working to destroy it."

Ald. Allan Kerr, who has not been in attendance at the latest council meetings due to illness but through the press has opposed the project because of the high operating costs that will be involved, said today that he thinks Op-Rec made a "Wise decison."

He says the pool should not be a solo effort but should be carried out by the "trinity: Duncan, North Cowichan and possibly the Cowichan Indian Band."

Kerr said the project was being run by "Enthusiasm rather than by logic. The decision is all for the best of the taxpayers because they would have been saddled with an enormous millrate, no matter what the mayor says, for the high operating costs."

Quebec in Five Years: Three Speakers, Three Different Views

TORONTO (CP) — Three political spokesmen, recalling the crisis in Quebec a year ago, looked to the future of the province Sunday and saw its relationship to the rest of Canada in differing perspectives.

Parti Quebecois leader Rene Levesque said the province should be ready to secede within five years; Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said separatism is not the answer, and State Secretary Gerard Pelletier defended the federal stand during the crisis.

All spoke of the aftermath of the insurrection, which culminated in the murder of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte after he and British Trade Commissioner James Cross were kidnapped.

Mr. Levesque decried the War Measures Act—invoked during the kidnappings—which gave police extraordinary powers of arrest and detention.

He said the United States had two assassinations—President John F. Kennedy in Texas and his brother, Senator Robert Kennedy in California—"and neither state was put under martial law."

SAYS HYSTERIA FANNED

"England went through a war and no one was put under martial law," he said. "Why did everyone lose their heads over a couple of dozen (FLQ) terrorists?"

He also said hysteria was fanned by government manipulation of the media, which he said should be under community control rather than in the hands of a few powerful people.

"Why should a whole town be under the sway of some Liberal jerk who happens to have the newspaper or the TV channel?"

He said if a provincial government is democratically elected, any more towards independence should be respected by Ottawa.

"I don't think Canada would call out the army," he said.

If secession took place, he suggested there could be a type of common market between Quebec and the rest of Canada.

Mr. Pelletier defended the implementation of the War Measures Act, while conceding that the act might have been a contributing factor in the murder of Mr. Laporte. However, he added:

"I think the measures were justified because of the climate and the danger of an escalation."

ACCUSES POLICE

He accused the Quebec police of naivete, which he said was one reason why the act was invoked.

"The police knew precious little about the FLQ. How can you judge police reports that are maybe yes, maybe no.

"The police were, let's face it, very naive."

There was no alternative, he said, but to implement the act. Mr. Choquette took issue with Mr. Levesque's suggestion of a common market.

Under such a scheme, he said, both countries would have to have a common monetary policy so that one would not be trying to fight inflation while the other sought to stimulate its economy.

In determining such a policy, Quebec, with 25 per cent of the population, would be constantly overshadowed by Canada with 75 per cent, he said.

"One can imagine that the 75 per cent will, when the negotiation takes place on monetary policy, look foremost to the policies most advantageous to them."

Wilson Under Guard

BOSTON (AP) — Former prime minister Harold Wilson of Britain was under police guard briefly here after he was disrupted at a news conference by 10 men who said they were members of the political arm of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, Sinn Fein.

Four Boston policemen guarded Wilson at a reception following the Sunday news conference where the 10 challenged him to debate the use of British troops in Northern Ireland and the internment of political prisoners.

Led by a man who identified himself as Thomas MacGiolla, head of Sinn Fein, the 10 heckled Wilson when he rebuffed their challenge, and the news conference was cut short.

MacGiolla told reporters he was in the U.S. from Dublin to gain support for the IRA. The other men identified themselves as local supporters of the IRA.

At the news conference, Wilson said it will be a long time before Northern Ireland knows peace. The present situation in Northern Ireland is "so tense it could be absolutely dreadful if we didn't have troops there," he added.

Bright

Sales only marginally higher than in the half-year 12 months ago are reported by T. G. Bright and Co. Ltd. for the period to Sept. 30, with share earnings identical at 27 cents.

The 5 per cent rise was $260,651 worth, to bring sales to 5 million, while net earnings were $269,125 compared with $267,281.

Working capital rose from $6.1 million in the period a year ago to $6.29 million, down $145,797 from the beginning of the year.

Brunswick

Shareholders of Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corp. will be asked at a Dec. 20 meeting to approve a refinancing plan.

The company said operations during 1971 will show "a serious loss" but refinancing, and other steps, should lead to a modest net profit by 1972.

Reorganization calls for exchange of $49.5 million first mortgage bonds and $500,000 preferred shares, all held by Noranda Mines, into common shares. Additional common shares will be offered at $25.0 each on a rights offering.

Calgary

Units combining class A shares and series A sinking fund debentures are offered by Calgary Cable TV Ltd., according to a prospectus submitted to B.C. Securities Commission.

The issue consists of 2,400 units, each comprised of 100 class A shares at $2.50 each, and $500 principal amount of 9½ per cent debentures, for a total value of $750 a unit.

Underwriters are Nesbitt Thompson Securities Ltd.

Pinex

An exploratory drilling program on its Nevada property has indicated additional ore reserves, reports Pinex Mines Ltd.

Total reserves are now described as being 800,000 tons of a value of $40 a ton, up $10 from the previous estimate.

The open pit property has had 11 holes driven, with assays showing better than average copper-silver values as drilling continues.

Credit Union To Build New Offices

Victoria members of the largest B.C. industrial credit union expect to hold their March annual meeting in a new building opposite Victoria Press Ltd. in the 2600 block Douglas.

A new two-storey structure financed entirely by STRY Credit Union gets off the ground next week with demolition of the house adjoining the south side of the group's existing office at 2616½ Douglas.

Each of eight offices will cover 1,000 square feet, with the ground floor office adjoining Douglas to be occupied by the credit union and the others available for rental.

The 40-by-100 foot structure will be built of concrete block on a concrete slab, finished in stucco with wood and aluminum trim, and have off-street parking along the north side.

Street railwaymen, then employed by B.C. Electric Co., got their first credit union charter in Vancouver in 1940 with 12 charter members and assets of $40.

Today there are assets of $6 million and about 5,000 members in B.C. Hydro operations all over the province, including 500 Victoria members who formed their branch in October 1948.

Operations began on a card table set up in the driver's bull pen in the former BCE headquarters at Pandora and Douglas. Membership today includes drivers and others employed by Pacific Stage Lines, Greyhound and Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

New Bonds Issue For $350 Millions

OTTAWA (CP) — The government today offered investors 4.36 and 5.87 per cent interest on two new medium- and long-term bond issues designed to raise $350 million.

The money is to be used in part to pay off some six-per-cent federal government bonds coming due on Dec. 15, and to help the Canadian National Railways retired 5.5-per-cent bonds also maturing on the same date.

Today's bond issue was in two maturities:

—Two year, 11½-month bonds due Dec. 1, 1974, bearing interest at 4.25 per cent and offered at 99.7 per cent of face value, giving investors a yield of 4.36 per cent a year when held to maturity.

—Eight-year bonds due Dec. 15, 1979, bearing interest at 5.75 per cent and offered at 99.25 per cent of face value, giving investors a yield of 5.87 per cent a year when held to maturity.

Of the $350 million to be raised, the Bank of Canada has agreed to take at least $150 million.

The government will redeem $285 million of six-per-cent bonds maturing Dec. 15 and make advances to the CNR for the retirement of $178.4 million worth of 5.5-per-cent bonds.

Today's bond offering totalling $350 million is less than the cash required to redeem the $463 million of government and CNR bonds coming due. The balance needed will come from the federal government's ready cash, which has been running high since the Canada Savings Bond issue earlier this month.

PWA Buys Truck Firm

EDMONTON (CP) — The purchase of Monarch Transport Ltd., an Edmonton trucking firm, by Pacific Western Airlines was announced here. The purcahse price was not disclosed.

PWA president D. N. Watson said the acquisition is a further step in the airline's plan for providing more frequent and improved northern freight services.

Monarch will be merged with Byers Transport Ltd., PWA's trucking subsidiary, to form a new firm to be named Pacific Western Trucking Division.

Monarch employs about 35 people and operates about 50 pieces of equipment. Byers, acquired by PWA in February, 1969, has about 200 employees and 200 pieces of equipment, and operates Truckers Terminal Distribution Co., whose Edmonton facilities are used by some 39 different carriers.

David J. Burnett, Byers vice-president and general manager, said some $700,000 to $1 million will be spent during the next year in merging the two firms. The new company would continue to use Byers facilities in Edmonton and retain Monarch terminals in Fort McMurray, Alta., and Fort Smith in the Northwest Territories.

Job 'Export' Predicted

DETROIT (CP) — Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux said today that if the U.S. 10-per-cent import surtax "remains in effect, we in Canada will be exporting jobs—not products."

"We will lose them at a time when Canadian unemployment is dangerously high," he said, "persistently higher than in the United States."

Cadieux was speaking to the Economic Club of Detroit. Text of his remarks was released to the press in advance.

"A weakened Canadian economy is not good for the United States," he said. "We are our best customer."

Jail Riot Deaths Mean 6 More Years

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Kingston penitentiary prisoner Robert Robidoux, 18, was sentenced Monday to six years for manslaughter in the deaths of two fellow-convicts during a riot at the maximum security institution in April.

Robidoux, originally charged with non-capital murder in the death of Bertrand Robert, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of manslaughter. Convict Brian Ensor was killed and Robert died later in hospital of beatings suffered during the final hours of the four-day prison uprising.

Eleven other Kingston prisoners were sentenced to jail terms ranging from three to 15 years after pleading guilty to manslaughter charges Nov. 22.

Is Your Breath What It Used To Be?

Bad breath has a number of causes. Age is a factor—so are dentures, caps, bridgework, gum trouble and so on. But Steri/sol Oral Antiseptic does much to control "aging breath" problems. You see, Steri/sol is the only mouthwash with Hexetidine—the powerful germ killer that deprives mouth bacteria of thiamine. Without thiamine, the mouth-germs that cause bad breath cannot live.

When you are worried about "aging breath", rinse with Steri/sol. Steri/sol is specially designed to combat these particular breath problems. The germ killing action of Hexetidine starts immediately, and within 15 minutes up to 95% of bad breath bacteria are eliminated. And because the Hexetidine in Steri/sol clings to mouth and gum tissues, the bactericidal action keeps on working up to 10 hours to help you feel really sure about your breath.

Put Steri/sol to work on bad breath right away. It does cost more than you might usually pay for a mouthwash, but then Steri/sol is not your usual mouthwash. Sold only at pharmacies.

Troops Grab Key Suspects

BELFAST (CP) — British troops grabbed four terrorist suspects high on their wanted list and netted an arms cache in raids on Roman Catholic homes in Belfast early today.

Spokesmen said five other persons had been arrested during the weapons raids in the Ballymacarrett district.

The soldiers uncovered eight rifles, three pistols, a sten-gun, a sub-machine-gun, nearly 3,000 rounds of ammunition and more than 20 pounds of gelignite.

Northern Ireland generally was quiet today following a bloody weekend in which three persons were killed and more than 30 explosions set off in terrorist attacks by the Irish Republican Army.

SEEN AS REPLY

The upsurge in IRA attacks after a comparative lull in the last two weeks was seen as the organization's response to British assertions that the troops had the terrorists on the run.

In Londonderry, bomb explosions damaged a government health ministry office early today and a car showroom and telephone exchange building Sunday night.

In the Catholic Bogside area of Londonderry, troops used tear gas and rubber bullets Sunday night to disperse a crowd of stone-throwing youths. Three persons were reported arrested in another clash in the city between troops and a crowd which tried to break down a wire barrier.

Jumbo Record

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — The second Boeing 747 jumbo jet ordered by El Al, the Israel airline, arrived on its delivery flight from the United States Sunday, after what was described as the world's longest non-stop flight for this type of aircraft. The 7,270-mile flight from Seattle to Lod International Airport, with double crews, 113 passengers and 18 tons of freight, took 12 hours 40 minutes.

HOUSE TRIES AGAIN FOR TAX BILL PLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — House leaders from all parties were expected to huddle today to negotiate the fate of the government tax bill.

Since the Commons began debating the bill in September, government spokesmen have reiterated their aim of getting the bill through Parliament by the end of the year.

But progress has been slow. After three months the Commons, sitting in committee to study the bill section-by-section, has given approval to only 75 of the bill's 333 provisions, many of them minor.

New Democrats and Social Crediters probably would settle for government amendments in a few key areas.

Both parties want more generous tax treatment of co-operatives and credit unions, beyond concessions made in two series of government amendments introduced over the last two months.

And the NDP has supported the Conservatives in demanding a lighter proposal for taxing basic livestock herds than is contained in the bill.

WANT BILL SPLIT

But the Conservatives say they want the bill split.

They would co-operate in getting it through the Commons and passed by Christmas if the government would agree that only popular measures such as personal tax rate reductions and increased basic exemptions would be implemented on Jan. 1.

Other measures—which the Conservatives maintain are too complicated to deal with by then—would be proclaimed sometime in the new year following a enabling motion passed in the House.

Tough Calgary Defence Stymies Argonauts

Argo's Hopes Evaporate With Late-Game Miscues

VANCOUVER — The diminishing numbers on the big, digital clock at the south end of Empire Stadium were spelling it out, with each flicker, the nearness of the requiem for Toronto Argonauts.

Then an angel of mercy appeared; but alas, only briefly; and the dirge tolled on.

The Calgary Stampeders were leading Toronto 14-11 and there was only 2.29 . . . 2.28 . . . 2.27 . . . 2.26 left to play when quarterback Jerry Keeling of the Stamps lofted a high pass downfield in an attempt to get the Cowboys out of a bind.

Defensive back Dick Thornton of the Argos looked heavenward, recognized the signs, and said himself "baby, this is it." He gathered in the underthrown ball at his own 45-yard line, and wasn't stopped until he met Keeling at the Calgary 11.

Surely, now at long last in what had to be a defensive gem, the Argos had it made. Faith suddenly had been restored.

But no, it was not to be in this Grey Cup game, the first on synthetic turf. Because just two plays later, the Argos' Leon McQuay slipped in a puddle of water, slammed his elbow on the ground, dropped the football, and the Stampeders had it back.

Then in a bizarre final 49 seconds the Cowboys preserved that tenuous margin and obtained their first Grey Cup win since 1948.

That final fateful minute saw Harry Abofs of the Argos, in attempting to play a punt, kick the ball (deliberately, the officials said), out of bounds. The rule book said Calgary's ball. Game over. And the Argo players' bench over, too. Coach Leo Cahill took the decision unkindly.

Too Content to Settle For a Tie

If the Argos hadn't blown a gift chance, they had done the next best thing. They had kissed a possible victory away by not trying for the touchdown, being apparently content to take the tie then overtime.

"McQuay was only moving into position for a field goal," Coach Leo Cahill said afterwards.

About one hour later, Keeling was being carried shoulder-high into the lobby of the Georgia, while jubilant Stamp fans were hooting "we're No. 1".

Keeling said he was "oh, so pleased," but on that last play, he threw the ball badly."

Before all that, it had been a peculiar contest, for a final between two high-scoring teams, the best in the land. There had been four giveaways on either side, and even the officials got a roasting early. From Cahill of course.

It was very early, and Keeling had dropped back to pass, when he was hit. The Argos were set to run the ball in. "Incomplete pass," ruled the official. Cahill was fuming, and, if he had seen the replay, he would have fumed more. He had a case!

Then, presto, on their next sequence, the Stamps struck gold. In six plays, covering 54 yards, Keeling hit on two passes, the last one to Herm Harrison, and Calgary led, 7-0.

Later in the first half, Keeling was to connect on two more passes in one sequence, and the Stamps were to score again, Jesse Mims doing the final, heavy bit.

In all, Keeling had six completions. There was only two more to come.

And that told it for the offence—on both clubs, practically.

For Ivan MacMillan was to get only a three-pointer for Toronto in the first half, and a single in the second half. It was a defensive lineman Roger Scales who scored their only touchdown, early in the third quarter. After a Calgary fumble.

Exciting Perhaps, But No Classic

Sure, it was a marvellous battle of defence, in the pits, by the studs, and by the defensive backs. But if it was a tense struggle, it could never by considered a classic. Exciting is the word, but that is only because it fits in with the mystique that is the Grey Cup.

For instance, on offence in that last half, the Argos managed to produce all of three first downs. Calgary just one. Call that power? It was almost a shutout for the defence.

Coach Jim Duncan of the Stamps said before the game: "We might beat Toronto bad, if we can move the ball outside." After the game, he stated: "Jim Stillwagon really hurt us on our running to the outside." The Argos, that simply, had killed the Stamp game plan.

On the other hand the Stamps stopped Toronto by containing McQuay, and quarterback Joe Theismann, and reducing Bill Symons' effectiveness to practically zero.

Defence can be that simple. Theismann had his moments, but only where it didn't hurt Calgary, in his own end; and McQuay was given a little in the hope he wouldn't take a lot. He didn't.

Unsmiling in defeat, Theissmann probably said it best of all for the Argos: "I won't say they deserved to win, because I think we deserved it just as much."

Abofs, meanwhile, protested that really he hadn't kicked the ball out of bounds; it had bounced up and hit him in the leg. "I knew the rule," he said.

But it shouldn't have bothered him, because that's big question that Cahill will be answering for a day or two, is why he didn't go for the touchdown, on second down, and the ball on the Calgary seven.

That's the mystery. The clock was in his favor then. Until McQuay fumbled.

Late Turnovers Costly to Argos

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Calgary Stampeders, inspired by a brilliant defence, have ended their long quest for a return claim on the Grey Cup.

Tough, heady and steady, the Stampeder defence defused Toronto's sometimes-explosive attack to defeat the Argonauts 14-11 and capture the Canadian Football League's historic championship trophy in an error-filled finale Sunday at Empire Stadium.

It was Stampeders' first taste of success since 1948, the year Canadian football moved towards it madcap heights because of the whoop-de-do antics of Calgary fans.

And, for the first time in 23 years, those fun-loving, stetsoned fans had something to really cheer about:

Victory . . . and a great defence.

Defence and victory went hand-in-hand because of sputtering offences that fumbled five times, gave up three interceptions and were guilty of questionable tactics.

For the 34,584 fans, the mistakes, controversy and the doubt that remained until the final play was a parlay that created an interesting afternoon.

The loss was a bitter one for the Argonauts, who had never been beaten in 10 previous Grey Cup games and who were making their first appearance in the final since 1952. The Argos had their chances but failed to capitalize on them.

When it seemed as if they might pull the game out of the fire in the waning minutes, the Argos were killed by a costly fumble and a controversial turnover.

The most disastrous fumble of Toronto's four bobbles was one by halfback Leon McQuay.

With Calgary striving to protect a 14-11 lead, defensive half Dick Thornton gave Toronto a last-ditch chance when he intercepted a Jerry Keeling pass to run the ball back 54 yards to the Calgary 11-yard line with two minutes 26 seconds remaining.

On first down, McQuay swept to the right for a four-yard gain to the Calgary seven.

Kick Out of Bounds Sealed It

McQuay was obviously to keep directly in front of the goal post, which would have enabled place-kicker Ivan MacMillan to try for the tying field goal that might have forced overtime.

Time left after McQuay's fumble: 1:53.

Toronto receiver Harry Abofs was unable to catch the ball on the fly. He caught up to the bouncing ball on about the Argo 50 and kicked it out of bounds in an effort to stop the clock.

Officials awarded the ball to Calgary, however, calling the Argos for intentionally kicking the ball out of bounds.

That sealed it for the Stamps.

End Herm Harrison caught a 14-yard pass from Keeling and halfback Jesse Mims, on a well-executed draw from six yards out, scored Calgary's touchdowns. Both were converted by Larry Robinson.

Defensive guard Roger Scales, latching on to a lateral from fumble - recovering Joe Vijuk, scored the Toronto touchdown on a 38-yard run. The 19-year-old MacMillan kicked the convert and added a field goal and a single to account for Toronto's other points.

Since Scales enabled Toronto's defence to get in on the scoring act, MacMillan's single and field goal represented the whole sum of Argonauts' offensive output. Four points!

Cowboys Kept Pressure On Joe

The Stampeder defence, r Wayne

sparked by linebacker Wayne Harris and defensive ends Craig Koinzan and Dick Suderman, dominated the game. Koinzan and Suderman were outstanding in neutralizing the rollout and option threats of Toronto quarterback Joe Theismann.

Koinzan was particularly effective with his penetration, and was credited with making eight individual tackles. Suderman and Harris, named the game's top performers, "also helped keep Theismann under constant pressure.

Tribute must also be heaped on the Argo defenders. Although stung by Calgary's first-half touchdowns, the Argo defence came through in great style in the second half by restricting the Stampeder offence to one first down.

Defensive end Larry Brame, with eight tackles and two assists, safety Marv Luster and Jim Stillwagon were particularly outstanding on a Toronto defence that picked off all three of the game's interceptions.

It was obvious that Calgary had the answer to Theismann's rollout threats and to McQuay's explosiveness.

But Theismann and coach Leo Cahill failed to combat that lass by switching to a passing attack.

Theismann hit on eight of 14 pass attempts but seemed almost reluctant to test Calgary's zone defence with short passes, considered the most effective answer to the defensive pattern.

Early in the third quarter, McQuay carried for eight yards on a first down. Theismann (or coach Cahill) ignored what seemed to be an obvious ground thrust for the required two yards and another first down. Instead, Theismann fired a pass to Mike Eben. It went incomplete, and the Argos were forced to kick on third down.

Then, with less than four minutes to play and the Argos scrimmaging from their own 33-yard line, Toronto required one foot on third down. Theismann went in, presumably to attempt a quarterback sneak, but quick-kicked instead.

While the Argos did get their hands on the ball later, the 12-inch try for a first down seemed an excellent gamble.

Or it could be that the Argos simply were paying their respects to the Calgary defence.

Nothing Surprising From Argos' Corner

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — "Toronto didn't surprise me with their offence," said Calgary's winning Grey Cup coach Jim Duncan here Sunday.

"They stuck pretty well to what we expected, and didn't show us any new plays."

Which, in the eyes of Duncan, made Calgary's 14-11 victory over Toronto Argunauts "a great defensive game."

Key to the Stamp defence "was to stop Joe Theismann," he explained.

"They moved the ball, but not with any degree of consistency," he said between sips of champagne in the happy dressing room following Sunday's Canadian Football League final at Empire Stadium.

"They stopped Toronto's sweep, and contained (quarterback Joe) Theismann," he went on. Koinzan twice threw Theismann for 11-yard losses.

On Toronto's big chance with barely two minutes left to play and the ball on the Calgary seven-yard line, defensive star Wayne Harris, voted the game's outstanding player, said:

"He slipped, all right, but we had him anyway." (It was on that play that McQuay fumbled and Calgary recovered.)

HANDLING DIFFICULT

Quarterback Jerry Keeling, who with his horn-rimmed glasses appears more like a chartered accountant than a football player, complained about the slippery ball. He had three passes intercepted.

"I asked the referees to place a towel over the ball between downs, but they refused," he said.

"The ball was so wet, I just couldn't throw well.

However, Keeling praised the Toronto defence too.

"In the first half my receivers were getting open, and making some good catches . . . but in the second half the Toronto blitz came on strong, and we couldn't move the ball." (Keeling only had one completion in the second half.)

LOSERS QUIET

On the other side of the field, Toronto coach Leo Cahill greeted the press quietly.

"We were so close . . . and it's so disappointing to lose it that close," he said slowly.

Moments earlier, directors of the Toronto team had left the room — grim faced.

Cahill didn't have reason to smile either. If he was still furious over a last-minute call that saw Calgary awarded the ball when Argonaut defensive back Harry Abofs kicked a ball, pinted by Calgary, out of bounds, he didn't show it.

"Oh, he knew the rule, all right," Cahill said.

Abofs later explained that his action wasn't deliberate. "I wanted to fall on it, but it bounded back up and hit me on the leg," he said with a shrug. "I was coming in on the ball and couldn't stop."

'JUST SLIPPED'

Otherwise, Cahill was complimentary — "A good game . . . a hard-played game . . . and, yes, we were going for the field goal when (Leon) McQuay fumbled giving Calgary possession. We were getting in position, if he didn't make it."

"He just slipped," said Cahill. McQuay meanwhile had adjourned to the shower.

Theismann admitted he had taken a hard knock to the head in the second period. "My eyes were watering . . . and I asked the coach to send (Greg) Barton in," he said.

If Calgary had won fairly, Theismann suggested "I think we deserved it just as much . . . but we will be back. We'll see them in Hamilton next year."

Meanwhile, giant end Mel Profit, who had said earlier in the week that he may retire if he had a good game, declined to add to that possibility.

He had caught one of Theismann's passes for 54 yards early in the game, but had been covered after that.

NOT BEST EFFORT

"It wasn't our best," he said while unwrapping yards of tape from around his ribs.

Meanwhile — condolences were being offered from fan-club members who had accompanied the team west and from city of Toronto officials.

To one, Cahill said:

"I told them (the players) they could walk down the street with their heads high . . ."

But that did nothing to console one visitor. Ron Barbaro, president of the Toronto fan club, sat hunched in one corner of the room, disconsolate.

He was crying.

Sensibility Returns to Vancouver

By BILL WALKER and ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Common sense may have come back, and Vancouver may make an early bid to stage another Grey Cup game. Possibly as early as 1974 or 1975.

Fans were boistrous but generally well-behaved during the weekend and that was a contrast to the violence and vandalism that marred the Canadian Football League final staged here in 1966.

Fans' behaviour at the weekend was lauded by Herman Burkhart, chairman of the Grey Cup committee. He had previously warned Vancouver that the city might not bid for future games if fans got out of hand this year.

More than 600 persons were arrested in a Cup-eve riot in 1966.

This year, there was a marked improvement in behaviour.

The only real tension came a little before midnight Saturday when a crowd of about 3,000 gathered outside the Georgia Hotel, headquarters for hundreds of fans, and a few fights broke out as security guards prevented leaders from entering the hotel.

Then a group of about a dozen youths climbed atop a marquee outside the hotel, smashing floodlights and a few windows. The main crowd refused to take part. Some booed the vandalism and a few hurled bottles at the youths who quickly withdrew.

The action then began to slow as a chilly wind came up and rain began to fall. Police watched from a distance as the big crowd started to disperse.

Sunday night activity was extremely quiet.

In all, police reported only six arrests and a few minor injuries as a result of Saturday's incidents.

It was certainly "quite" for scalpers who hoped to make money on tickets. More than 50 persons tried to unload tickets outside Empire Stadium shortly before the game.

One hawker offered "six tickets for the price of two." Another asked $5 for a $12 ticket.

There weren't very many takers.

Victoria photographer Jim Ryan might disagree about her popularity. He had to jump quickly to avoid being hit by the horse on its first charge.

CALGARY FANS TIE UP TRAFFIC

CALGARY (CP) — City football fans went wild Sunday night and tied up traffic in the downtown area.

Blaring car horns and cheering fans carrying "Go Stamps Go" signs mobbed one of the main streets to celebrate Calgary Stampeders' 14-11 victory over Toronto Argonauts in the Grey Cup game at Vancouver.

Main streets, all but deserted while the game was in progress, soon filled with fans yelling out of car windows and rattling pots and pans.

Signs of Hope in Detroit

Wings Surprise Rangers, Canadiens

ALEX DELVECCHIO
. . . shows old form

By CANADIAN PRESS

It has been a long, unrewarding season for Detroit Red Wings, particularly veteran captain Alex Delvecchio and most noteably the Detroit brass headed by general manager Ned Harkness.

So the weekend sent a breath of fresh air through Detroit Olympia as the Wings registered successive National Hockey League wins at home over New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens.

The back-to-back victories over the East Division leaders —4-2 over Montreal Sunday and 3-1 over the Rangers— tightened up the top of the division standings and finally gave the Wings some breathing space at the lower end of the division.

Elsewhere Sunday, the Rangers tripped Philadelphia Flyers 4-2, Chicago Black Hawks rocked Toronto Maple Leafs with three third-period goals for a 4-1 win and California Golden Seals took third place in the West with 5-3 decision over Punch Imlach's hapless Buffalo Sabres.

In other Saturday games, Boston Bruins and St. Louis Blues shelled one another in a 6-6 stalemate, Chicago and Toronto tied 3-3, Montreal downed Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 on third period scores by Marc Tardif and Henri Richard, Vancouver Canucks trimmed Buffalo 5-2 and Minnesota North Stars held first in the West with a 3-1 win over Los Angeles Kings.

Detroit's much-maligned management, headed by Harkness, has had reason to squirm this year. The club's hierarchy went through sudden and drastic changes last year but continued on promises there'd be a better showing in 1971-72.

Up to Saturday, this promised change failed to materialize. The Red Wings changed coaches early in the season, switching to Johnny Wilson from Doug Barkley, but remained solidly entrenched near or at the tail-end of the East with Vancouver and Buffalo.

And Delvecchio, who has been through the good years and bad in two decades of play with the Wings and who almost quit this season rather than save his tired legs in a part-time role, is as much a part of the Detroit resurgence, temporary though it may be.

He assisted on the insurance goal by Guy Charron against New York then opened the first-period scoring against Montreal. It was followed up 33 seconds later by team-mate Bill Collins.

Jacques Lemaire halved the count at 10:13 of the second period. Al Karlander tallied the winner 20 seconds later and Mickey Redmond added insurance score at 15:51.

The Canadiens may have lost more than the game. Defenceman Guy Lapointe was struck on the face, near his right eye, by a Karlander shot in the first period. He was believed to have suffered a fractured bone.

Bryan Campbell, Chico Maki and Danny O'Shea triggered three goals in a span of just over five minutes of the third period at Chicago to settle their weekend contests with the Leafs.

The win kept the Hawks' unbeaten string at home, extending it to 11 games, including 10 victories. It was a bruising game with Toronto's Jim Harrison getting involved in two skirmishes.

He and Chicago defenceman Keith Magnuson were tagged with double minors in the first period, then Harrison and Magnuson's partner, Jerry Korab, exchanged punches in the middle period.

Toronto's Rick Ley was sent off with a game misconduct when he disputed O'Shea's goal at 13:58 of the third period which followed by 58 seconds Maki's insurance score.

Vic Hadfield, with two goals and an assist, paced the rebounding Rangers at Philadelphia where the New Yorkers sought to save face from their Saturday setback at Detroit by shelling Flyer goalie Doug Favell with 39 shots.

The Seals fired 42 shots at goalie Roger Crozier but needed late game heroics from their own goaltender, Lyle Carter, to settle the issue. Carter made two key saves off Sabre rookie Rick Martin who earlier scored his 16th and 17th goals of the season.

TIDE PLAYERS PROVE A POINT

Victoria Crimson Tide rugby players failed to win the game Sunday, but they provided a point before dropping an 11-7 exhibition decision to the British Columbia representative side before about 500 fans at Macdonald Park.

Anxious to show that B.C. Rugby Union officials in Vancouver erred when they all but ignored Island athletes, the Victoria Reps staged a valiant battle against the provincial squad and held a margin in play for a good part of the contest.

Only one Victorian — Tom Brown — was chosen by the selection committee to the B.C. team that will meet Australia's touring Wallabies in Burnaby on Dec. 4. Brown was forced to miss Sunday's match because of a leg injury and is a doubtful starter against the Aussies.

Under constant pressure from Tide tacklers, the visiting stars took an 11-4 half-time lead on a three-point penalty goal by Barry Burnham and trys by Chuck Plester and Wally Richardson. Stew Barbour scored Crimson Tide's only try of the game before Cliff Yworath booted a three-point drop goal in the second half.

"I know of at least four Victoria players who should be on the provincial side," insisted Don Burgess, one of the Crimson Tide selectors. "B.C.'s points were scored against the run of the play Sunday, and I think a re-match would result in a Victoria victory."

Chargers Clobbered

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) Bramalea Satellites forced British Columbia Chargers to fumble on the first play, then rolled over their hosts 45-6 to win what was billed as the senior football championship of Canada.

It was the fifth consecutive national title for the Ontario club, going back to 1964. It was the first such game played since 1967.

The game was played basically under Canadian rules, but four downs to accommodate the chargers, who play under United States rules in the Northwest International Football League.

Jets Add to Cougar Woes

By DAN STINSON
Times Staff

When you're down and out, anything that can go wrong usually will.

Meet the Victoria Cougars.

For 92 seconds at Memorial Arena Saturday night, things went wrong. The Cougars collapsed — make that died — and lost another Western Canada Hockey League game by a 3-2 score, their third consecutive loss, number 18 in 25 starts.

Winnipeg Jets won it, but you get the feeling these days that, regardless of the opposition, the Cats will always come up short.

Victoria coach Fred Hucul hopes not.

"What's wrong?" he mused as 2,486 disappointed fans filed out. "I don't know what's wrong. You can say that we're blowing our chances, but when a club hustles like this one does, the goals should come anyway. Maybe what we need is time."

MISSED BIG CHANCE

Which brings us back to those 92 seconds — time the Cougars most certainly could have done without Saturday. Jets scored all three of their goals within that brief first-period span and hung on for their first victory of a four-game Western Division tour.

And when Hucul talks about blowing chances, he isn't just whistling Dixie. Following the 92-second disaster, Cougars enjoyed a man advantage for a full five minutes early in the second period and failed to score. Later, the Cats were blanked for almost a minute while they had a two-man advantage.

Actually, there was only one power-play goal scored in the game as referee Willie Papp assessed 100 minutes in penalties, excluding game misconducts to Jets' defenceman John Bednarski and centre Garry Doerksen.

As far as the Cougars were concerned, Doerksen's ejection came one period too late. In the opening 20 minutes he pumped in two quick goals seconds after Reg Malinoski had opened scoring at 15:38.

Newcomer Perry Robinson, one of three players obtained in a trade with Flin Flon Bombers last week, finally put the Cats on the scoreboard at 9:19 of the second period. Hard-working centre Tim Struch set up Wayne Bianchin's goal 10 minutes later as Victoria closed the gap to 3-2.

OPPORTUNITIES KNOCK

Frustration was everywhere in the third period as the Cougars tried desperately to get the equalizer and missed enough scoring opportunities to win two hockey games.

Jets' goaltender Frank Turnbull stopped 19 shots, most of them from a harmless range. The goalpost came to his rescue twice.

The loss dropped the Cats deeper into the western division cellar, two points behind Vancouver Nats who have three games in hand.

City Soccer Rivals Both Flub Chances

By DAN STINSON
Times Staff

Saturday was a golden opportunity for Gorge Molsons and Victoria West-United to win over a few fans for their remaining Pacific Coast Soccer League home games.

Instead, they may have lost all 542 of them who sat through a bitter disappointment at Royal Athletic Park.

Promoted as possibly the game of the year in the Coast League, Saturday's first-ever meeting between the Victoria entries ended in a 1-1 tie with no more than five minutes of action remotely approaching entertainment from a spectator point of view.

The Cosmopolitan Challenge Cup, made specially for the occasion, will be awarded to the winner of the next Gorge-United game.

The muddy pitch at Athletic Park was not conducive to good soccer, but one need only recall the final high school game played there one week earlier to appreciate how such conditions can be overcome.

Late arrivals to Saturday's contest may have missed what little action there was. United opened scoring just two minutes from the starting whistle when winger Dean Stokes scored an opportunist goal, picking up a rebound from a shot by Ranjit Dillion and firing the ball home from six yards.

Gorge left-winter Darryl Hooker equalized 10 minutes into the second half on another goalmouth scramble, and, save a few outstanding stops by United goalkeeper Barry Sadler and some fancy footwork by Molsons' Mark Robb, the match was over.

Sadler came up big on two occasions. The first was just before half time when he made a leaping, one-arm save on John Blissett's low drive, and the second was off Blissett again, on a penalty shot 31 minutes after the intermission.

Robb was clearly the game's outstanding player, but his playmaking talents were nullified as his teammates failed to finish around the net.

United, meanwhile, played its worst game of the season. Passes went astray, there was little hustle, and only a few key defensive plays.

Tough Calgary Defence Stymies Argonauts

Argo's Hopes Evaporate With Late-Game Miscues

VANCOUVER — The diminishing numbers on the big, digital clock at the south end of Empire Stadium were spelling it out, with each flicker, the nearness of the requiem for Toronto Argonauts.

Then an angel of mercy appeared; but alas, only briefly; and the dirge tolled on.

The Calgary Stampeders were leading Toronto 14-11 and there was only 2.29 . . . 2.28 . . . 2.27 . . . 2.26 left to play when quarterback Jerry Keeling of the Stamps lofted a high pass downfield in an attempt to get the Cowboys out of a bind.

Defensive back Dick Thornton of the Argos looked heavenward, recognized the signs, and said himself "baby, this is it." He gathered in the underthrown ball at his own 45-yard line, and wasn't stopped until he met Keeling at the Calgary 11.

Surely, now at long last in what had to be a defensive gem, the Argos had it made. Faith suddenly had been restored.

But no, it was not to be in this Grey Cup game, the first on synthetic turf. Because just two plays later, the Argos' Leon McQuay slipped in a puddle of water, slammed his elbow on the ground, dropped the football, and the Stampeders had it back.

Then in a bizarre final 49 seconds the Cowboys preserved that tenuous margin and obtained their first Grey Cup win since 1948.

That final fateful minute saw Harry Abofs of the Argos, in attempting to play a punt, kick the ball (deliberately, the officials said), out of bounds. The rule book said Calgary's ball. Game over. And the Argo players' bench over, too. Coach Leo Cahill took the decision unkindly.

Too Content to Settle For a Tie

If the Argos hadn't blown a gift chance, they had done the next best thing. They had kissed a possible victory away by not trying for the touchdown, being apparently content to take the tie then overtime.

"McQuay was only moving into position for a field goal," Coach Leo Cahill said afterwards.

About one hour later, Keeling was being carried shoulder-high into the lobby of the Georgia, while jubilant Stamp fans were hooting "we're No. 1".

Keeling said he was "oh, so pleased," but on that last play, he threw the ball badly."

Before all that, it had been a peculiar contest, for a final between two high-scoring teams, the best in the land. There had been four giveaways on either side, and even the officials got a roasting early. From Cahill of course.

It was very early, and Keeling had dropped back to pass, when he was hit. The Argos were set to run the ball in. "Incomplete pass," ruled the official. Cahill was fuming, and, if he had seen the replay, he would have fumed more. He had a case!

Then, presto, on their next sequence, the Stamps struck gold. In six plays, covering 54 yards, Keeling hit on two passes, the last one to Herm Harrison, and Calgary led, 7-0.

Later in the first half, Keeling was to connect on two more passes in one sequence, and the Stamps were to score again, Jesse Mims doing the final, heavy bit.

In all, Keeling had six completions. There was only two more to come.

And that told it for the offence—on both clubs, practically.

For Ivan MacMillan was to get only a three-pointer for Toronto in the first half, and a single in the second half. It was a defensive lineman Roger Scales who scored their only touchdown, early in the third quarter. After a Calgary fumble.

Exciting Perhaps, But No Classic

Sure, it was a marvellous battle of defence, in the pits, by the studs, and by the defensive backs. But if it was a tense struggle, it could never by considered a classic. Exciting is the word, but that is only because it fits in with the mystique that is the Grey Cup.

For instance, on offence in that last half, the Argos managed to produce all of three first downs. Calgary just one. Call that power? It was almost a shutout for the defence.

Coach Jim Duncan of the Stamps said before the game: "We might beat Toronto bad, if we can move the ball outside." After the game, he stated: "Jim Stillwagon really hurt us on our running to the outside." The Argos, that simply, had killed the Stamp game plan.

On the other hand the Stamps stopped Toronto by containing McQuay, and quarterback Joe Theismann, and reducing Bill Symons' effectiveness to practically zero.

Defence can be that simple. Theismann had his moments, but only where it didn't hurt Calgary, in his own end; and McQuay was given a little in the hope he wouldn't take a lot. He didn't.

Unsmiling in defeat, Theissmann probably said it best of all for the Argos: "I won't say they deserved to win, because I think we deserved it just as much."

Abofs, meanwhile, protested that really he hadn't kicked the ball out of bounds; it had bounced up and hit him in the leg. "I knew the rule," he said.

But it shouldn't have bothered him, because the big question that Cahill will be answering for a day or two, is why he didn't go for the touchdown, on second down, and the ball on the Calgary seven.

That's the mystery. The clock was in his favor then. Until McQuay fumbled.

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Calgary Stampeders, inspired by a brilliant defence, have ended their long quest for a return claim on the Grey Cup.

Tough, heady and steady, the Stampeder defence defused Toronto's sometimes-explosive attack to defeat the Argonauts 14-11 and capture the Canadian Football League's historic championship trophy in an error-filled finale Sunday at Empire Stadium.

It was Stampeders' first taste of success since 1948, the year Canadian football moved towards it madcap heights because of the whoop-de-do antics of Calgary fans.

And, for the first time in 23 years, those fun-loving, stetsoned fans had something to really cheer about:

Victory . . . and a great defence.

Defence and victory went hand-in-hand because of sputtering offences that fumbled five times, gave up three interceptions and were guilty of questionable tactics.

For the 34,584 fans, the mistakes, controversy and the doubt that remained until the final play was a parlay that created an interesting afternoon.

The loss was a bitter one for the Argonauts, who had never been beaten in 10 previous Grey Cup games and who were making their first appearance in the final since 1952. The Argos had their chances but failed to capitalize on them.

When it seemed as if they might pull the game out of the fire in the waning minutes, the Argos were killed by a costly fumble and a controversial turnover.

The most disastrous fumble of Toronto's four bobbles was one by halfback Leon McQuay.

With Calgary striving to protect a 14-11 lead, defensive half Dick Thornton gave Toronto a last-ditch chance when he intercepted a Jerry Keeling pass to run the ball back 54 yards to the Calgary 11-yard line with two minutes 26 seconds remaining.

On first down, McQuay swept to the right for a four-yard gain to the Calgary seven.

Kick Out of Bounds Sealed It

McQuay was obviously to keep directly in front of the goal post, which would have enabled place-kicker Ivan MacMillan to try for the tying field goal that might have forced overtime.

Time left after McQuay's fumble: 1:53.

Toronto receiver Harry Abofs was unable to catch the ball on the fly. He caught up to the bouncing ball on about the Argo 50 and kicked it out of bounds in an effort to stop the clock.

Officials awarded the ball to Calgary, however, calling the Argos for intentionally kicking the ball out of bounds.

That sealed it for the Stamps.

End Herm Harrison caught a 14-yard pass from Keeling and halfback Jesse Mims, on a well-executed draw from six yards out, scored Calgary's touchdowns. Both were converted by Larry Robinson.

Defensive guard Roger Scales, latching on to a lateral from fumble - recovering Joe Vijuk, scored the Toronto touchdown on a 38-yard run. The 19-year-old MacMillan kicked the convert and added a field goal and a single to account for Toronto's other points.

Since Scales enabled Toronto's defence to get in on the scoring act, MacMillan's single and field goal represented the whole sum of Argonauts' offensive output. Four points!

Cowboys Kept Pressure On Joe

The Stampeder defence, r Wayne

sparked by linebacker Wayne Harris and defensive ends Craig Koinzan and Dick Suderman, dominated the game. Koinzan and Suderman were outstanding in neutralizing the rollout and option threats of Toronto quarterback Joe Theismann.

Koinzan was particularly effective with his penetration, and was credited with making eight individual tackles. Suderman and Harris, named the game's top performers, also helped keep Theismann under constant pressure.

Tribute must also be heaped on the Argo defenders. Although stung by Calgary's first-half touchdowns, the Argo defence came through in great style in the second half by restricting the Stampeder offence to one first down.

Defensive end Larry Brame, with eight tackles and two assists, safety Marv Luster and Jim Stillwagon were particularly outstanding on a Toronto defence that picked off all three of the game's interceptions.

It was obvious that Calgary had the answer to Theismann's rollout threats and to McQuay's explosiveness.

But Theismann and coach Leo Cahill failed to combat that lass by switching to a passing attack.

Theismann hit on eight of 14 pass attempts but seemed almost reluctant to test Calgary's zone defence with short passes, considered the most effective answer to the defensive pattern.

Early in the third quarter, McQuay carried for eight yards on a first down. Theismann (or coach Cahill) ignored what seemed to be an obvious ground thrust for the required two yards and another first down. Instead, Theismann fired a pass to Mike Eben. It went incomplete, and the Argos were forced to kick on third down.

Then, with less than four minutes to play and the Argos scrimmaging from their own 33-yard line, Toronto required one foot on third down. Theismann went in, presumably to attempt a quarterback sneak, but quick-kicked instead.

While the Argos did get their hands on the ball later, the 12-inch try for a first down seemed an excellent gamble.

Or it could be that the Argos simply were paying their respects to the Calgary defence.

Nothing Surprising From Argos' Corner

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — "Toronto didn't surprise me with their offence," said Calgary's winning Grey Cup coach Jim Duncan here Sunday.

"They stuck pretty well to what we expected, and didn't show us any new plays."

Which, in the eyes of Duncan, made Calgary's 14-11 victory over Toronto Argonauts "a great defensive game."

Key to the Stamp defence "was to stop Joe Theismann," he explained.

"They moved the ball, but not with any degree of consistency," he said between sips of champagne in the happy dressing room following Sunday's Canadian Football League final at Empire Stadium.

"They stopped Toronto's sweep, and contained (quarterback Joe) Theismann," he went on. Koinzan twice threw Theismann for 11-yard losses.

On Toronto's big chance with barely two minutes left to play and the ball on the Calgary seven-yard line, defensive star Wayne Harris, voted the game's outstanding player, said:

"He slipped, all right, but we had him anyway." (It was on that play that McQuay fumbled and Calgary recovered.)

HANDLING DIFFICULT

Quarterback Jerry Keeling, who with his horn-rimmed glasses appears more like a chartered accountant than a football player, complained about the slippery ball. He had three passes intercepted.

"I asked the referees to place a towel over the ball between downs, but they refused," he said.

"The ball was so wet, I just couldn't throw well.

However, Keeling praised the Toronto defence too.

"In the first half my receivers were getting open, and making some good catches . . . but in the second half the Toronto blitz came on strong, and we couldn't move the ball." (Keeling only had one completion in the second half.)

LOSERS QUIET

On the other side of the field, Toronto coach Leo Cahill greeted the press quietly.

"We were so close . . . and it's so disappointing to lose it that close," he said slowly.

Moments earlier, directors of the Toronto team had left the room — grim faced.

Cahill didn't have reason to smile either. If he was still furious over a last-minute call that saw Calgary awarded the ball when Argonaut defensive back Harry Abofs kicked a ball, punted by Calgary, out of bounds, he didn't show it.

"Oh, he knew the rule, all right," Cahill said.

Abofs later explained that his action wasn't deliberate. "I wanted to fall on it, but it bounded back up and hit me on the leg," he said with a shrug. "I was coming in on the ball and couldn't stop."

'JUST SLIPPED'

Otherwise, Cahill was complimentary — "A good game . . . a hard-played game . . . and, yes, we were going for the field goal when (Leon) McQuay fumbled giving Calgary possession. We were getting in position, if he didn't make it."

"He just slipped," said Cahill. McQuay meanwhile had adjourned to the shower.

Theismann admitted he had taken a hard knock to the head in the second period. "My eyes were watering . . . and I asked the coach to send (Greg) Barton in," he said.

If Calgary had won fairly, Theismann suggested "I think we deserved it just as much . . . but we will be back. We'll see them in Hamilton next year."

Meanwhile, giant end Mel Profit, who had said earlier in the week that he may retire if he had a good game, declined to add to that possibility.

NOT BEST EFFORT

"It wasn't our best," he said while unwrapping yards of tape from around his ribs.

Meanwhile condolences were being offered from fan-club members who had accompanied the team west and from city of Toronto officials.

To one, Cahill said:

"I told them (the players) they could walk down the street with their heads high . . ."

But that did nothing to console one visitor. Ron Barbaro, president of the Toronto fan club, sat hunched in one corner of the room, disconsolate.

He was crying.

Sensibility Returns to Vancouver

By BILL WALKER and ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Common sense may have come back, and Vancouver may make an early bid to stage another Grey Cup game. Possibly as early as 1974 or 1975.

Fans were boistrous but generally well-behaved during the weekend and that was a contrast to the violence and vandalism that marred the Canadian Football League final staged here in 1966.

Fans' behaviour at the weekend was lauded by Herman Burkhart, chairman of the Grey Cup committee. He had previously warned Vancouver that the city might not bid for future games if fans got out of hand this year.

More than 600 persons were arrested in a Cup-eve riot in 1966.

This year, there was a marked improvement in behaviour.

The only real tension came a little before midnight Saturday when a crowd of about 3,000 gathered outside the Georgia Hotel, headquarters for hundreds of fans, and a few fights broke out as security guards prevented leaders from entering the hotel.

Then a group of about a dozen youths climbed atop a marquee outside the hotel, smashing floodlights and a few windows. The main crowd refused to take part. Some booed the vandalism and a few hurled bottles at the youths who quickly withdrew.

The action then began to slow as a chilly wind came up and rain began to fall. Police watched from a distance as the big crowd started to disperse.

Sunday night activity was extremely quiet.

In all, police reported only six arrests and a few minor injuries as a result of Saturday's incidents.

* * *

It was certainly "quite" for scalpers who hoped to make money on tickets. More than 50 persons tried to unload tickets outside Empire Stadium shortly before the game.

One hawker offered "six tickets for the price of two." Another asked $5 for a $12 ticket.

CALGARY FANS TIE UP TRAFFIC

CALGARY (CP) — City football fans went wild Sunday night and tied up traffic in the downtown area.

Blaring car horns and cheering fans carrying "Go Stamps Go" signs mobbed one of the main streets to celebrate Calgary Stampeders' 14-11 victory over Toronto Argonauts in the Grey Cup game at Vancouver.

Main streets, all but deserted while the game was in progress, soon filled with fans yelling out of car windows and rattling pots and pans.

Signs of Hope in Detroit

. . . shows old form

By CANADIAN PRESS

It has been a long, unrewarding season for Detroit Red Wings, particularly veteran captain Alex Delvecchio and most noteably the Detroit brass headed by general manager Ned Harkness.

So the weekend sent a breath of fresh air through Detroit Olympia as the Wings registered successive National Hockey League wins at home over New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens.

The back-to-back victories over the East Division leaders —4-2 over Montreal Sunday and 3-1 over the Rangers— tightened up the top of the division standings and finally gave the Wings some breathing space at the lower end of the division.

Elsewhere Sunday, the Rangers tripped Philadelphia Flyers 4-2, Chicago Black Hawks rocked Toronto Maple Leafs with three third-period goals for a 4-1 win and California Golden Seals took third place in the West with 5-3 decision over Punch Imlach's hapless Buffalo Sabres.

In other Saturday games, Boston Bruins and St. Louis Blues shelled one another in a 6-6 stalemate, Chicago and Toronto tied 3-3, Montreal downed Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 on third period scores by Marc Tardif and Henri Richard, Vancouver Canucks trimmed Buffalo 5-2 and Minnesota North Stars held first in the West with a 3-1 win over Los Angeles Kings.

Detroit's much-maligned management, headed by Harkness, has had reason to squirm this year. The club's hierarchy went through sudden and drastic changes last year but continued on promises there'd be a better showing in 1971-72.

Up to Saturday, this promised change failed to materialize. The Red Wings changed coaches early in the season, switching to Johnny Wilson from Doug Barkley, but remained solidly entrenched near or at the tail-end of the East with Vancouver and Buffalo.

And Delvecchio, who has been through the good years and bad in two decades of play with the Wings and who almost quit this season rather than save his tired legs in a part-time role, is as much a part of the Detroit resurgence, temporary though it may be.

He assisted on the insurance goal by Guy Charron against New York then opened the first-period scoring against Montreal. It was followed up 33 seconds later by team-mate Bill Collins.

Jacques Lemaire halved the count at 10:13 of the second period. Al Karlander tallied the winner 20 seconds later and Mickey Redmond added insurance score at 15:51.

The Canadiens may have lost more than the game. Defenceman Guy Lapointe was struck on the face, near his right eye, by a Karlander shot in the first period. He was believed to have suffered a fractured bone.

Bryan Campbell, Chico Maki and Danny O'Shea triggered three goals in a span of just over five minutes of the third period at Chicago to settle their weekend contests with the Leafs.

The win kept the Hawks' unbeaten string at home, extending it to 11 games, including 10 victories. It was a bruising game with Toronto's Jim Harrison getting involved in two skirmishes.

He and Chicago defenceman Keith Magnuson were tagged with double minors in the first period, then Harrison and Magnuson's partner, Jerry Korab, exchanged punches in the middle period.

Toronto's Rick Ley was sent off with a game misconduct when he disputed O'Shea's goal at 13:58 of the third period which followed by 58 seconds Maki's insurance score.

Vic Hadfield, with two goals and an assist, paced the rebounding Rangers at Philadelphia where the New Yorkers sought to save face from their Saturday setback at Detroit by shelling Flyer goalie Doug Favell with 39 shots.

The Seals fired 42 shots at goalie Roger Crozier but needed late game heroics from their own goaltender, Lyle Carter, to settle the issue. Carter made two key saves off Sabre rookie Rick Martin who earlier scored his 16th and 17th goals of the season.

TIDE PLAYERS PROVE A POINT

Victoria Crimson Tide rugby players failed to win the game Sunday, but they provided a point before dropping an 11-7 exhibition decision to the British Columbia representative side before about 500 fans at Macdonald Park.

Anxious to show that B.C. Rugby Union officials in Vancouver erred when they all but ignored Island athletes, the Victoria Reps staged a valiant battle against the provincial squad and held a margin in play for a good part of the contest.

Only one Victorian — Tom Brown — was chosen by the selection committee to the B.C. team that will meet Australia's touring Wallabies in Burnaby on Dec. 4. Brown was forced to miss Sunday's match because of a leg injury and is a doubtful starter against the Aussies.

★ ★ ★

Under constant pressure from Tide tacklers, the visiting stars took an 11-4 half-time lead on a three-point penalty goal by Barry Burnham and trys by Chuck Plester and Wally Richardson. Stew Barbour scored Crimson Tide's only try of the game before Cliff Yworath booted a three-point drop goal in the second half.

"I know of at least four Victoria players who should be on the provincial side," insisted Don Burgess, one of the Crimson Tide selectors. "B.C.'s points were scored against the run of the play Sunday, and I think a re-match would result in a Victoria victory."

Chargers Clobbered

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) Bramalea Satellites forced British Columbia Chargers to fumble on the first play, then rolled over their hosts 45-6 to win what was billed as the senior football championship of Canada.

It was the fifth consecutive national title for the Ontario club, going back to 1964. It was the first such game played since 1967.

The game was played basically under Canadian rules, but four downs to accommodate the chargers, who play under United States rules in the Northwest International Football League.

City Soccer Rivals Both Flub Chances

By DAN STINSON
Times Staff

Saturday was a golden opportunity for Gorge Molsons and Victoria West-United to win over a few fans for their remaining Pacific Coast Soccer League home games.

Instead, they may have lost all 542 of them who sat through a bitter disappointment at Royal Athletic Park.

Promoted as possibly the game of the year in the Coast League, Saturday's first-ever meeting between the Victoria entries ended in a 1-1 tie with no more than five minutes of action remotely approaching entertainment from a spectator point of view.

The Cosmopolitan Challenge Cup, made specially for the occasion, will be awarded to the winner of the next Gorge-United game.

The muddy pitch at Athletic Park was not conductive to good soccer, but one need only recall the final high school game played there one week earlier to appreciate how such conditions can be overcome.

Late arrivals to Saturday's contest may have missed what little action there was. United opened scoring just two minutes from the starting whistle when winger Dean Stokes scored an opportunist goal, picking up a rebound from a shot by Ranjit Dillion and firing the ball home from six yards.

Gorge left-winter Darryl Hooker equalized 10 minutes into the second half on another goalmouth scramble, and, save a few outstanding stops by United goalkeeper Barry Sadler and some fancy footwork by Molsons' Mark Robb, the match was over.

Sadler came up big on two occasions. The first was just before half time when he made a leaping, one-arm save on John Blissett's low drive, and the second was off Blissett again, on a penalty shot 31 minutes after the intermission.

United, meanwhile, played its worst game of the season. Passes went astray, there was little hustle, and only a few key defensive plays.

Jets Add to Cougar Woes

By DAN STINSON
Times Staff

Meet the Victoria Cougars.

For 92 seconds at Memorial Arena Saturday night, things went wrong. The Cougars collapsed — make that died — and lost another Western Canada Hockey League game by a 3-2 score, their third consecutive loss, number 18 in 25 starts.

Winnipeg Jets won it, but you get the feeling these days that, regardless of the opposition, the Cats will always come up short.

Victoria coach Fred Hucul hopes not.

"What's wrong'?" he mused as 2,486 disappointed fans filed out. "I don't know what's wrong. You can say that we're blowing our chances, but when a club hustles like this one does, the goals should come anyway. Maybe what we need is time."

MISSED BIG CHANCE

Which brings us back to those 92 seconds — time the Cougars most certainly could have done without Saturday. Jets scored all three of their goals within that brief first-period span and hung on for their first victory of a four-game Western Division tour.

And when Hucul talks about blowing chances, he isn't just whistling Dixie. Following the 92-second disaster, Cougars enjoyed a man advantage for a full five minutes early in the second period and failed to score. Later, the Cats were blanked for almost a minute while they had a two-man advantage.

Actually, there was only one power-play goal scored in the game as referee Willie Papp assessed 100 minutes in penalties, excluding game misconducts to Jets' defenceman John Bednarski and centre Garry Doerksen.

As far as the Cougars were concerned, Doerksen's ejection came one period too late. In the opening 20 minutes he pumped in two quick goals seconds after Reg Malinoski had opened scoring at 15:38.

Newcomer Perry Robinson, one of three players obtained in a trade with Flin Flon Bombers last week, finally put the Cats on the scoreboard at 9:19 of the second period. Hard-working centre Tim Struch set up Wayne Bianchin's goal 10 minutes later as Victoria closed the gap to 3-2.

OPPORTUNITIES KNOCK

Frustration was everywhere in the third period as the Cougars tried desperately to get the equalizer and missed enough scoring opportunities to win two hockey games.

Jets' goaltender Frank Turnbull stopped 19 shots, most of them from a harmless range. The goalpost came to his rescue twice.

The loss dropped the Cats deeper into the western division cellar, two points behind Vancouver Nats who have three games in hand.

Yugoslavian Tennis Star Wins Crown

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia won the fourth open tennis championship of Argentina and South America Sunday by defeating Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-3, 7-6, 6-1.

Stan Smith of the United States, did not reach the final round of the tournament but won the international federation's Grand Prix series.

Helga Masthoff of West Germany defeated Heide Orth, also of West Germany, 6-4, 7-5 in the women's final.

CROSS-COUNTRY WIN

WINNER of New Zealand Open golf championship Sunday was Australian veteran Peter Thompson, who beat England's Maurice Bembridge by two shots. Thompson (above) finished 72-hole event with eight-under-par 276. He fired one-under 70 in final round.

Hale Avoids 'Dressy' Shot On Way to First Tour Win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin, in spite of hitting a tee shot down the front of a woman's dress, fired a 70 to win the Heritage Golf Classic Sunday.

The 26-year-old Irwin, who hadn't won in four years on the pro tour, led all the way on the cool, sunny final day and finished with a tournament record of 279, five under par, on the very tough Harbour Town Golf Links.

The former Colorado football star became the 10th first-time winner this season when he held off Bob Lunn by a single stroke and edged Frank Beard and Jack Nicklaus by two.

DOWN FRONT OF DRESS

He pushed his tee shot on the 10th to the right. It hit a woman spectator in the chest and dropped down the front of her dress.

"I guess I can't play it from where it landed," Irwin said, took his drop and played away.

Beard had a 67, the best of the day. Nicklaus took a 70 and was in contention for his fourth victory in as many starts until he went one over on the par-three 17th hole. Lunn finished with a 280; Nicklaus and Beard tied at 281.

Arnold Palmer, just three strokes off Irwin's leading pace going into the final round, took a two-over-par six on the first hole. He missed the green and three-putted, and never really recovered. He was never again in contention.

Palmer turned in a fat 40 and finished with a 74 for 286.

But he was alone in fifth place and won $4,500 and joined Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Billy Casper as the only $200,000 winners in a single season. He pushed his earnings for the year to $201,707, the best of his fabled career.

UBC Drops Maples

VANCOUVER — Victoria Maplettes split a pair of Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League games here at the weekend, defeating Vancouver Eldorados 59-52 Saturday, but falling 58-29 to the hustling UBC Thunderettes Sunday.

Thunderettes were slick snipers as they hit for 50 per cent of their field shots in the first half to take a commanding 34-10 lead at the intermission.

Maintaining a full court press throughout, the league-leading UBC squad effectively bottled up Victoria which hit for only 25 per cent of its field shots in the first half and missed eight potential points from the foul line.

TEN IN OVERTIME

The winless Eldorados played the defending Canadian champions to a 45-45 tie and forced the Saturday game into overtime for the second time in two meetings between the clubs this season.

Marcia McIntyre broke through several times in the five-minute extra session to give Maplettes their seven-point victory margin.

Defeat Follows Overtime Win

Victoria led 22-20 at half time, but Eldorados came from behind in the final minute of regulation time to deadlock the game.

Vikettes Roll Along As Vikings Tumble

University of Victoria Vikings dropped their first home game of the season and the Vikettes romped to their fourth straight women's league victory at UVic Saturday in Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball action.

Vikings were defeated 74-63 by University of Alberta Golden Bears, while Vikettes downed University of Alberta Pandas, 46-34.

Bears' zone press and poor second-half shooting by UVic were combining factors for the Vikings' second loss in five starts.

Vikings hit for only 29 per cent of their field shots in the second half while Alberta guard Bob Morris was deadly from the outside. He scored a game total of 29 points, while six-foot-eight Mike Frisby added 15 to the Bears' total.

Leading by only one point, 19-18, at half time, Vikettes hit for 14 of the first 16 points scored in the second half and coasted the rest of the way.

Rose Jossul netted 14 points for the winners. Lorna McHattie, Diedre Ogden and Yvonne Letellier had eight points each.

Pandas were led by Marge Hawkey with 14 points.

NARROW MARGIN

In another women's league contest at Winnipeg Saturday, Barbara Hall connected on two free throws in the final minute to give Manitoba Bisonettes a 55-54 triumph over Saskatchewan Cougarettes. Donna Mallette scored 16 points to pace the Bisonettes to their fourth straight victory.

Home teams chalked up victories in two other men's league games played Saturday.

Brandon Bobcats scored 23 points in the last three minutes of the first half and rolled to 73-62 win over Winnipeg Wesmen. Jerry Hemmings was the sharpest Bobcat, connecting for 33 points.

At Winnipeg, Manitoba Bisons used a zone defence to allow Saskatchewan only four successful layup shots in the game and took a dull, 78-70 decision over the Cougars.

PANDAS (34) — Jane Templeman, Dixie Dow 4, Connie Saunders 1, Marge Hawkey 14, Wendy Martin 4, Bev Schulin 4, Kathy Moore 6, Sharon Worden 1, Pat McLure, Judy Fairbairn.

UVic Goalie Busy

Murray, who handles goal tending chores for University of Victoria, in the Western Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association hockey league, was bombarded with 91 shots as the University of Alberta Golden Bears romped to a 9-0 triumph over the Vikings before about 200 spectators.

Finlay, jolted by a leg injury in the opening period Friday while the Vikings were dropping a 9-3 decision to the Bears, came back Saturday to turn aside the whopping total of 82 shots.

The 23-year-old former Victoria Cougar blocked 30 of 33 shots in the first period, 25 of 26 in the second, and 27 of 32 in the third.

Alberta goaltender Jim Coombs stopped 30 shots to shut out the hapless Vikings, now winless after four starts.

Bobcats had four defencemen sidelined by injuries.

At Vancouver, Calgary Dinosaurs nipped UBC Thunderbirds 5-4 on three third-period goals, tasting revenge after losing 5-3 to the Birds on Friday.

Deadlocked at 2-2 after two periods, Dinosaurs zoomed into a 5-2 lead with six minutes remaining and held out against a closing Thunderbird surge. Frank Richardson notched the winner for Calgary.

SAILING CHAMPION

CANADIAN BOWLER SEVENTH

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Roger Dalkin, a United States student, won the World Cup of tenpin bowling Sunday night, beating Benny Corona of Mexico in a dramatic final.

Dalkin, 21, of Atlanta, Ga., made a great comeback in the last frame to win 542 pins to 424.

Ed Labelle, the Canadian champion from Winnipeg, had to be content with seventh place in the final day of bowling by the eight survivors of three earlier days of competition among 36 bowlers from 35 countries.

Dalkin went into the third and last game of the final trailing Corona by four pins.

Corona, 25, who finished third in the 1968 World Cup in Mexico, saw the title slip from his grasp in the ninth frame and he left a split.

Dalkin in his last frame converted a spare and then rolled a strike to win the cup. Dalkin won with games of 169, 181 and 192. Corona, 25, rolled 167, 187 and 170.

Labelle bowed out in the quarter-finals with a total of 1,234 points, compared with 1,538 for Dalkin at that stage.

Arbutus Captures Junior High Crown

VANCOUVER — Arbutus of Victoria captured the junior high school team title in the 24th annual Pacific Northwest cross-country championships Saturday at the University of British Columbia.

Despite having only one runner in the top 10 finishers, Arbutus won the crown on the basis of a solid team effort under the reverse-scoring system. Arbutus accumulated 58 points while Coquitlam Cheetahs and Newton finished in a tie for second place with 73 points each.

UBC won both open women's, open men's men's freshmen and junior college events. Thelma Fynn placed first in the women's open and Ken French won the men's open competition for UBC.

Burnaby Central emerged with the senior high school title while Mt. Douglas of Victoria placed third. Vancouver Olympic Club won the midget girls' team crown while Lansdowne of Victoria placed third.

Giles Wins on Extra End

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brock Giles of North Vancouver made a pressure takeout with his last rock to defeat Glen Pierce of Burnaby 9-8 on an extra end to win the $14,000 British Columbia Centennial Totem Bonspiel Saturday night.

Giles, skipping a rink with an average age of 19, took out Pierce's shot rock in the four-foot circle and stayed to win on the 13th end. Pierce had come from behind with two on last rock in the 12th to tied it 8-8.

Giles, 23,, had counted three with a draw on the ninth end to take a 7-4 lead.

Meanwhile, Charlie Lyon of Nanaimo took an early lead and held on for an 8-6 win over Roland Crosswell of Surrey in the second event — also worth $1,850.

Jack Ticker of Richmond won the third event 9-8 in an extra end over Lyall Dagg of Vancouver. Ken Newman of Vancouver beat a rink entered by Frank Bailey of Calgary, but skipped by Truman Bailey, 12-6 in the fourth event final. Les Rogers of Regina took the fifth 7-6 over Terry Paulson of Vancouver.

Defending Totem champion Chuck Kennedy of Surrey took the sixth event with an 8-4 win over Vancouver's Gar Heath; Bert Gretzinger of Vancouver stopped Edmonton's Gordon Duholke 9-5 to win the seventh event and Ray Kent of Vancouver won the other event 9-8 over Sam Ruda, also of Vancouver.

Rudi Keeps Hot Touch As Royals Get Revenge

Rudi Kuebler continued to set a blistering pace among Victoria and District Soccer League scorers as he booted all three goals Sunday to lead Cosmopolitan Royals to a 3-0 decision over London Boxing Club in Division 1 play.

Victory was sweet revenge for the leading Royals, who earlier in the season had been handed their only defeat by the Boxers. Kuebler's goals were his 15th, 16th and 17th of the season, tops in the league.

Gorge escaped the Division 1 cellar by crushing Duncan Village Green, 5-2. Peter Brett scored twice for the winners, who now hold a one-point edge over Roadrunners, blasted 6-0 by University of Victoria Vikings.

FIRST LAKER LOSS

In Division 2 action, Glen Moffat scored the only goal as UVic Norsemen defeated first-place Prospect Lake, 1-0. It was Prospect's first loss of the season.

Labatts edged Vic West 2-1 to break a tie for second. It was the brewers' first victory over Wests in six years.

Draws were the order of the day in Division 3, as all but one game ended in a deadlock. One of them was a 1-1 decision between leading London Boxing Club and runner-up Castaways in an entertaining match.

Namath, Starr Return To Lose Football Wars

By The Associated Press

Veterans Day arrived a bit late for National Football League quarterbacks this year.

Three of the walking wounded, field generals returning from summer skirmishes that had put them out of commission, joined the autumn offensives Sunday.

Two of them won the battles but lost the wars. For the third, it was just the other way around.

Joe Namath, exploding on the scene in New York, tossed three bombshells en route to a 258-yard aerial attack only to miss the mark in the last minute as the Jets bowed to a San Francisco '49ers 24-21.

And Bart Starr, coolly directing the Green Bay Packers' attack, watched as his troops committed tactical blunders that sent the Packers down to a 29-21 defeat at the hands of New Orleans Saints.

REDSKINS WIN

But Sonny Jurgensen, marching Washington into enemy territory, was knocked out of action and could only watch as Billy Kilmer barked the orders that carried the Redskins to a 20-13 victory over Philadelphia Eagles.

In Sunday's other clashes, Baltimor Colts walloped Oakland Raiders 37-14, Cleveland Browns beat Houston Oilers 37-24, Denver Broncs defeated Pittsburgh Steelers 22-10, Cincinnati Bengals stomped San Diego Chargers 31-0, Minnesota Vikings smothered Atlanta Falcons 24-7, Buffalo Bills topped New England Patriots 27-20 and St. Louis Cardinals swatted New York Giants 24-7.

As 63,936 fans screamed their approval, Namath trotted in to replace Jets' starter Bob Davis, injured in the second quarter.

He proceeded to connect on 11 of 27 passes, including touchdowns of 57 and 20 yards to Rich Caster and a 22-yarder to Ed Bell. But with New York on San Francisco's 19 with only seconds remaining, his pass to Bell was intercepted in the end zone by Johnny Fuller.

"I don't feel I played well . . . I've got to improve my mental state because I didn't feel at ease," Namath said.

Vic Washington, former Ottawa Rough Rider, and John Brodie did most of the damage for the '49ers. Washington ran two yards for one touchdown and hauled in a 22-yard Brodie pass for another and the San Francisco quarterback scored the third from one yard out.

But it was Bruce Gossett's 25-yard second-quarter field goal that made the difference as the '49ers regained the National Conference West lead.

"You can't blame Starr. I thought he played quite well," Packers coach Dan Devine said. Starr hit on eight of 17 passes for 116 yards but four fumbles and two interceptions, one off rookie Scott Hunter who came on in the final period, gave the Saints the game.

They rode five field goals by Charlie Durkee, a Green Bay castoff, Doug Wyatt's 55-yard interception return for a touchdown and Jim Strong's one-yard scoring run to victory.

Jurgensen was sidelined in the second period when he was tackled and reinjured his left shoulder as he moved the Skins into position for the first of two Curt Knight field goals.

That brought on Kilmer, who hit Roy Jefferson with a 27-yard strike for their first touchdown — but it was Mike Bass's 38-yard touchdown run with an interception that enabled them to turn back the Eagles and move back within a game of first-place Dallas in the NFC East.

"We took what they gave us," Johnny Unitas said after the Colts, moving within a game of the Dolphins, blanked Oakland for 52 minutes while Unitas directed three touchdown drives and Jim O'Brien booted three field goals.

St. Michael's Stages Rally

St. Michael's University School overcame a 6-4 first-half deficit at Brentwood College Saturday to defeat the Brentwood side 12-9 in a B.C. Independent Schools Rugby League contest.

Mike Thorne, Bob Gaither and Gordie Powell each scored a try for the Victoria school.

Roadrunners Trip Hope Hoop Squad

Reynolds Roadrunners earned their second victory in two nights Saturday when they defeated Hope 73-68 in high school boys' exhibition basketball at the Reynolds gymnasium.

Outboard Victory

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Bill Sirois of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., stormed through the last four hours Sunday to win the $62,750 outboard world championships for the second straight year.

Point Grey Takes Crown

VANCOUVER — Dave White booted a penalty goal in the first half of an overtime session Saturday to give Point Grey a spine-tingling 11-8 triumph over Magee in the final of the provincial high school rugby championship.

The two Vancouver-area schools were deadlocked at 8-8 at the end of regulation time in the title game of the double-loss-elimination tourney.

Shawnigan Lake Boys' School, the last Vancouver Island survivor in the tourney, bowed out of the running earlier Saturday. The Lakers dropped a 17-7 decision to Point Grey and then suffered their second defeat when they were tripped 7-6 by Magee in the final of the losers' bracket.

Shawnigan appeared likely to reach the championship final during most of Saturday's contest against Magee and was leading the Vancouver squad 6-3 with only about a minute remaining. Title hopes for the Islanders vanished when Magee centre Don McQueen went over for the winning try in the dying seconds. McQueen had kicked a penalty goal for Magee's other points. Fly-half Doug Anderson had connected on two penalty goals to put Shawnigan out in front.

In their clash against Point Grey, the Lakers were continually kept off balance and never did settle into their regular pattern of play. They counted their points on a try by Roland Borsato and a penalty goal by Guy Lyster.

Revelstoke Repeats In Volleyball Event

REVELSTOKE — Superb team play enabled Revelstoke boys to capture the school's fourth straight British Columbia high school volleyball championship here Saturday.

Revelstoke defeated Winfield 15-4, 15-4, 15-2 in the championship game to complete a victory string of 19 consecutive games in the three-day tournament involving 16 teams. The champions eliminated Gladstone of Vancouver in the semi-final round while Winfield advanced to the final with a conquest of Grand Forks.

The three Vancouver Island entrants — Victoria (4-10), Campbell River (7-7) and Courtenay (3-11) — were eliminated in preliminary competition.

Royal Roads Wins, Loses

The Vancouver Islanders got a 20-point effort from Phil Elvemark and edged British Columbia Institute of Technology 54-52 in a basketball game.

Royal Roads was nipped 12-11 by Douglas College in a rugby match. Norm Shaw and Charlie Allison each scored a try and Denny Fodor added a conversion for the cadets.

Did You Ever See A Bald-Headed Sheep?

While the fact there are no bald-headed sheep has no bearing on human hair growth, it's from the wool of sheep the natural lanolin used in Nil-O-Nal is extracted.

Dryness May Do This To Hair

Receding hair line . . . spreading bald spots . . . thinning, falling hair . . . flaky, itchy scalp, split ends? Hair that won't hold a set? Natural oils help keep hair growing strong and healthy. When over-heated rooms and strong shampoos and permanents dry out and wash out these protective oils you're inviting trouble. Nil-O-Nal's extra refined lanolin instantly replaces natural oils. Also medicates. So effective, daily use counteracts most dry hair problems. Jar or lube at druggists on money back guarantee.

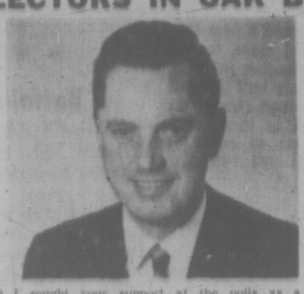
AN OPEN LETTER TO THE ELECTORS IN OAK BAY



In 1969 I sought your support at the polls as a Social Credit candidate, that support you gave me in great measure. I accepted that responsibility of representing you in the Provincial Legislature and proceeded to devote my energies to the fullest in the interests of Oak Bay and the Province as a whole. To that same cause I am as dedicated today.

I soon became disillusioned on finding that this province has virtually a one-man government and that he is imposing on the people, an increasingly dictatorial form of government which shows scant respect for the rights and freedoms of the individual. When I fully realised this, there was no alternative for me but to resign from the Social Credit party.

I have kept all the promises I made prior to my election, and my goals remain unaltered, to bring the best type of representation to the people of the province, and to be as readily available, as I always have been, to each and every one of you in Oak Bay.

At present, I have decided to assume the role of an Independent, during which time I pledge my utmost combined efforts on behalf of the people of Oak Bay and of the province as a whole.

Long before the next election my political philosophy aims and policies will be spelled out very clearly under a new party name yet to be chosen. At the next election, it will be very clear to all, that I and my supporters stand for truly democratic government, which places great emphasis on the individual and encourages initiatives and incentives by free men in a free society.

To those principles, under my label, I pledge myself now, tomorrow, before AND AFTER any provincial election.

G. Scott Wallace, M.L.A.

Cutting Remarks Trim Calgary Police Locks

CALGARY (CP) — Beards are out but mustaches are in. That's the ruling from the board of police commissioners who have decided that the locks of city police need to be regulated.

They've inserted a new subsection, entitled Hair, in the police administration manual, which states hair will be kept short and trimmed closely on the back and sides. Mustaches will be allowed to continue providing they are "kept a reasonable size."

Bawdy Charges

EDMONTON (CP) — Two Vancouver women have been fined in provincial court when they pleaded guilty to bawdy-house charges.

Belinda Lewis, 20, was fined $500 on a charge of keeping a common bawdy house. Audrey Jean Groeller, 20, was fined $250 on a charge of being an inmate of a common bawdy house. The women were arrested after city police raided a downtown motel unit in September.

Buffalo Bid

CALGARY (CP) — Canada Packers Ltd. of Edmonton was the successful bidder for about 110,000 pounds of dressed buffalo meat, the National and Historic Parks Branch has announced.

The company paid $49,060 for about 200 buffalo which were killed because the range at Elk Island National Park east of Edmonton was unable to support them.

The buffalo hides are to be distributed through the Indian affairs branch for Indian crafts in Alberta, and the skulls are to be collected by the University of Calgary for scientific research.

Milkmen Sue

CALGARY (CP) — Fourteen statements claiming unfair treatment have been filed in Alberta Supreme Court against Mac's Milk Ltd. on behalf of former managers of the company's stores in Calgary.

The statements say each manager is required to provide a $1,000 bond to Toronto-based Mac's Milk to cover any possible shortages in inventory. In return, they are promised a minimum income of $800 a month.

Oilman Dies

ARDMORE, Penn. (CP) — J. Howard Pew, American petroleum pioneer and principal developer of the Athabasca oil sands in Alberta, died Saturday at his some. He was 89. Mr. Pew, chairman of the executive committee of Sun Oil Co., had numerous friends in the government and business community of Alberta and had spent many of his holidays at Jasper Park Lodge.

Ottawa Claimed Ready To Aid Small Farmers

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal agriculture minister H. A. Olson says he has obtained cabinet authority to proceed with the small farms development program. A technical committee would meet within a week.

Mr. Olson said in an interview that the program is aimed at assisting farmers on non-economic units, either by providing more land or finances. The first step would be confined to farmers in the $3,000 to $20,000 bracket — "those who need it most."

The Farm Credit Corporation would oversee the program with co-operation from the provinces and there would be a counselling service.

CLEAR OPTIONS

"We want to make it absolutely clear, especially to older people, what the options are."

Mr. Olson said emphasis will ge placed on development rather than retirement or loss of the farm unit to other uses.

"There has been a feeling that the federal government intended to shove the small farmers off the land; this is certainly not the case.

"During the course of the provincial ministers' meeting in Ottawa it became clear that we were all trying to reach the same objective . . . the development of a profitable industry for our farmers.

"We agree that we must offer assistance to the small farmers of Canada so they can develop thriving farms. We also agree that farmers who want to retire need help."

MORE AID

Dealing with the federal support programs for Canadian products affected by the United States import surcharge, Mr. Olson said the government will continue to add commodities as time goes on.

Various federal buying programs already assist poultry products, blueberries and apples. Others could be carrots, rutabagas and other vegetable crops.

Mr. Olson said the government is watching the hog market closely and if the national weighted average price at the end of 1971 is less than $24.40 a hundredweight there will be a deficiency payment made of about one cent a pound.

Mr. Olson said a majority of the provinces and producers would have to agree before any other agricultural product besides poultry would be included in national marketing legislation.

"They would have to have massive, country-wide support."

Teachers Strike

CALGARY ((CP) — About 12,000 students were given an unscheduled holiday today as 613 teachers went on strike in the Bow Valley district.

The teachers, representing seven districts in the Bow Valley school authorities' association, were mainly seeking better salary schedules and employer contributions to the Alberta Health Care Plan.

The strike involved schools in the counties of Wheatland and Mountain View, the school divisions of Three Hills and Drumheller Valley, and local boards in Banff, Canmore and Hanna.

Make It a Nicer Place At a Cost of 35 Cents

Being some questions and some answers:

Question: "Put my name down with those of your readers who will sign the pledge to pick up as many hitch-hikers and people waiting at bus stops as they can. I went all through last winter without a job and without a car and, believe me, I learned to hate a lot of the human race — those drivers who turn a blind eye to a guy standing in the rain and asking to be taken down the road apiece. Now that I have a car again I never pass one of them by. What's the next move?"

Answer: Well, Walter McKinnon, of our news desk, has whipped up a design and Horace Watkins and Jim Coles, over at Crest Screen Printing, are busy making some decals which we'll stick on the lower right-hand corner of our windshields. The cost of them is 35 cents each and if you'll just send that here to me at the paper I'll send yours along to you.

The idea simply is that this is, by all accounts, a mighty rough town on people, especially young people, who are without wheels. Bus services, on most lines, are infrequent and if you miss one there's a long wait, rarely with any shelter. But, more than that, there seems to be not more than one in a hundred motorists who will take the time to pull in for a passenger. Hopefully, our little band of volunteers may make it seem a nicer place.

I say "little band" because, judging from the first reaction to our notes here Friday, there are an awful lot of people dividing the population into two categories — the upstanding, decent and altogether splendid people who happen to have a car and all those bums, hippies, rapists and otherwise depraved people who haven't.

If we can make a small start toward demolishing that hypocrisy 35 cents won't seem too much, will it?

Question: "A few weeks ago my neighbor and I, the fatties of our block, sent away to a mail order house for two pairs of 'inflatable shorts' guaranteed to take inches from our hips. We've followed the directions faithfully, even hysterically, without the slightest results. Have we been had?"

Answer: Oh, my, yes indeed. Had in spades, my dear. Consumer testing organizations have found that the inflatable shorts or belts, advertised in leading magazines and with a substantial sale in the United States and Canada, are worthless. The advertising claims of two products in particular, "Trim-jeans" and "Hot Pants" are now under investigation by the U.S. Federal Trade Commission at the urging of the Council of Better Business Bureaus.

One particular study, made with volunteer prisoners at Lorton, a correctional institution in Virginia, resulted in the conclusion by qualified medical authorities that "these types of products are worthless, if not dangerous." The Journal of the American Medical Association notes that there's no clinical evidence that spot reduction of the hips, thighs or buttocks is possible.

The Better Business Bureau's head office wrote to 11 purchasers of "Trim-jeans." There were nine replies. Seven stated that they had followed directions, but achieved no loss of inches. One had a loss of an inch and one-half immediately after use, but it was all back the next day. The ninth respondent was forbidden by her doctor to use the garment because of a kidney condition.

Question: "Your recent criticism of the franchised dance studios in Victoria was certainly justified, but could you not add a word of support for the locally-owned businesses which do not play these gimmick games? I am thinking particularly of Elsie's Studio of Dancing where so many of us have found enjoyment over the years."

Answer: Elsie Holtum, a vivacious and dedicated woman who looks on ballroom dancing as a way of life, rather than a mere diversion, says that, yes, it's true that such articles from time to time do have an adverse effect for all studios. Says Elsie: "It shouldn't cost a fortune to learn to dance and certainly there shouldn't be the monstrous, binding contracts that we read about. Still, I'm very pleased that you wrote the article. I'd like to shout it from the rooftops."

Children Clinging to Life

One of the five children injured in a three-car collision on the Patricia Bay Highway last week was released from hospital Sunday.

Three others remain in critical condition.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said Catherine Pope, 5, daughter of G. R. Pope, 421 Brookleigh, was sent home. She was riding in the car driven by Mrs. Gail Wickens, 30, of 420 Brookleigh killed in the crash at Sayward and Pat Bay Wednesday.

Denis Demeule, 5, daughter of Roger Demeule, 5443 Hamsterly is also in poor condition at St. Joeseph's.

3 Mayors In By Acclamation

Esquimalt residents elected a mayor and three aldermen by default today when no one opposed them for the Dec. 11 municipal election.

Mayor Art Young and Aldermen Kenneth Hill, Arthur Cuthbert and Arthur Mebs were re-elected by acclamation as the noon deadline for nominations passed with no one else entering the election.

Returning officer M.W.E. Allen said he is not sure if this was the first-ever all-acclamation election "but certainly within the last 10 to 15 years."

Late nominations brought to 11 the number seeking the four Victoria aldermanic seats while in Saanich, two late nominations brought the field to 10 candidates.

In Oak Bay, Mayor Frances Elford was re-elected by acclamation. Ald. Alan Hoey withdrew in the aldermanic contest and Elmer McEwen filed this morning. There is a five-way contest for the three aldermanic seats.

SPLASHY RIDE on a plastic slide was most popular feature of new Crystal Pool in Central Park, opened officially over the weekend. More than 10,000 swimmers, performers and viewers poured through the new complex in its first two days, and administrators report only minor problems were found during the break-in period. Free swimming at the pool continues through the week. See story on Page 37.

Unionists Cut Concrete Flow

Concrete deliveries to a commercial building site in Esquimalt were halted this morning in the continuing dispute between Wigmar Construction Ltd. and local building trade unionists.

Wigmar, a non-union company, also had concrete deliveries stopped Friday at another site, on Courtney Street.

An Ocean Cement concrete truck turned back this morning at the Esquimalt site, at the corner of Fraser Street and Esquimalt Road, when confronted with a number of unionists. There was no picketing.

Karl Fritz, superintendent of Wigmar Construction, said his company will sue Ocean Cement and Butler Brothers for "breach of contract" because the concrete wasn't delivered.

He said six men were working on the Esquimalt site and 27 on the three projects the company is working on in Greater Victoria.

Fritz said Wigmar workers could join building unions "if they want to" but he said they have indicated they don't want to join.

He said Wigmar pays union rates in most cases, but admitted the company doesn't match union fringe benefits including pensions, hours, sick benefit and holiday pay.

"Everyone should have the right to work in this country, whether he wants to join the union or not," he said.

He also said a union contractor refused to send a crane to the Esquimalt site "so we are buying one and it will only work for non-union contractors." He described the move as a co-operative arrangement for the benefit of non-union contractors.

The commercial building in Esquimalt is being constructed for Diversified Holdings Ltd. It has progressed to the point where it is ready for concrete to be poured for foundations.

John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, said he is happy with the response of individual union members "who as a matter of principle refuse to deliver to that site."

On the employees' attitude towards joining building unions, Schibli said the workers are "under the gun" because of the company's "anti-union policy." He had talked to employees "and the response is good considering the circumstances."

Ask the Times

Q. What is the cause of baldness? Why are there more bald-headed men than women? Are there any specialists in Victoria?—A.B.

A. There is disagreement about the cause of baldness. Generally it is blamed on old age, when failure in the nutrition of the scalp occurs and new hairs don't grow to replace lost ones.

Pre-senile baldness may be caused by ill-health, wearing tight leather bands inside the hat, closely fitting waterproof or cloth caps, anemia, or nervous complaints.

Baldness is connected with the function of the male hormone, which might explain why it occurs in men.

For the names of specialists in Victoria, you should consult the yellow pages of your telephone directory.

Q. Can you tell me if Spencer Castle was open to the public this year?—H.L.

A: Spencer Castle has been purchased by two Port Alberni developers who use the house as a private residence.

HOPEFULS QUIZZED ON ENVIRONMENT

All candidates for the Dec. 11 elections in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are being invited to state their position on a whole range of environmental questions, from highrise development to sewage disposal.

The Victoria branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control, which has drawn up the questionnaires, says candidates' answers to the 31 questions listed will be made available to any interested voters "without comment."

SPEC president John White said today the questions have been so phrased that most can be answered by a simple yes or no, but still give some indication of a candidate's basic attitudes on important environmental issues.

The answers received will be analyzed and may be published, he said, but it is not the society's intention that any candidates will be "condemned to eternal fire" on the basis of his or her replies.

CUP OF MILK FUND SEEKS $15,000

Money raised through the Unitarian Service Committee's Christmas fund-raising campaign in Victoria this year will be used for the relief of Pakistani refugees.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova arrived here Friday evening at the end of her cross-Canada tour which began Sept. 16 in St. John's, Newfoundland.

The target for all Canada is $1,345,000 in funds and gifts in kind.

Funds raised in Victoria will be used to help Pakistani refugees.

Dr. Hitschmanova has christened the appeal The Cup of Milk Fund.

"From the bottom of my heart I hope the appeal will be a success," she said.

She hopes the local campaign will raise $15,000 to buy one and a half boxcars of powdered milk.

"At a cost of 2 cents a cup this would give three-quarters of a million hungry children a drink of milk," she said.

Dr. Hitschmanova described the difference in the appearance of Korean babies who received feedings of evaporated milk provided by the B.C. government.

"We receive two boxcar loads of evaporated milk a year," she said. "This milk goes to undernourished, spindly babies whose mothers cannot nurse.

"The result of this feeding is a miracle. Little skeletons turn into fat, cuddly babies. We call the milk B.C.'s wonder drink."

Dr. Hitschmanova will show slides of these "B.C. babies" and other USC projects at the official opening of the Victoria campaign Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the St. John Ambulance building, 941 Pandora Avenue.

Drugs Too Costly For Aged—Mayor

Pensioners in Victoria are paying too much for drugs, Mayor Courtney Haddock said today.

But the mayor was unable to recommend a single specific solution to the problem when he met this morning with Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Haddock told Loffmark he is co-chairman of the Vancouver Island branch of the B.C. Heart Foundation and has been interested in high drug prices since December, 1970, "and even longer."

He said 22 per cent of the city's population are people on fixed incomes, many of whom are paying up to $30 a month for drugs.

"They're living in genteel poverty and unnecessarily so," Haddock said.

Loffmark said the provincial pharmaceutical branch dispenses certain life-sustaining drugs for heart patients and other severely ill people at low costs. He promised to check practices at Victoria hospitals regarding drug dispensing to ensure the same policy is followed here as in Vancouver.

The mayor denied his visit to Loffmark was an electioneering gambit.

Sooke Man Reinstated on Welfare

A board of inquiry today reversed a decision by the Langford social assistance office to cut off welfare payments to a Sooke man because he lives too far from employment opportunities.

David Morrow, 25, lives on Sooke Road near 17-Mile House. His appeal against the cut-off was heard this morning by a panel consisting of social worker Robert Manchester, YMCA youth worker John Durkin and Elaine Olszewski, of the Low Income Group.

The panel recommended immediate reinstatement of Morrow's $118 monthly assistance. Their report will be forwarded to the provincial rehabilitation department for ratification, which is given "99 times out of 100," a panellist said.

Welfare officials have confirmed there is a crackdown in effect to enforce a department requirement that welfare recipients be willing and available for work.

The Low Income Group said the department appears to be "after" youths and single recipients in the area north of Humpback Road.

Audience Gets Into the Act

SHELTON, Wash. (UPI) — The play's the thing in an experiment in children's theater being used by the drama department at SheNon High School this year.

According to drama coach Dean Tarrach, Shelton is only the third school in the nation to try this innovation. It was done with great success at Florida State University and the Peppermint Tent at the University of Minnesota, he explained.

This type of theater is designed to appeal to children of five to eight years of age. It is greatly dependent upon the participation of the audience.

The play is given in the round with the audience surrounding the stage. The appeal to the children is the informality of the production and the fact that they are encouraged to take part in the play.

Since the children already know the story, it can be changed easily throughout the play.

Tarrach explained that the cast comes on as a group of strolling players. Since this type of theater is modeled after the Comedia Dell'Arte theater of the Italian Renaissance period, the group is dressed as actors might have been during the Renaissance.

Each player chooses a name and the group chooses a name for itself. The group has its own prologue and song before the play begins.

An important member of the cast is the "mute," who supplies the cast with necessary props, although much of the play is in pantomime. The mute also plays minor roles when needed and must have a quick eye to see what is needed as the play progresses.

Beat Pollution In Simple Ways

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

There is no generation gap when it comes to fighting pollution. All ages are banding together campaigning for pure air, clean water and a more beautiful environment.

Some groups tell the story with a "this?" picture of a junk-filled yard and compares it to an "or this?" photo of some of the items turned into playground equipment. Many clubs and schools are mapping "pollution patrols" to remind us that healthy, beautiful surroundings are everyone's job.

Such environmental-action projects usually fall into three categories — pollution abatement, conservation of wildlife and natural areas, and beautification.

According to experts, each category lends itself to poster possibilities. They suggest: decide on a theme, using imagination in picture-taking including close-ups as well as long shots.

Currently, some industries are recycling disposable materials back into practical uses. Civic-minded citizens are learning that tin cans, bottles, etc., often can be turned into display items.

Here, a one-pound coffee can becomes a container boasting a clown's head. A can is covered in wallpaper and forms the body. The head is a styrofoam ball wired to the plastic lid.

She Balances Home and Public Career

Edmonton alderman Una Maclean Evans, here briefly for a Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipality board meeting, is proof that if a married woman with young children is really interested in public life, she will succeed.

Recently elected for a third term as an alderman, Mrs. Evans successfully balances home, husband and three small children (the baby is just two years old) with her public career.

Right now she is chairman of Edmonton's public affairs committee. In her last term she was chairman of utilities and transportation. She also takes her turn as deputy mayor.

On an average she works 40 to 45 hours a week for her city. That includes telephone time, correspondence, preparing briefs and reading documents.

However there is a confession that "I often bypass social obligations that go with the job. After all, when you have a home and children something has to be given up."

In no way will Una Evans concede that a young family is a deterrent to going into public service.

Must Plan

What she does believe is that if a woman is genuinely interested and wishes to run for office, she must plan for it. Also it is important that she have a good knowledge of the business of government.

"Go to council meetings, find out what are the main areas of concern, then study those areas carefully before presenting herself for election."

Going back to the subject of home and family, Alderman Evans says with quiet assurance, "if her interest is strong enough, a woman will find a way."

In her own case, that "way" includes the wholehearted support of husband Art, well-known Edmonton Journal columnist and the help of a "wonderful" housekeeper.

Turning to the business of Edmonton's government, this well-informed woman speaks of a population growth of 16 per cent in 1970 and a present over-all figure of 500,000.

"We also have 7,000 civic employees," she adds. "That's big business. I don't think there is a corporation in Alberta any bigger."

The city owns most utilities, power generation and distribution, sewer, water, telephone and transit systems and it has a municipal airport. "Within the next three or four years I expect we'll also go into rapid transit."

Chief Commissioner

City hall has a chief commissioner, also three other commissioners responsible respectively for economic, public and utility and transportation affairs. Main standing council committees correspond to these areas.

With population growth, land has become a problem for Edmonton.

One solution has been to assemple nine square miles south of the city, the alderman told me. "It's all city owned. We will service the area, supply the lots and sell them for half the price of private promoters."

So far the city has grown and prospered under one civic government (a mayor and 12 aldermen). It is not cut up into municipalities.

"I don't think municipality government would work satisfactorily for us," Mrs. Evans says. "Although, if Edmonton continues its rapid growth, some form of unitary municipal government may eventually become necessary in order to keep the burden of taxes down."

Three aldermen were chosen from each of four wards, each representing approximately 120,000 people.

"This way a closer liaison with people will be maintained, although the aldermen will have no more responsibility to any one ward than to another."

Potatoes Source of Protein

OTTAWA (CP) — Protein in potatoes? There's more than you think the agriculture department reported recently.

Dr. M. S. Kaldy of the department's research station at Lethbridge, Alta., says in a weekly bulletin that potatoes, with the water removed, contain about 10 per cent protein an amount similar to that in most cereals.

"Potatoes are a better source of protein than most people think," Dr. Kaldy says. And the protein quality is "exceptionally high" in some potato varieties.

Proteins are complex amino acids.

Leisure Time Allows Housewives To Return to Work Force

● Women returning to work after a number of years at home face more problems than others looking for jobs today. Today, in the last of a two-part series, Times staff writer Helen Melnyk looks at the woman who chooses to go back to work because of increased leisure time.

By HELEN MELNYK
Times Staff

Occupation housewife may be a full-time job while young children are still at home.

But when children reach school age and eventually grow up and leave home, the housewife finds herself with spare time on her hands.

More and more women make this an opportunity to resume careers or studies abandoned early in their marriage, or embark upon altogether new fields.

The ambitions of Mrs. Dorothy Fetterley led her into a predominantly male field — law. She completed three years in the University of British Columbia School of Law and is now articling with a local firm.

After her marriage Mrs. Fetterley worked intermittently as a secretary to supplement her husband's income. A job with Saanich municipality sparked her interest in law. She made inquiries as to the possibilities of becoming a lawyer.

"With the number of young students trying to get into law school, I felt very fortunate to be accepted," she said.

"Once my mind was made up, I put my time and effort into doing it," she said.

Admittedly, there were times when she wanted to give it all up, "but then everyone feels like quitting at some time or another." Then there was the commuting back and forth to Vancouver every week and absences from the family for three years.

Mrs. Dorothy Fetterley now articling with local law firm

Have Courage

"Today more women have the courage and the means to break away from the traditional concept of remaining in the home to make a career for themselves," Mrs. Fetterley said.

She said a woman needs the support of her family before pursuing career plans. Her husband and two children, now age 18 and 20, regarded her aspirations with "mixed feelings" at first, but now are "proud" of her.

Mrs. Fetterley's career has not affected her husband's role as the breadwinner of the family.

Meet People

A household with grown children does not make for much diversity, said Mrs. Fetterley. A career in law has widened her field of interests and enabled her to meet people and "be of service."

In June, she will be called before the bar to take the final exams to qualify as full-fledged lawyer. She does not feel that a younger lawyer has any edge over her.

"Except that the time I can look forward to practising is shorter," she said.

Looking after four children was a "total career" for Mrs. Margaret Dempsey. By the time they were all in school, her interest in psychology revived. Three years ago she enrolled as a part-time graduate in the psychology department of the University of Victoria. She is now working on her master's thesis.

"I always wanted to further my education," said Mrs. Dempsey. "When the children were grown, I was no longer tied to the house and had the time to do so. I'm also a busy person and not overly crazy about housework."

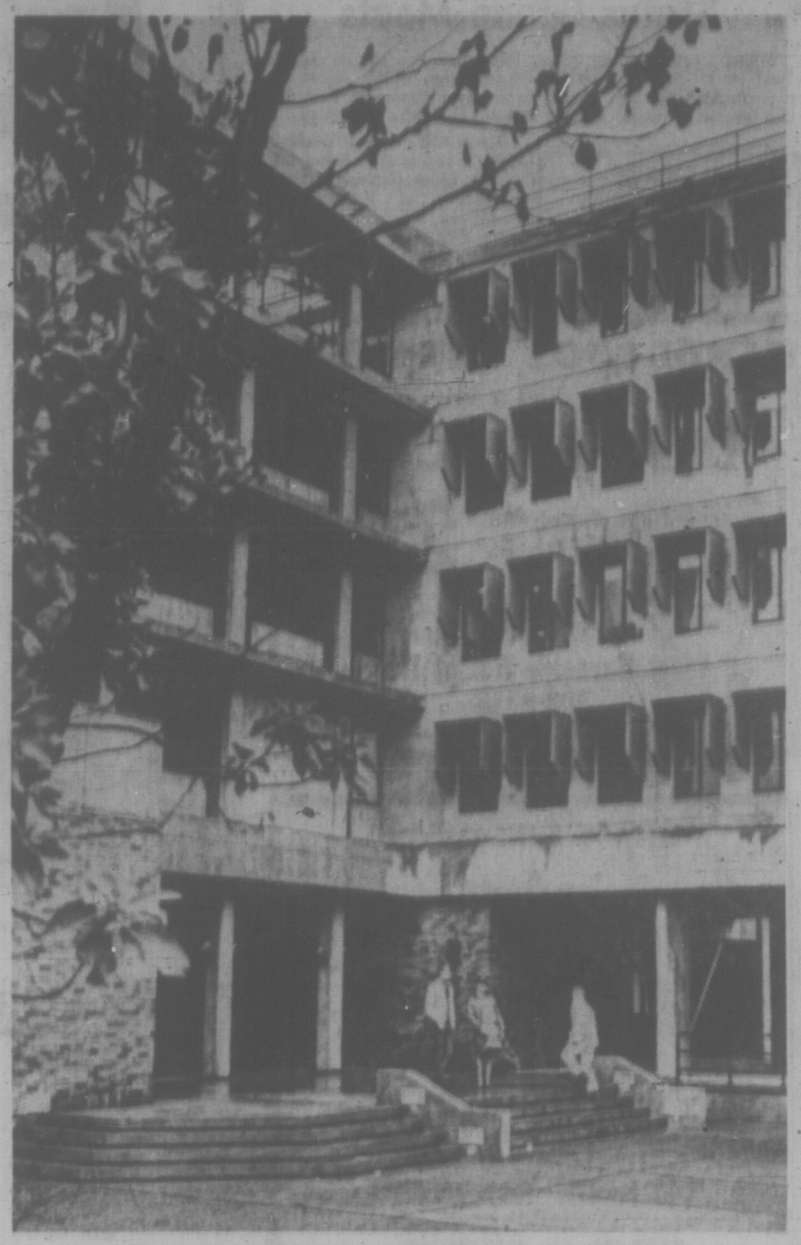
Family Approves

Although her family was always very much in favor of her returning to university, it took Mrs. Dempsey two years to make the final decision.

"I was considerably older than the students and many of the professors," she said. "Since I had been out of school for so long, there was a lot of background to catch up on.

"For the first little while, things were hard. But it didn't take too long.

"A few friends have asked my why I bother," said Mrs. Dempsey. "I find my studies to be very satisfying. I like to grapple with something new."



More and more housewives going back to university

Stockbroker Widow's Best Friend

VANCOUVER (CP) — A stockbroker may become a newly-widowed woman's best friend, says Elizabeth Cooper, one of Canada's few female brokers.

Women react quiet differently to men when it comes to the stock market, says Mrs. Cooper, who moved here from Toronto two months ago and is a broker with Bache and Co. Ltd., and "the woman who becomes a widow really has to rely on someone."

"Often, she suddenly finds herself with a large sum of money from an insurance policy and this new money makes her very vulnerable."

Many people, some of them unscrupulous, approach a widow with investment propositions, Mrs. Cooper said, but the best thing she can do is leave the money in the bank until she has taken the time to decide what course her life will follow.

"It takes a while for most women to realize what they are going to do—go back to work, travel, stay home with the children.

"What most often happens is that they become income-conscious and invariably wind up with more income than they really need, putting them in a higher bracket than they were in before."

Most men do little to prepare their wives to handle their money alone, Mrs. Cooper said, and many women have no contact with their husband's stockbroker.

Simple Matter

"Yet it's such a simple matter for a broker to encourage a woman's interest. Once the idea is suggested, then both men and women become very receptive."

Mrs. Cooper, who has been in the investment business since 1965, was the first woman in Canada to get an American licence, allowing her to trade on the New York, American and Associated stock exchanges.

She says women who enter the stock market have some investing idiosyncracies.

More Biases

"They have more biases than men. If they had a lemon of a car 15 years ago, they still won't touch that particular car manufacturer's stock today.

"Or if a woman doesn't drink at all, she wouldn't look at a brewery or distillery stock. Women are much more positive this way than men."

Women like to invest in companies with which they can relate.

"They'll buy stock in a company whose products they can also buy. They'd be happy with equity in a company which makes appliances if they could then buy some of the appliances, for example.

"Investment to a woman is a very personal thing."

Extra Space an Asset

By PAULINE GRAVES

If you have ever built or remodelled a home, you know that a house is a series of compromises. In order to get an advantage here, you have to give a little there. And sometimes you can turn an apparent liability into an asset.

Pictured here is a house in which the stairway to the second floor had to be centred, which left a five-foot by six-foot alcove behind the stair landing in a corner of the living room.

This tiny space was put to good use by becoming a small study area, the idea of interior designer Carole Elchen.

Living room carpeting and wall colors were used to extend the sizes of both areas, and generally the furnishings blend. What appears to be a Parsons table, however, functions as a desk, and it has drawers and storage space behind shutter fronts at the end away from the living room, next to the wall.

Shelves installed high on the back wall fill empty space without crowding. And the shelves turn the corner, continuing along the adjacent wall just 18 inches. A vertical panel, nine-inches wide, goes down from ceiling to desk and finishes off the shelves.

This leaves four feet of the six-foot-long desk surface clear, so that the 18-inch depth can be used to capacity.

There's a bonus, too. From the study, doors open into the space underneath the stair landing on the left. This is great, out-of-the-way storage, not only for files, but also for luggage and Christmas decorations and other items.

Just Don't Answer

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and am 6 ft. 6, but that's not a problem because I have always been tall for my age.

My problem is what to answer people who ask me: "How's the weather up there?"

DEAR TALL: Don't bother. They don't expect a reply. They're in the same class with those who ask, "Is it hot enough for ya'?" (Or "cold enough?")

DEAR ABBY: Re "Mad" — the parents who were mad because an uncle took their children out of camp for an evening without their permission: The camp was badly at fault for releasing the children to anyone, even though he claimed to be their uncle, without express approval from the parents. And the uncle was at fault for not making his arrangements through the parents.

Sorry, I had to disagree with you when you said the parents were needlessly over-exercised. I am an old-timer, and both a parent and former headmaster in a boys' boarding school. — E. A.

DEAR E. A.: Mea culpa! Ten whacks with a ruler, or whatever you headmasters used to whack the boys with when they needed it.

DEAR ABBY: Do you remember the Greenlease kidnapping of 18 to 20 years ago?

A couple arrived at a private school here in Kansas City, said they were Bobby's aunt and uncle, and walked out with the boy. He was later found — murdered.

Today, we do not let a child out of school in this town, even to his parent without some positive identification. I would wonder about a camp that would release a child to anyone without the permission of the parents or guardian who placed them there.

Abby, please don't encourage any more uncles.

Your Friend, H. W. White.

DEAR FRIEND: It's people like you who keep people like me humble. Thanks for writing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BARBARA: I think you should tell Sandy that if she is serious about wanting all the girls in her wedding party to be blondes, she should select blondes. Tell her, too, you will gladly stand up for her, but you won't "dye" for her. And what's wrong with a wig?

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Is Bennett Rooting For Federal Tories?

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative party officials say they are having difficulty hiding their enthusiasm about what's happening in British Columbia.

And there is room for a big happening, since the party holds none of the 23 B.C. federal seats.

The picture is by no means clear yet. But there are growing indications that the provincial Social Credit party, under Premier Bennett, is quietly rooting for a Conservative victory in the next federal election.

Several former Social Credit MPs are known to be working actively on behalf of the federal Conservatives.

After the recent federal-provincial economic conference Bennett, a former Conservative himself, predicted a Tory victory in the next federal election. Conservative party officials here could hardly contain their glee. It isn't often that the leader of one party, even though in the provincial field, predicts the victory of another one.

Robert Thompson, former national leader of the Social Credit party, and now the Conservative MP for Red Deer, is known to be considering a move to a British Columbia base. Sources say Thompson has been active in developing an alliance with Social Credit organizations in that province.

"With a national Social Credit party in existence, we can hardly expect Mr. Bennett to throw his full weight behind us out in the open," said one Conservative. "But we could get a lot of help in certain ridings if no Social Credit candidates entered the race."

Opposition leader Robert Stanfield has made frequent trips to B.C. concentrating on meetings with local organizations. Party officials say their machinery is in better shape in B.C. than it has been for a decade.

They also think they will be helped by the new provincial leader of the Conservatives, Derrill Warren, a former campaigner for Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed.

Help from the B.C. Social Credit government, if it materializes, would owe something to the chill that exists between the B.C.-Alberta Branches of the party and the Quebec-centred national wing led by Real Caouette.

Several Shots Fired At Union Leader's Home

KITIMAT (CP) — A shot was fired into the home of Ed Huhn, president of the Kitimat local of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Huhn said he heard several loud bangs outside his house at the weekend and one shot came in through the window of his eight-year-old daughter's bedroom. Huhn said his daughter, Sherri, and a friend who was staying overnight were not injured.

The union is currently involved in a jurisdictional dispute with the longshoremen's union over work on the waterfront.

Huhn said it was "difficult to tell if this had anything to do with the jurisdictional thing."

Church Not Shocked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Anglican, Roman Catholic and United Church officials said they were not shocked by a city council finance committee recommendation that churches be stripped of some of their tax exemptions.

A spokesman for the Roman Catholic church said his church "wouldn't be overjoyed" at the prospect of paying property taxes and said meetings would be held to discuss the situation.

"For a number of years there has been a certain amount of hostility about churches being exempted," the spokesman said. "It was inevitable."

CN Crews Still Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian National Railways freight trains were tied up in Vancouver and Prince George over the weekend as a walkout by switchmen went through its fourth day.

About 240 switchmen from the Vancouver yards and another 40 at Prince George stopped work Thursday, dissatisfied with contract clauses agreed to by their union last June in Montreal.

W. C. Cooper, chairman of Local 1747, United Transportation Union, said Sunday that seniority rules and certain working conditions set out in the contract, which went into effect Oct. 31, were at the centre of the dispute.

Revenues Diverted

TERRACE (CP) — The Terrace-based Northern British Columbia Chamber of Mines says recently published figures show the B.C. governments diverts taxation and other revenues from the mining industry to other projects such as building dams, railways and hydro power systems.

The chamber said figures for fiscal 1971, show the government made a profit of $48.7 million from the mining industry as compared to $35.2 million from the forest industry. At the same time, only $4.2 million was allotted for spending in the department of mines, compared to $38.3 million for the department of lands and forests.

THE PEOPLE'S MAYOR SPEAKS OUT

Negative thinking may win headlines in a newspaper. But it doesn't mean progress in a City.

Positive thinking from a united City Council means debate and progress. Think back over the past two years and you will recall the root cause of most dissension on Council.

It's time for decisions, not dissension. Positive thinking for the people, not negative thinking to win self-adulation.

Cleaning Help

HONOLULU (AP) — More than 217,000 volunteers participated in a nine-day cleanup drive that ended during the weekend at Honolulu beaches and other Oahu Island locations, officials said Sunday. They picked up about 3,300 tons of litter.

'I Didn't Want to Leave My People'

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Angela Davis says she fled after the Marin County Courthouse shootout, fearing she would not receive a fair trial, but refused to leave the country because she did not want to leave "my people."

In a copyright interview with Mary Neiswender of the Long Beach, Calif. Independent Press-Telegram, Miss Davis, a 27-year-old black militant communist, said she regards the U.S. as her country but is bent upon reforming it.

Appearing thin and wearing jail-issue clothing and no makeup, Miss Davis avoided most questions about the case. A court order forbids her and other principals in the case from discussing it.

Miss Davis did not say where she was during the shootout, only that she fled the state afterward because, she said: "... I couldn't have received a fair trial ..."

Asked why she did not flee the U.S., Miss Davis replied:

"I had been in Europe for a number of years as I told you and I came back precisely because I felt that being removed from this country and from my people in this country, I was really not able fully to understand what was going on."

SOLEDAD BROTHERS

Miss Davis said she got involved in the "Soledad Brothers" cause about March 1969.

"I remember seeing their picture on the front page of the Los Angeles Times and reading the story and feeling sort of very impotent because I didn't know at that time whether anything was going to be done and how to go about things."

She said she attended a meeting then to "talk" about what to do and that later "I found myself right in the centre — in charge of projecting an effective defence."

Miss Davis recounted a visit she made to Cuba as she stressed a point she made repeatedly — her determination to remain in the U.S. to improve it.

TOOK TESTS

"When I came back from Cuba in 1969, for instance and was approached by people in the news media, one of the things they would ask me was 'If you like it so much over in Cuba why didn't you stay?' I said that I certainly liked it ... but precisely because of the fact I feel that we have to achieve in this country what the Cubans achieved in Cuba I had to come back and work toward that and not take the easy way out ... living in Cuba or living in Africa."

She said she had developed eye trouble due to prison conditions and that a specialist took "tests which showed I might have an early case of glaucoma ...

"I'm cooped up in a small room all day long with an iron door and an opaque skylight. There's a small window — about five inches square — where — can look out into the corridor ..."

Make Constructive Use Of Those Dry Fall Days

Shod and clad for late November and not thinking in terms of July, we can enjoy the accomplishment of small tasks as tying in canes of climbing roses.

Don't do any pruning on these unless there is obviously dead wood to be removed. Long canes may have been loosened by recent 50-mile winds, or gusts at that speed.

Use soft twine; or old nylons and discarded pantyhose come in useful for long soft ties. Recycling on the home grounds.

This stretchy nylon material will also make tree ties to stakes. Be sure they are just loose enough, yet knotted firmly.

All ties and their stakes should be checked now, especially those set earlier this fall. Loosening of new roots in the wet soil can easily be fatal, yet not noticed perhaps until after the tree has leafed-out in spring.

The soil over the lately planted spring bulbs may look rather flat and compacted with the action of heavy raindrops. If accessible from a firm path, use a long handled, pronged cultivator to scratch the surface.

* * *

This tool is better for the job than a rake, because the teeth are longer and set further apart, therefore aerates better.

Breaking the surface also allows future moisture to be absorbed instead of running over the smooth soil surface to cause flooding elsewhere.

Small heathers which can be reached from a path will benefit from having a mixture of leafy compost and damp peatmoss put closely around the lower stems.

Work from the outer edges of each plant, lifting the little branches gently and pressing the mixture beneath and around.

This mulching, or dressing, serves several purposes. One, it keeps out several degrees of frost from the stems. Two, prevents the soil from baking and cracking next spring. Three, it will add humus particles which aid the fine new roots of heathers to become more numerous, and therefore the size of the plant increases.

As you spend these pleasant periods in the garden, note the beauty of bare twigs; the color of berry clusters; nature's designs traced in the bark of your trees.

In your few quiet moments outdoors, you may even see a downy woodpecker with scarlet head patch as I did last week!

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, our South declarer made a play that just couldn't be the winning one. Had he come up with an alternative play, he would have given himself a chance for survival. Although he probably would not have survived anyway, even a slight chance was better than no chance. Can you isolate declarer's "error" and bring it to light?

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♡ K J 5
◇ K J

WEST
♠ K 3
♡ 9 8 3 2

EAST
♡ 10 6 4
◇ 9 8 7 3 2

SOUTH
◇ A Q 5
♣ A 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

As is evident, South was in a horrendous slam contract, since he was missing both the ace and king of trumps. Yet it is difficult to fault South for his bid, for North really figured to have either the ace or king of trumps.

West's opening club lead was taken by dummy's queen, after which the deuce of spades was led, East's ace winning. Eventually, West's king of spades took the setting trick. Where did declarer err?

From South's point of view, it was perfectly obvious that he would have to lose two trump tricks unless the opponents blundered. As South played the hand, however, he gave them no chance to blunder.

When he led a low spade off dummy, if East had either the A-x or the K-x, he would play low automatically. And South would now have to lose two trump tricks.

But if South had won the opening lead in his own hand, and had led the trump queen at trick two, there was the chance that West, holding the doubleton K-3, might put up the king for fear that if he didn't, South's (presumed) ace would catch the king on the next trump lead. And if he put up the king today, East's singleton ace would be compelled to win the trick. The rest of the tricks would now belong to declarer.

Please do not say that it would have been foolish for West to have played the spade king on the original lead of the queen. Of course, it would have been foolish: if South possessed the spade ace, he would either have played it first, or he would have won the opening lead in dummy in order to finesse against East's hoped-for king.

Nevertheless, in my experience, there will be occasions when an unthinking West, in situations comparable to the above, will play the king on the queen. And South should have hoped that this was the day.

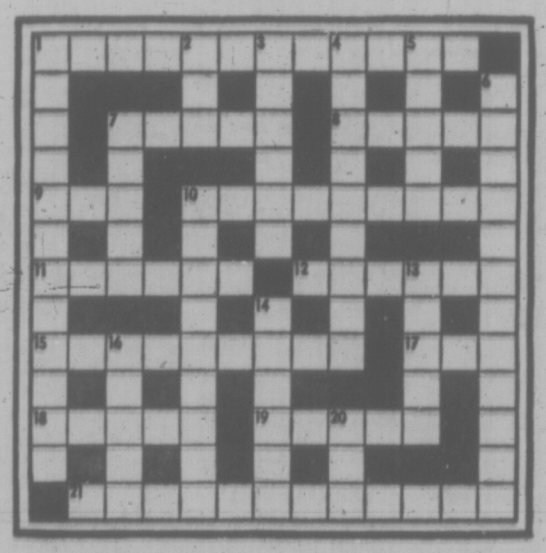
SOLUTION TUESDAY



FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"And how, with all that fuzz on their faces. But John's too young for you," replied Mary. "You figure it out yourself. If you add together the two digits of his age you get half what his age was a year ago."

(Answer tomorrow)

Dam Bursts

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Three children were killed and 100 persons left homeless when a primitive dam broke, sending 400 tons of mine tailings sweeping into a tiny Andean mountain community, authorities reported Sunday. The rock dam had been built across the mouth of a canyon to hold back mine tailings — leftover debris—from a nearby lead and zinc mine.

Open With a Splash

The city's new Crystal Pool in Central Park opened with a splash over the weekend as an estimated 10,000 children poured through the complex as swimmers, performers or spectators.

Recreation director Jack Morgan called the opening programs "tremendous." He said today a few bugs had been detected, including a couple of slow drains, but "nothing what can often be encountered in the early days of an operation this size."

A crowd of more than 1,000 watched Mayor Courtney Haddock officially open the $1.8-million building Saturday night.

Haddock recalled he had been initially opposed to the idea, but "I now must eat crow. When I opened the door of the building I was astounded by its scope and grandeur."

There are four pools—a T-shaped 50-metre pool, another one 25 metres long, a 16-by-40 foot training pool and a "familiarization" pool which contains 15 inches of water at its deepest end.

Saturday's opening festivities included two exhibitions of synchronized swimming, a water rologame, exhibition racing and a display of water safety techniques.

After next week the charge of pool use will be 75 cents for adults, 50 cents for students and 25 cents for children.

Ottawa Gets Blame

Sewering of properties in the west end of Saanich is being held up because of communications problems with Ottawa, Mayor Hugh Curtis said Saturday.

Saying he has had good cooperation locally, Curtis added: "It is just that Ottawa is 3,000 miles away."

To provide local connections in the Burnside area the municipality is trying to obtain easements for crossing the federal forestry research property on Burnside.

"No trunk lines are involved and the Vancouver forestry people are getting on it, so we hope it will be cleared up soon," Curtis said.

Cheque Spree: Man Charged

One man will be charged at Campbell River following a cheque-writing spree last Friday in Campbell River and Courtenay.

RCMP said a cheque-writing machine and some blank cheques belonging to McCurdy Creek Construction of Campbell River were recovered in Courtenay Friday.

The machine and cheques were stolen from the premises of the construction company about 8 p.m. on Friday and police were notified after one cheque was cashed in Campbell River.

No estimate of the cheques cashed was available.

NEW BOOKMOBILE ROLLS INTO SERVICE TODAY

The Greater Victoria Public Library's new bookmobile went into service today.

Replacing a vehicle which has served the area for more than 17 years, the new bookmobile can carry a stock of 3,200 books; 1,000 more than its predecessor.

It has been specially designed to provide space for oversized volumes and paperbacks, as well as large-type books for those who have difficulty reading conventional type. The body was built by Yarrows Ltd.

Because of the number of new stops the dates and times were not included in today's release. These can be checked by phoning bookmobile headquarters at 385-0221 or the main library.

The location of the new stops are:

Victoria — Fort and Pandora, Fifth and Topaz, Douglas and Simcoe, Moss and George, Linden and Rockland, Dowler and Kings.

Blast Killed 1,000 Otters

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The state department of fish and game has estimated that the Nov. 6 nuclear blast on Amchitka Island killed more than 1,000 sea otters.

Earlier, the department estimated 300-800 otters had died in the blast, but fish and game commissioner Wallace Noernberg says Karl Schneider, department biologist, has returned from a second study trip to the islands and revised the estimate.

Noernberg reported Schneider believes 800 animals on the north or Bering Sea side of Amchitka died and 200 to 300 on the Pacific Ocean side. There is no evidence the animals simply moved away, Shneider said.

Noernberg said the Amchitka Sea otter herd has been under intense study during the past three years and in that time the population has been estimated at more than 8,000 animals. The blast apparently killed about 15 per cent of them, he said.

At the time of the explosion, the commissioner said, the Amchitka herd was possibly at or above its optimum population level and therefore the viability of the herd should not be seriously affected by the deaths.

However, experimental harvest and transplant programs will probably will have to stop if the loss is substantiated, he said.

Sea otters have previously been taken to waters along the B.C., Washington and Oregon coasts as well as to southeastern Alaska. In addition, the state had been carrying on a harvest program, hiring Aleut hunters to take certain unmbers of the animals.

'DEER' KARYN OFF TO SCHOOL

SALMON, Idaho (AP) — More than a year after she was critically injured by a hunter who mistook her for a deer, seven-year-old Karyn Prestwich returns to school today.

Karyn, with her left leg in a cast to her waist, propped her crutches on a snowmobile and took a spin—by herself—around her home in North Fork near here.

The girl's plight attracted U.S.-wide attention after she was struck in the abdomen by a high-powered rifle bullet November of last year while waiting for a school bus. About $17,000 was donated to pay for medical bills.

While the girl was spending seven months in the hospital, an anonymous donor gave $2,000. A man from Washington State sent his coin collection, valued at $350. He said he worked 25 years on it. A family in Georgia sent $500.

"The man said he thought I was a deer," Karyn said at the hospital. She was wearing a brown coat.

"I just can't believe that people who don't even know her can care about her so very much," her mother said.

Bullets, Bombs Hurt Commerce

BELFAST (CP) — The bullets and the bombs that have been killing and maiming soldiers and civilians in crisis-torn Northern Ireland have also cast a pall of gloom over commerce in Ulster and given thousands of Ulstermen a bad case of the jitters.

It all forms part of what's turned out to be a war of nerves, as well as of direct physical attack, by the underground Irish Republican Army, an organization dedicated to making Ulster ungovernable in its present form.

But skepticism about the claims of progress against the guerrillas is found among Protestants too, despite their eagerness to see the IRA crushed.

Groups such as Rev. Ian Paisley's Democratic Unionist party insist that IRA tactics are daily becoming more sophisticated, proof in Paisleyite eyes that Ulster guerrillas are receiving help and advice from sinister revolutionary forces outside Northern Ireland.

WANT POLICE ARMED

The militant Protestants cite worries of this kind in urging an increase in the number of civilian police and steps to have them fully armed again.

Paisleyites credit themselves with playing a restraining role inside the Protestant majority, prevailing on it to hold back from direct retaliation against guerrillas in Catholic areas while at the same time putting pressure on the Unionist government for radically intensified security measures.

But Paisley's men add ominously that the Protestants can't be expected to wait indefinitely for such stepped-up government action and that they have thousands of guns and much military know-how ready for use in the event of a "spontaneous uprising against the terrorists."

The extreme Protestants have recently had something to gloat over in the form of the alleged involvement of priests to the Belfast escapees, the spokesman said:

"I'd prefer it hadn't happened. I'd prefer it if clerics weren't openly associated with the movement."

Nevertheless some, though by no means all of the Catholic clergy in Ireland, have declared their support of the IRA and the security forces in the North are constantly complaining about what they call the acquiescence of other clergy in the violence perpetrated by the provisionals.

The provisionals themselves, however, say the united Irish republic they would establish if their anti-British fight succeeds would provide for a rigid separation of church and state.

PREFER TACTICS

This and other "progressive" planks in their political platform, such as the nationalization of key industries, are being highlighted by the provisionals to prove they are not —as self-described enemies of violence on the Irish left have branded them—"green fascists."

Moreover the provisionals say their present tactic of sniping at British soldiers and blasting selected businesses in central Belfast is the sort of war-of-nerves approach they prefer to any all-out battle with the well-equipped troops patrolling Ulster's main city.

Contradicting the British claims of anti-guerrilla success, the IRA says that even now its attacks on "economic targets" are causing Ulster businessmen to begin frantically lobbying Unionist Prime Minister Faulkner for an eventual deal with the seemingly determined elements in Northern Ireland fighting for merger with the independent south.

The IRA denies British claims that its battalions in Belfast have been virtually crippled by troops in recent months.

The IRA also contends that British efforts to hamper illicit border crossings into the North have not stopped the flow of guerrilla arms and personnel and have, on the contrary, prompted more Catholic civilians into active support for "the cause"—at least to the extent that border-area residents are pitching in to re-fill the roadblocking craters blasted by British Army engineers.

Princess Anne Swings From Pop to Temper

LONDON (CP) — Princess Anne has a "shouting-point temper" and when she is in an imperious mood, the Buckingham Palace staff refer to her among themselves as "Madam."

But the queen's 21-year-old daughter is also a swinging pop fan who "baths to pop, eats to pop and goes to bed to pop." Among friends, her favorite expressions are "bloody," "fab" and "grotty", and she is far less snobbish about her social life than many debs from less eminent homes.

A country doctor's son who met her at a party was astounded when she suggested that he call her up sometime at the palace. He did so with some trepidation, was immediately put through to Princess Anne's suite and she promptly invited him to a family dinner party at Windsor Castle.

These and many other glimpses of the royal family off duty are given in a new book called Royal Sporting Lives, by journalist Gwen Robyns, published by Hamish Hamilton.

Despite its title, the book—half text, half photographs — ranges beyond the royal family's sporting activities to cover the whole home life of the queen and her immediate circle, the queen mother, Princess Margaret, the Kents and the Gloucesters.

Most of the family, except for Princess Margaret and her photographer husband, share the queen's simple, country tastes, preferring to spend their leisure hours walking, horseback riding, surrounded by children, dogs and horses far from the metropolitan whirl.

During her daily morning stint of work on state papers, her favorite relaxation at odd moments is the Daily Telegraph crossword, and she has a keen interest in word games and jigsaw puzzles.

Few of the royal women are as domesticated as some of their continental counterparts. The queen's culinary expertise is limited to mixing salads at Balmoral barbecue picnics, and Princess Anne's to helping Prince Philip with the steaks. The queen prefers simple English cooking and dislikes all kinds of shellfish, while Anne's pet hate is peas.

COPTER VANISHES

SAIGON (UPI) The U.S. Command said 33 American servicemen are missing aboard a big U.S. Army CH47 Chinook helicopter along the upper coast of South Vietnam and that a massive air and sea search today had failed to find any trace of the aircraft.

The search for the big twin-rotored Chinook, believed to have gone down at sea Sunday on a 40-mile flight from the northern city of Da Nang to the headquarters of the U.S. 101st airborne division at Phu Bai, was being led by a navy destroyer, the USS Epperson, and included dozens of helicopters and planes.

"First in six out of seven rallies isn't bad. That's more than 5,000 rally miles and over 25,000 actual miles in our Corolla 1600. That's proof enough for us.

"What we had to drive through and over and in to win those rallies you wouldn't believe. But our Corolla just kept coming back for more, rally after rally...no matter how hard we pushed it.

"The Corolla is just one of those cars you can rely on. You get this feeling of confidence when you're driving that it can take anything. We didn't win the National Championship with a weakling. We had just about the most dependable and best car anyone could have."

If the Toyota Corolla is the best car Walter Boyce and Doug Woods have come across for their kind of driving, it figures it's got to be the best for your kind of driving, too.

PM, Nixon Meet Slated

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau declined today to say specifically what he will discuss with President Nixon at a meeting for which a date has not yet been fixed.

He said in the Commons that multilateral and bilateral matters will be discussed but that the agenda for the talks remains to be drawn up.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said he is pleased to see that a Trudeau-Nixon meeting will be held, especially after Mr. Trudeau had repeatedly rejected such an idea.

The prime minister said Mr. Nixon is meeting a number of heads of government and it was appropriate that Canada should also talk with the president.

PM COULDN'T ANSWER

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the government's policy on foreign investment will be announced before the meeting with Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Trudeau said he could not answer because the date of the meeting has not been decided.

The prime minister said in reply to NDP Leader David Lewis that his office sought the meeting with the president "some time last week."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp would meet U.S. State Secretary William Rogers and it was considered that the Trudeau-Nixon meeting should follow as soon as possible, the prime minister added.

Mr. Lewis asked whether discussions will cover the 10-percent U.S. surcharge on imports, other U.S. economic measures and Canadian policy on foreign investment.

Mr. Trudeau said this was the kind of subject he would be interested in discussing. But the agenda had not been established.

Province To Change Tax Rate

Premier Bennett said today retroactive legislation will be introduced in the legislature in February to change the provincial income tax system to blend with federal tax changes.

Under the new system B.C. will have to increase its rate of personal income tax to 30.5 per cent of the federal tax compared with the current 28 per cent of the "basic tax."

Bennett said this doesn't amount to an increase because the higher rate is necessary for the province to get the equivalent revenue as computed on a smaller federal tax base.

B.C. income taxes will continue to be the lowest in Canada, along with Nova Scotia and Ontario if they go to the 30.5 per cent rate from their current 28, Bennett said.

"There will be no double taxation in British Columbia," Bennett said.

Residents of seven of the 10 provinces pay what amounts to a double tax on a portion of income tax.

A table released by Bennett shows Manitoba shifting to provincial rate of 42.5 per cent of federal tax compared with the current 39 per cent of basic tax.

CDC Centre To Locate In Vancouver

OTTAWA (CP) — The head office of the Canada Development Corporation will be established in Vancouver within two years.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today that while the initial head office will be in Ottawa "the government has made known to the board of directors its wish to see the location of the head office moved to Vancouver within two years."

The corporation's first chairman is H. Anthony Hampson, president and chairman of the board of Capital Dynamics Management Ltd., of Montreal. The president is Marisall A. Crowe, deputy secretary of the cabinet since 1967.

Manson Sentenced

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson, already under a death sentence for the seven murders in the Sharon Tate case, was sentenced today to life imprisonment by a jury which convicted him of the murders of a stuntman and a musician two years ago.

TOP ATHLETE RHODES WINNER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wilf Wedman, 23, has been named British Columbia's Rhodes Scholar for 1972.

Wedman, the first student in Simon Fraser University's six-year history to win the $5,000 scholarship, said he entered university primarily to pursue his interest in athletics.

He said his participation in the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico ended his indifference to the academic side of university:

"I saw the incongruities in Mexico — the magnificence of Olympic village within walking distance of unimaginable slums. It makes you look at things. I started to see a new relevance in history, trying to figure out why things happen the way they do."

Wedman is Canada's high junior champion and won a silver medal at the Pan-American Games in Colombia this year. He is also editor of Simon Fraser's student newspaper, The Peak, and a member of the student society council.

The Rhodes scholarship will allow him to study two years at Oxford, after which he says he plans ultimately to teach history at the university level.

Calgary Goes Wild After Grey Cup Win

Times News Services

The drunks ignored the police; the police ignored the drunks; thousands ignored the chilly 15-degree weather in Calgary Sunday night; and a Winnipeg woman and her retired husband are $100,000 richer as a result of Calgary's 14-11 win over Toronto in the Grey Cup.

It was that kind of day Sunday in three western centres — Winnipeg, Calgary and the site of the game, Vancouver.

In Winnipeg, Pearl Smith, 72, was ill at home along with her husband 79 and because both suffer heart trouble had to turn down a free trip to Vancouver to see the game. They only turned on the radio in the last few minutes of play.

"We've had heart attacks and we were afraid the excitment would be too much for us."

Another Manitoba resident, Larry Maybee, 25, of Selkirk drew Toronto in the Manitoba Sweepstakes. Before the game he tried to talk Mrs. Smith into splitting the prize money. She refused and wound up $37,500 richer.

HOLIDAY

In the downtown area Sunday night car horns blared, people shouted, waved arms and hoisted bottles, danced and created traffic jams.

The festivities went on throughout the night.

Many teenagers danced in the street and chanted "we're No. 1." They were ushered away by police, but reappeared a few moments later on another street yelling the same tune.

A celebrant got out of his car in stalled traffic and poured the last drops from a whisky bottle into his mouth. He walked to another car two lanes over and shook hands with the driver who appeared to be a stranger. He kissed one of the girls in the car, another stranger, and went back to his car.

No one raised an eyebrow.

BOTH IGNORED

One drunk was directing traffic at 5th St. and 7th Ave. S.W. A policeman was also directing traffic. They ignored each other and the graffic ignored both of them.

Cars covered with people charged up and down the main thoroughfares, often ignoring signal lights. Celebrants leaned out windows.

Despite the 15-degree weather, convertibles were suitably decorated with girls sitting on the folded tops. They were quickly joined by members of the opposite sex, jumping on the front and rear decks.

A few fell off, but even fewer were feeling any pain — beer was being consumed faster than gasoline in most cars.

Few injuries were reported to police.

And in Vancouver, Georgia Hotel manager Bob McCauley accused police of turning a blind official eye to hooligans who besieged his hotel during Saturday night's cup celebrations.

"I begged the police to rescue us from a vicious drunken mob on Saturday night, but they ignored me," McCauley said Sunday.

"The people out there went haywire. I phoned police headquarters six times asking for help. The last time they hung up on me."

Deputy chief constable Tom Stokes told of McCauley's complaint, said: "I don't know what he's talking about. I'm going to look into this whole affair."

McCauley said he had closed the doors of the hotel at about 9 p.m. Saturday because the place was packed. He said he opened them against at 12:30 a.m. to protect his security men.

"I decided they were more important than the damage those wild men could do. They had taken enough abuse. The police wouldn't come, so I decided to let the mob run riot through the hotel."

In all, about a score of people were injured and half a dozen arrested. Almost 700 arrests were made in the 1966 Grey Cup riot.

Battle Moves Inside E. Pakistan

Times News Services

NEW DELHI—Indian Defence Minister Jagjivan Ram said Sunday Indian troops have been ordered to move into East Pakistan as far as necessary to stop Pakistani artillery attacks, according to new reports today.

Ram said the order was issued after Pakistan increased its shelling of border areas.

Indian and Pakistani troops, backed by tanks and artillery, have been locked in battle for the last 48 hours inside East Pakistan.

An Indian government spokesman said fighting was still in progress near the town of Hilli, two or three miles inside the northwest part of East Pakistan.

Pakistan had lost 80 men dead or wounded while Indian casualties were put at 15, the spokesman said four Pakistani tanks were destroyed and one Indian tank damaged by an anti-tank mine, he said.

The action began Saturday when Indian troops acted after continuous shelling of the West Bengal town of Balurghat, which juts into East Pakistan, and menacing moves by a squadron of Pakistani tanks on Indian positions, he said.

Pakistani troops Sunday launched a counter-attack on Indian troops, the spokesman added.

MOST SERIOUS CLASH

Although the spokesman described the fighting, which he said was confined to a small area, as a local action, it is clearly the most serious engagement since fighting flared up inside East Pakistan more than a week ago.

Pakistan said heavy fighting was under way in the western sector around Jessore following a new sweep into East Pakistan by an Indian brigade and supporting armor.

A spokesman in Dacca said the attack was directed at Jibannagar. A later dispatch from Rawalpindi said the government in West Pakistan had acknowledged the loss of that village, which controls a 165-square-mile triangle of land pointing into India's West Bengal.

An army spokesman in Rawalpindi said casualties at Jibannager were substantial.

CLAIMS DISPUTED

The Pakistanis said the Indians had launched offensives on four fronts around East Pakistan's border Sunday. India admitted only one crossing.

The Rawalpindi dispatch said the Pakistanis claimed they had killed another 400 Indians inthe continuing clashes.

In Dacca, the Pakistani army said Indian troops used Soviet-made tanks in an attack on Pachagarh in the northern sector but were repulsed with "heavy losses."

Two Indian divisions, three armored regiments and several artillery units were involved, he said, adding that two Indian mountain brigades in the Dinajpur district had air support.

Pakistani military officials earlier reported beating back five Indian assaults and said 43 Indian soldiers, three Pakistani troops and 20 civilians were killed.

The Indians said they moved into East Pakistan in a "fresh defensive action" after renewed shelling Saturday and Sunday of Indian border regions around Balurghat, the district headquarters of West Dinajpur district.

Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neeld reported from Balurghat that Pakistani guns shelled a crowded market place there Sunday, killing six civilians and wounding 14. Neeld said Indian forces destroyed three Pakistani tanks in the ensuing battle.

FERRY MISHAP AN 'ACCIDENT'

An incident Oct. 20 in which an elderly Alberta couple's car plunged into the ocean while coming off a B.C. Ferry cannot be attributed to mechanical failure or to an error by the crew, an investigation report says.

The incident took place while the Queen of New Westminster was unloading at Departure Bay near Nanaimo, hospitalizing Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of Fort Macleod.

In a letter to Highways Minister Wesley Black, B.C. Ferries' general manager, Monty Aldous said, in spite of intensive studies, no mechanical failure of the ferry's hydraulic system has been found. It has also been impossible to attribute the accident to human error on the part of any of the crew.

In his letter, Aldous makes three recommendations, the first of which will go into effect immediately.

From now on the master of the ferry will remain on the bridge during tie-up periods, instead of handing over to the quartermaster.

During the investigation a check was made with Washington State Ferries. They said they had some minor incidents, but used much the same system of operation as B.C. Ferries, except that the master remained on the bridge.

Aldous' report also recommends that "slightly more positive propeller action" be used while the ferries are loading and unloading.

In addition, the manufacturers of the ferries' hydraulic systems will be asked to consider a possible modification to the variable-pitch propeller, that will neutralize it in the case of a hydraulic failure, rather than have it run the risk of flipping over to the opposite position.

Guerrillas Slay Jordan's Premier

WORKER for Indians throughout his life, honorary chief Edwin Underwood of the East Saanich Indian Reserve died in hospital Sunday aged 71. See story on page 2.

Tell, slain in Cairo Sunday after a little more than a year as premier, was an unrelenting foe of the Palestinian Arab guerrillas who opposed Jordan's monarchy.

Tell, 51, hated by the guerrillas for ordering the Jordanian army to crush their revolt last summer, was killed by four bullets as he stepped from his car at a Cairo hotel. A membeg of the four-man death squad said Tell's death was only the first of a series of murders intended to eliminate everyone who has opposed the cause of the Palestine guerrillas in the Arab world.

Hussein's announcement of the appointment of Lozi came after the 51-year-old Tell was buried in the royal cemetery in Amman. About 3,000 persons, many of them weeping, attended the state funeral.

A 21-gun tribute was fired as Tell's coffin was lowered into a grave next to King Abdullah, Hussein's grandfather, who was assassinated 20 years ago. Tell is the first commoner to be buried in the cemetery.

Tears streamed down Hussein's face as he offered condolences to Tell's widow.

Joey Goes to Court To Stay in Power

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Liberals will petition the Supreme Court of Newfoundland to declare St. Barbe South vacant and will not resign the government unless the seat is lost to the Progressive Conservatives in a byelection, John Mahoney, Liberal association president, said today.

Mr. Mahoney said the seat, one of 21 taken in the election Oct. 28 by the Conservatives under Frank Moores, is vacant because the 105 ballots which were burned made it impossible for the Supreme Court to complete a recount.

Mr. Mahoney said in an interview this left the Liberals and Conservatives on an equal footing with 20 seats each and Premier Joseph Smallwood's government was legally entitled to remain in power until a byelection was held, unless the court ruled it had been won by the PCs.

Other Liberal spokesmen said recounts in progress this week in two other districts were unlikely to add to Liberal strength because of wide vote margins.

Open With a Splash

The city's new Cyrstal Pool in Central Park opened with a splash over the weekend as an estimated 10,000 children poured through the complex as swimmers, performers or spectators.

Recreation director Jack Morgan called the opening programs "tremendous." He said today a few bugs had been detected, including a couple of slow drains, but "nothing what can often be encountered in the early days of an operation this size."

A crowd of more than 1,000 watched Mayor Courtney Haddock officially open the $1.8-million building Saturday night.

Haddock recalled he had been initially opposed to the idea, but "I now must eat crow. When I opened the door of the building I was astounded by its score and grandeur."

There are four pools—a T-shaped 50-metre pool, another one 25 metres long, a 16-by-40 foot training pool and a "familiarization" pool which contains 15 inches of water at its deepest end.

Saturday's opening festivities included two exhibitions of synchronized swimming, a water rologame, exhibition racing and a display of water safety techniques.

Special features of the complex include underwater windows at the deep end of the big pool, underwater speakers to direct synchronized swimmers, a hoist for handicapped swimmers, a sun-deck and a 35-seat conference room.

The pool is heavily booked with school swimming programs through the first week, interspersed with open swimming periods free of charge.

After next week the charge of pool use will be 75 cents for adults, 50 cents for students and 25 cents for children.

Ottawa Gets Blame

Sewering of properties in the west end of Saanich is being held up because of communications problems with Ottawa, Mayor Hugh Curtis said Saturday.

Saying he has had good co-operation locally, Curtis added: "It is just that Ottawa is 3,000 miles away."

To provide local connections in the Burnside area the municipality is trying to obtain easements for crossing the federal forestry research property on Burnside.

"No trunk lines are involved and the Vancouver forestry people are getting on it, so we hope it will be cleared up soon," Curtis said.

Cheque Spree: Man Charged

One man will be charged at Campbell River following a cheque-writing spree last Friday in Campbell River and Courtenay.

RCMP said a cheque-writing machine and some blank cheques belonging to McCurdy Creek Construction of Campbell River were recovered in Courtenay Friday.

The machine and cheques were stolen from the premises of the construction company about 8 p.m. on Friday and police were notified after one cheque was cashed in Campbell River.

No estimate of the cheques cashed was available.

NEW BOOKMOBILE ROLLS INTO SERVICE TODAY

The Greater Victoria Public Library's new bookmobile went into service today.

Replacing a vehicle which has served the area for more than 17 years, the new bookmobile can carry a stock of 3,200 books; 1,000 more than its predecessor.

It has been specially designed to provide space for oversized volumes and paperbacks, as well as large-type books for those who have difficulty reading conventional type. The body was built by Yarrows Ltd.

The bookmobile also has a photo-electric system that will speed up checking-out processes.

Fifteen new stops have been added to the bookmobile's 42-stop schedule which goes into effect Wednesday.

Because of the number of new stops the dates and times were not included in today's release. These can be checked by phoning bookmobile headquarters at 385-0221 or the main library.

The location of the new stops are:

Victoria — Fort and Pandora, Fifth and Topaz, Douglas and Simcoe, Moss and George, Linden and Rockland, Dowler and Kings.

Wilf Raffard, who drove the old bookmobile for 15 years, covering about 70,000 miles in that time, will drive the new vehicle.

Make It a Nicer Place At a Cost of 35 Cents

Being some questions and some answers:

Question: "Put my name down with those of your readers who will sign the pledge to pick up as many hitch-hikers and people waiting at bus stops as they can. I went all through last winter without a job and without a car and, believe me, I learned to hate a lot of the human race — those drivers who turn a blind eye to a guy standing in the rain and asking to be taken down the road apiece. Now that I have a car again I never pass one of them by. What's the next move?"

Answer: Well, Walter McKinnon, of our news desk, has whipped up a design and Horace Watkins and Jim Coles, over at Crest Screen Printing, are busy making some decals which we'll stick on the lower right-hand corner of our windshields. The cost of them is 35 cents each and if you'll just send that here to me at the paper I'll send yours along to you.

The idea simply is that this is, by all accounts, a mighty rough town on people, especially young people, who are without wheels. Bus services, on most lines, are infrequent and if you miss one there's a long wait, rarely with any shelter. But, more than that, there seems to be not more than one in a hundred motorists who will take the time to pull in for a passenger. Hopefully, our little band of volunteers may make it seem a nicer place.

I say "little band" because, judging from the first reaction to our notes here Friday, there are an awful lot of people dividing the population into two categories — the upstanding, decent and altogether splendid people who happen to have a car and all those bums, hippies, rapists and otherwise depraved people who haven't.

If we can make a small start toward demolishing that hypocrisy 35 cents won't seem too much, will it?

Question: "A few weeks ago my neighbor and I, the fatties of our block, sent away to a mail order house for two pairs of 'inflatable shorts' guaranteed to take inches from our hips. We've followed the directions faithfully, even hysterically, without the slightest results. Have we been had?"

Answer: Oh, my, yes indeed. Had in spades, my dear. Consumer testing organizations have found that the inflatable shorts or belts, advertised in leading magazines and with a substantial sale in the United States and Canada, are worthless. The advertising claims of two products in particular, "Trim-jeans" and "Hot Pants" are now under investigation by the U.S. Federal Trade Commission at the urging of the Council of Better Business Bureaus.

One particular study, made with volunteer prisoners at Lorton, a correctional institution in Virginia, resulted in the conclusion by qualified medical authorities that "these types of products are worthless, if not dangerous." The Journal of the American Medical Association notes that there's no clinical evidence that spot reduction of the hips, thighs or buttocks is possible.

The Better Business Bureau's head office wrote to 11 purchasers of "Trim-jeans." There were nine replies. Seven stated that they had followed directions, but achieved no loss of inches. One had a loss of an inch and one-half immediately after use, but it was all back the next day. The ninth respondent was forbidden by her doctor to use the garment because of a kidney condition.

Question: "Your recent criticism of the franchised dance studios in Victoria was certainly justified, but could you not add a word of support for the locally-owned businesses which do not play these gimmick games? I am thinking particularly of Elsie's Studio of Dancing where so many of us have found enjoyment over the years."

Answer: Elsie Holtum, a vivacious and dedicated woman who looks on ballroom dancing as a way of life, rather than a mere diversion, says that, yes, it's true that such articles from time to time do have an adverse effect for all studios. Says Elsie: "It shouldn't cost a fortune to learn to dance and certainly there shouldn't be the monstrous, binding contracts that we read about. Still, I'm very pleased that you wrote the article. I'd like to shout it from the rooftops."

Three Children Still Critical

One of the five children injured in a three-car collision on the Patricia Bay Highway last week was released from hospital Sunday.

Three others remain in critical condition.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said Catherine Pope, 5, daughter of G. R. Pope, 421 Brookleigh, was sent home. She was riding in the car driven by Mrs. Gail Wickens, 30 of 420 Brookleigh, killed in the crash at Sayward and Pat Bay Wednesday.

Denis Demeule, 5, daughter of Roger Demeule, 5443 Hamsterly is also in poor condition at St. Joeseph's.

3 Mayors In By Acclamation

Esquimalt residents elected a mayor and three aldermen by default today when no one opposed them for the Dec. 11 municipal election.

Mayor Art Young and Aldermen Kenneth Hill, Arthur Cuthbert and Arthur Mebs were re-elected by acclamation as the noon deadline for nominations passed with no one else entering the election.

Returning officer M.W.E. Allen said he is not sure if this was the first-ever all-acclamation election "but certainly within the last 10 to 15 years."

Late nominations brought to 11 the number seeking the four Victoria aldermanic seats while in Saanich, two late nominations brought the field to 10 candidates.

In Oak Bay, Mayor Frances Elford was re-elected by acclamation. Ald. Alan Hoey withdrew in the aldermanic contest and Elmer McEwen filed this morning. There is a five-way contest for the three aldermanic seats.

SPLASHY RIDE on a plastic slide was most popular feature of new Crystal Pool in Central Park, opened officially over the weekend. More than 10,000 swimmers, performers and viewers poured through the new complex in its first two days, and administrators report only minor problems were found during the break-in period. Free swimming at the pool continues through the week. See story on Page 37.

Unionists Cut Concrete Flow

Concrete deliveries to a commercial building site in Esquimalt were halted this morning in the continuing dispute between Wigmar Construction Ltd. and local building trade unionists.

Wigmar, a none-union company, also had concrete deliveries stopped Friday at another site, on Courtney Street.

An Ocean Cement concrete truck turned back this morning at the Esquimalt site, at the corner of Fraser Street and Esquimalt Road, when confronted with a number of unionists. There was no picketing.

Karl Fritz, superintendent of Wigmar Construction, said his company will sue Ocean Cement and Butler Brothers for "breach of contract" because the concrete wasn't delivered.

He said six men were working on the Esquimalt site and 27 on the three projects the company is working on in Greater Victoria.

Fritz said Wigmar workers could join building unions "if they want to" but he said they have indicated they don't want to join.

He said Wigmar pays union rates in most cases, but admitted the company doesn't match union fringe benefits including pensions, hours, sick benefit and holiday pay.

"Everyone should have the right to work in this country, if you want to join the union too," he said. "It's not fair to local trades, local people."

He also said a union contractor refused to send a crane to the Esquimalt site "so we are buying one and it will only work for non-union contractors." He described the move as a co-operative arrangement for the benefit of non-union contractors.

The commercial building in Esquimalt is being constructed for Diversified Holdings Ltd. It has progressed to the point where it is ready for concrete to be poured for foundations.

John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, said he is happy with the response of individual union members "who as a matter of principle refuse to deliver to that site."

On the employees' attitude towards joining building unions, Schibli said the workers are "under the gun" because of the company's "anti-union policy." He had talked to employees "and the response is good considering the circumstances."

Ask the Times

Q. What is the cause of baldness? Why are there more bald-headed men than women? Are there any specialists in Victoria?

A. There is disagreement about the cause of baldness. Generally it is blamed on old age, when failure in the nutrition of the scalp occurs and new hairs don't grow to replace lost ones.

Pre-senile baldness may be caused by ill-health, wearing tight leather bands inside the hat, closely fitting waterproof or cloth caps, anemia, or nervous complaints.

Baldness is connected with the function of the male hormone, which might explain why it occurs in men.

For the names of specialists in Victoria, you should consult the yellow pages of your telephone directory.

Q: Can you tell me if Spencer Castle was open to the public this year?—H.L.

A: Spencer Castle has been purchased by two Port Alberni developers who use the house as a private residence.

HOPEFULS QUIZZED ON ENVIRONMENT

All candidates for the Dec. 11 elections in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are being invited to state their position on a whole range of environmental questions, from highrise development to sewage disposal.

The Victoria branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control, which has drawn up the questionnaires, says candidates' answers to the 31 questions listed will be made available to any interested voters "without comment."

SPEC president John White said today the questions have been so phrased that most can be answered by a simple yes or no, but still give some indication of a candidate's basic attitudes on important environmental issues.

The answers received will be analyzed and may be published, he said, but it is not the society's intention that any candidates will be "condemned to eternal fire" on the basis of his or her replies.

CUP OF MILK FUND SEEKS $15,000

Money raised through the Unitarian Service Committee's Christmas fund-raising campaign in Victoria this year will be used for the relief of Pakistani refugees.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova arrived here Friday evening at the end of her cross-Canada tour which began Sept. 16 in St. John's, Newfoundland.

The target for all Canada is $1,345,000 in funds and gifts in kind.

Funds raised in Victoria will be used to help Pakistani refugees.

Dr. Hitschmanova has christened the appeal The Cup of Milk Fund.

"From the bottom of my heart I hope the appeal will be a success," she said.

She hopes the local campaign will raise $15,000 to buy one and a half boxcars of powdered milk.

"At a cost of 2 cents a cup this would give three quarter of a million hungry children a drink of milk," she said.

Dr. Hitschmanova described the difference in the appearance of Korean babies who received feedings of evaporated milk provided by the B.C. government.

"We receive two boxcar loads of evaporated milk a year," she said. "This milk goes to undernourished, spindly babies whose mothers cannot nurse.

"The result of this feeding is a miracle. Little skeletons turn into fat, cuddly babies. We call the milk B.C.'s wonder drink."

Dr. Hitschmanova will show slides of these "B.C. babies" and other USC projects at the official opening of the Victoria campaign Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the St. John Ambulance building, 941 Pandora Avenue.

Drugs Too Costly For Aged—Mayor

Pensioners in Victoria are paying too much for drugs, Mayor Courtney Haddock said today.

But the mayor was unable to recommend a single specific solution to the problem when he met this morning with Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Haddock told Loffmark he is co-chairman of the Vancouver Island branch of the B.C. Heart Foundation and has been interested in high drug prices since December, 1970, "and even longer."

He said 22 per cent of the city's population are people on fixed incomes, many of whom are paying up to $30 a month for drugs.

"They're living in genteel poverty and unnecessarily so," Haddock said.

Loffmark said the provincial pharmaceutical branch dispenses certain life-sustaining drugs for heart patients and other severely ill people at low costs. He promised to check practices at Victoria hospitals regarding drug dispensing to ensure the same policy is followed here as in Vancouver.

The mayor denied his visit to Loffmark was an electioneering gambit.

Sooke Man Reinstated on Welfare

A board of inquiry today reversed a decision by the Langford social assistance office to cut off welfare payments to a Sooke man because he lives too far from employment opportunities.

David Morrow, 25, lives on Sooke Road near 17-Mile House. His appeal against the cut-off was heard this morning by a panel consisting of social worker Robert Manchester, YMCA youth worker John Durkin and Elaine Olszewski of the Low Income Group.

The panel recommended immediate reinstatement of Morrow's $118 monthly assistance. Their report will be forwarded to the provincial rehabilitation department for ratification, which is given "99 times out of 100," a panelist said.

Welfare officials have confirmed here is a crackdown in effect to enforce a department requirement that welfare recipients be willing and available for work.

The Low Income Group said the department appears to be "after" youths and single recipients in the area north of Humpback Road.

Battle Moves Into Pakistan

Times News Services

NEW DELHI — Indian Defence Minister Jagjivan Ram said Sunday Indian troops have been ordered to move into East Pakistan as far as necessary to stop Pakistani artillery attacks, according to new reports today.

Ram said the order was issued after Pakistan increased its shelling of border areas.

Indian and Pakistani troops, backed by tanks and artillery, have been locked in battle for the last 48 hours inside East Pakistan.

An Indian government spokesman said fighting was still in progress near the town of Hilli, two or three miles inside the northwest part of East Pakistan.

Pakistan had lost 80 men dead or wounded while Indian casualties were put at 15, the spokesman said four Pakistani tanks were destroyed and one Indian tank damaged by an anti-tank mine, he said.

The action began Saturday when Indian troops acted after continuous shelling of the West Bengal town of Balurghat, which juts into East Pakistan, and menacing moves by a squadron of Pakistani tanks on Indian positions, he said.

Pakistani troops Sunday launched a counter-attack on Indian troops, the spokesman added.

Although the spokesman described the fighting, which he said was confined to a small area, as a local action, it is clearly the most serious engagement since fighting flared up inside East Pakistan more than a week ago.

An army spokesman in Rawalpindi said casualties at Jibannager were substantial.

Province To Change Tax Rate

Premier Bennett said today retroactive legislation will be introduced in the legislature in February to change the provincial income tax system to blend with federal tax changes.

Under the new system B.C. will have to increase its rate of personal income tax to 30.5 per cent of the federal tax compared with the current 28 per cent of the "basic tax."

Bennett said this doesn't amount to an increase because the higher rate is necessary for the province to get the equivalent revenue as computed on a smaller federal tax base.

B.C. income taxes will continue to be the lowest in Canada, along with Nova Scotia and Ontario if they go to the 30.5 per cent rate from their current 28, Bennett said.

"There will be no double taxation in British Columbia," Bennett said.

Residents of seven of the 10 provinces pay what amounts to a double tax on a portion of income tax.

A table released by Bennett shows Manitoba shifting to provincial rate of 42.5 per cent of federal tax compared with the current 39 per cent of basic tax.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today that while the initial head office will be in Ottawa "the government has made known to the board of directors its wish to see the location of the head office moved to Vancouver within two years."

Calgary Goes Wild After Grey Cup Win

Times News Services

The drunks ignored the police; the police ignored the drunks; thousands ignored the chilly 15-degree weather in Calgary Sunday night; and a Winnipeg woman and her retired husband are $100,000 richer as a result of Calgary's 14-11 win over Toronto in the Grey Cup.

It was that kind of day Sunday in three western centres —Winnipeg, Calgary and the site of the game, Vancouver.

In Winnipeg, Pearl Smith, 72, was ill at home along with her husband, 79 and because both suffer heart trouble had to turn down a free trip to Vancouver to see the game. They only turned on the radio in the last few minutes of play.

"We've had heart attacks and we were afraid the excitment would be too much for us."

Another Manitoba resident, Larry Maybee, 25, of Selkirk drew Toronto in the Manitoba Sweepstakes. Before the game he tried to talk Mrs. Smith into splitting the prize money. She refused and wound up $37,500 richer.

HOLIDAY

In the downtown area Sunday night car horns blared, people shouted, waved arms and hoisted bottles, danced and created traffic jams.

The festivities went on throughout the night.

Many teenagers danced in the street and chanted "we're No. 1." They were ushered away by police, but reappeared a few moments later on another street yelling the same tune.

A celebrant got out of his car in stalled traffic and poured the last drops from a whisky bottle into his mouth. He walked to another car two lanes over and shook hands with the driver who appeared to be a stranger. He kissed one of the girls in the car, another stranger, and went back to his car.

No one raised an eyebrow.

BOTH IGNORED

One drunk was directing traffic at 5th St. and 7th Ave. S.W. A policeman was also directing traffic. They ignored each other and the traffic ignored both of them.

Cars covered with people charged up and down the main thoroughfares, often ignoring signal lights. Celebrants leaned out windows.

Despite the 15-degree weather, convertibles were suitably decorated with girls sitting on the folded tops. They were quickly joined by members of the opposite sex, jumping on the front and rear decks.

A few fell off, but even fewer were feeling any pain — beer was being consumed faster than gasoline in most cars.

Few injuries were reported to police.

And in Vancouver, Georgia Hotel manager Bob McCauley accused police of turning a blind official eye to hooligans who besieged his hotel during Saturday night's cup celebrations.

"I begged the police to rescue us from a vicious drunken mob on Saturday night, but they ignored me," McCauley said Sunday.

"The people out there went haywire. I phoned police headquarters six times asking for help. The last time they hung up on me."

Deputy chief constable Tom Stokes told of McCauley's complaint, said: "I don't know what he's talking about. I'm going to look into this whole affair."

McCauley said he had closed the doors of the hotel at about 9 p.m. Saturday because the place was packed. He said he opened them against at 12:30 a.m. to protect his security men.

"I decided they were more important than the damage those wild men could do. They had taken enough abuse. The police wouldn't come, so I decided to let the mob run riot through the hotel."

In all, about a score of people were injured and half a dozen arrested. Almost 700 arrests were made in the 1966 Grey Cup riot.

Gloom Ahead For Economy Says Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Serious economic and social strains threaten unless the economy expands rapidly to create more jobs for young people, the Economic Council of Canada said today.

The 28-member council, in a review of the last 18 months and prospects for the first half of the 1970s, says that Canada can count on little help from foreign sales in pushing demands for goods and services.

"The job of getting the economy moving decisively back up towards its potential level of output must now rest entirely on domestic demand expansion," the council says.

It is one of the council's most chilling analysis of the country's performance and prospects since it was formed in 1963 to advise governments and the general public on how to achieve relatively full employment, price stability and an equitable distribution of rising incomes.

Between 1970 and 1975, the report says, Canada needs 1.4 million new jobs to provide work for the rapidly growing labor force and bring unemployment down to tolerable levels.

CUT UNEMPLOYMENT

In the first 18 months of this five-year period, civilian employment rose to about 8.1 million from 7.8 million. But unemployment has been running more than six per cent of the labor force, and the council said it should be cut to 3.8 per cent as an immediate goal and to three per cent for the long-range future.

The council said men in the 25-34 age group need the largest employment increase. Jobs would have to be found at twice the rate of growth for that group than occurred in the last half of the 1960s.

These are today's young, born in the years immediately after the Second World War and now graduating, or dropping out, from the school system. They will be demanding more housing, furnishings and other durable goods, and urban services as they settle into family life— and they will need jobs.

"Any significant shortfall in meeting the employment needs of this group will produce serious economic and social strains in the 1970s," the report said.

The council is composed of three full-time members and 25 part-time councillors drawn from business, labor, agriculture, academic and consumer groups.

GOVERNMENT RAPPED

They were highly critical of the government.

Most of their report was prepared before Finance Minister E. J. Benson's tax-cutting and job-promoting budget Oct. 14. But they said these measures didn't do enough to necessitate changing the report.

Internationally, Canada was becoming isolated as a small trade-dependent country in a world where large economic groupings are becoming important. One example is the European Common Market which Britain is preparing to join.

Domestically, Canada will have to expand output of goods and services at the rate of six per cent a year for the next three years, it said. Real output — that is, discounting inflationary prices—rose only 3.2 per cent last year and only a little faster in the first half of this year.

After last year's slowing down, prices have begun to increase more rapidly again, the council noted. It expressed fears for further inflation in the future, saying business cannot continue with severely squeezed profits.

"It seems likely that attempts will be made to restore profit margins to more normal levels as soon as market demand permits."

From the point of view of maintaining price stability in the future, the position "appears to be less favorable now than at any time in the post-war period."

FERRY MISHAP AN 'ACCIDENT'

An incident Oct. 20 in which an elderly Alberta couple's car plunged into the ocean while coming off a B.C. Ferry cannot be attributed to mechanical failure or to an error by the crew, an investigation report says.

The incident took place while the Queen of New Westminster was unloading at Departure Bay near Nanaimo, hospitalizing Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of Fort Macleod.

In a letter to Highways Minister Wesley Black, B.C. Ferries' general manager, Monty Aldous said, in spite of intensive studies, no mechanical failure of the ferry's hydraulic system has been found. It has also been impossible to attribute the accident to human error on the part of any of the crew.

In his letter, Aldous makes three recommendations, the first of which will go into effect immediately.

From now on the master of the ferry will remain on the bridge during tie-up periods, instead of handing over to the quartermaster.

During the investigation a check was made with Washington State Ferries. They said they had some minor incidents, but used much the same system of operation as B.C. Ferries, except that the master remained on the bridge.

Aldous' report also recommends that "slightly more positive propeller action" be used while the ferries are loading and unloading.

In addition, the manufacturers of the ferries' hydraulic systems will be asked to consider a possible modification to the variable-pitch propeller, that will neutralize it in the case of a hydraulic failure, rather than have it run the risk of flipping over to the opposite position.

Guerrillas Slay Jordan's Premier

Tell, slain in Cairo Sunday after a little more than a year as premier, was an unrelenting foe of the Palestinian Arab guerrillas who opposed Jordan's monarchy.

Tell, 51, hated by the guerrillas for ordering the Jordanian army to crush their revolt last summer, was killed by four bullets as he stepped from his car at a Cairo hotel. A member of the four-man death squad said Tell's death was only the first of a series of murders intended to eliminate everyone who has opposed the cause of the Palestine guerrillas in the Arab world.

Hussein's announcement of the appointment of Lozi came after the 51-year-old Tell was buried in the royal cemetery in Amman. About 3,000 persons, many of them weeping, attended the state funeral.

A 21-gun tribute was fired as Tell's coffin was lowered into a grave next to King Abdullah, Hussein's grandfather, who was assassinated 20 years ago. Tell is the first commoner to be buried in the cemetery.

Tears streamed down Hussein's face as he offered condolences to Tell's widow.

TOP ATHLETE RHODES WINNER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wilf Wedman, 23, has been named British Columbia's Rhodes Scholar for 1972.

Wedman, the first student in Simon Fraser University's six-year history to win the $5,000 scholarship, said he entered university primarily to pursue his interest in athletics.

He said his participation in the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico ended his indifference to the academic side of university:

"I saw the incongruities in Mexico — the magnificence of Olympic village within walking distance of unimaginable slums. It makes you look at things. I started to see a new relevance in history, trying to figure out why things happen the way they do."

Wedman is Canada's high jump champion and won a silver medal at the Pan-American Games in Colombia this year. He is also editor of Simon Fraser's student newspaper, The Peak, and a member of the student society council.

The Rhodes scholarship will allow him to study two years at Oxford, after which he says he plans ultimately to teach history at the university level.

Joey Goes to Court To Stay in Power

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Liberals will petition the Supreme Court of Newfoundland to declare St. Barbe South vacant and will not resign the government unless the seat is lost to the Progressive Conservatives in a byelection, John Mahoney, Liberal association president, said today.

Mr. Mahoney said the seat, one of 21 taken in the election Oct. 28 by the Conservatives under Frank Moores, is vacant because the 105 ballots which were burned made it impossible for the Supreme Court to complete a recount.

Mr. Mahoney said in an interview this left the Liberals and Conservatives on an equal footing with 20 seats each and Premier Joseph Smallwood's government was legally entitled to remain in power until a byelection was held, unless the court ruled it had been won by the PCs.

Other Liberal spokesmen said recounts in progress this week in two other districts were unlikely to add to Liberal strength because of wide vote margins.
